THE LATEST.

Judge Ferdinand Hess, a member of the Missouri Legislature, went to his stable at Belmont, Mo., yesterday and was met with a negro armed with a shotgun who demanded money. The negro forced Judge Hess and Mrs. Hess to get in a buggy and drive to his home, where Mrs. Hess was held prisoner while her husband was ordered to go out and raise $300 for his captor. Judge Hess went to Columbus, Ky., just across the river, where a posse was raised. The negro left his house and fled to a swamp, where he was captured. He was taken to Belmont, where a mob took him away from the officers and hanged him in the public square.

The striking teamsters in Chicago are unable to prevent the delivery of goods from the department stores, and yesterday 1,900 wagons were operated by the Employers' Association, though 4,000 policemen and deputies were required to guard them. There has been a marked decrease in violence and only two attacks on nonunion teamsters were reported during the day. The Employers' Association is said to be making up a blacklist. The strikers are to be given until next week to return to work. After that they will be unable to get employment from a boycotted firm. It is said that 2,400 of the 4,300 vacancies caused by the strike have already been filled.

James W. Hyde had a complaint served on James W. Alexander, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, in which he seeks the removal of the latter. Hyde alleges in his complaint that Alexander conspired with Gage E. Tarbell to get control of the society for personal ends, and for that purpose, among other things, circulated various defamatory stories concerning him. He denies all these stories, particularly the alleged "can-can" dance at the ball at Sherry's. The ball, he declares, was a "dignified and artistic entertainment."

A panic was created at the cyclone-stricken town of Snyder, Okla., yesterday when a dangerous looking cloud passed over the devastated village. Outside of a deluge of rain, however, there was no serious damage. An appeal for aid from the outside world has been issued by the Citizens' Relief Committee. The people who were injured by the cyclone are being cared for as well as is possible, but the hospital arrangements are poor, owing to the condition of the buildings that are being utilized.

Nan Patterson was released from custody in New York yesterday on motion of District Attorney Jerome, who stated that he believed further prosecution of the case useless. She declared that she would not return to the stage. A crowd of 2,000 cheered her when she appeared on the street.

Herbert V. Croker, a son of Richard Croker, of New York, was found dead in a seat in a train near Kansas City. Death is believed to have been due to a drug. A negro put young Croker on the train at Kansas City and just before the train started the negro sprang off. Croker had been attending the races at Elm Ridge.

Members of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce are responsible for the statement that the hearing on the subject of regulation of railway rates may be closed on May 22. It is said that the committee's mind is made up and it is sitting now merely to influence public sentiment.

Leading freight traffic managers, representing all the railroads leading out of Chicago towards the Ohio river, at a meeting in Chicago decided upon an important reduction of rates in merchandise classes for points in the southeastern territory.

Frank J. Meier, an inmate of the Christians' Home at Evansville, Ind., while despondent over Prof. Osler's expressed theory of man's uselessness after sixty, committed suicide by strangling. He was seventy years old.

President Theodore P. Shonts, of the Isthmian Canal Commission, said in an interview yesterday that while the work of constructing the canal was staggering in its immensity, it could and would be successfully completed.

Daniel Petro, clerk and treasurer of Cambridge City, Ind., is missing and short in his accounts, according to the Town Trustees who are examining his books. Investigation, just begun, is said to show a defalcation of $3,500.

Former Sheriff Henry Dixon, of Henderson county, was ordered by the County Court there to pay over the sum of $5,583.16, alleged shortage charged against him in a report by the County Attorney.

Frank T. Gunther, one of the best-known men of Owensboro, died unexpectedly last night of apoplexy. He was the Democratic nominee for the Legislature from the Owensboro district.

WITH RIFLE

Negro Held Man, Woman and Child Captive.

DEMANDED $600 IN CASH

And Forced Representative Hess To Get Money.

TOOK REFUGE IN SWAMP

WHEN POSSE CAME AND WAS CAPTURED AND LYNCHED.

HANGED ON PUBLIC SQUARE.

Cairo, Ill., May 12.—[Special.]—Tom Witherspoon, a negro, who this afternoon secured $600 from Representative Ferdinand Hess, under threat to deliberately shoot down his wife and child, whom he held as prisoners in a deserted log cabin, was captured at 5 o'clock this evening by a posse, and an hour later was dangling from the end of a rope in the public square of Belmont, Mo., fifteen miles below here on the Mississippi river.

Witherspoon was a few days ago released from the Missouri penitentiary, where he had been sentenced for an alleged attempt to murder his wife. This afternoon the negro went to Hess' home, a few miles from Belmont, and demanded $600, stating that that amount of money was due him from the State because of his imprisonment. Mr. Hess told him that he would try to get a claim through the Legislature for him, but the negro grew insulting and covered Mr. Hess with a Winchester repeating rifle he carried. Hess then told him he did not have that much money in the house, but would get it.

* * *

At Point of a Rifle.

The negro, then at the point of the gun, forced Mr. Hess to hitch up a horse to a light buggy and to saddle another horse. He then mounted the horse and forced Mr. Hess to get in the buggy with his wife and child and drive toward Belmont. As they passed a deserted negro cabin near the town, Witherspoon, still holding the gun in Mr. Hess' face, made him stop the horse and compelled Mrs. Hess and her baby to enter the cabin. Standing in front of the door the negro told Mr. Hess that he intended to have the money and that unless he sent six hundred dollars back to the cabin within an hour by Hugh McPheeden, a merchant of Belmont, he would shoot his wife and child and make his escape.

* * *

Hess Got the Money.

Fearing that the negro would carry out his threat, Mr. Hess drove with all possible haste to Belmont, where he drew the money from the bank. He then went in search of Mr. McPheedon, but learned that he had gone to Columbus, Ky., directly across the river. He sent a note across the river to him, telling of the circumstances, but fearing to wait for his arrival to take the money, Mr. Hess sent it to Witherspoon by a colored Baptist preacher. The preacher rushed to the place and handed the negro the bag containing the greenbacks and silver. Witherspoon counted the money and mounted the horse and rode rapidly up the Iron Mountain railroad track.

* * *

A Posse Organized.

McPheeden told of the sensational hold-up in Columbus, and Marshal Zimmerman organized a posse and crossed the river to Belmont. Here a large number of citizens had congregated and were discussing the events of the afternoon. Before the negro had started from the shanty the mob of indignant citizens from both places were in hot pursuit. Bloodhounds were sent for from Charleston.

Several members of the posse boarded a switch engine and chased the negro down the track firing at him as he ran. When he reached the vicinity of First Lake he dismounted and ran into the swamps. The men followed him and finally surrounded him in a small shack. The negro threw the sack of money out of the window, but refused to come out himself, and threatened to kill the first man that tried to bring him out.

* * *

Plucky Kentucky Officer.

Despite these threats, Marshal Zimmerman, who is known as "the nerviest man in Western Kentucky," walked boldly up to the door and kicked it in. The negro surrendered, and was taken to Belmont. There the officers were greeted by a large crowd, and the report that Mrs. Hess was in a dangerous condition as a result of the fright and shock she had received served to infuriate the men. Before the Marshal could get to the jail with his prisoner the mob, by main force, took him away from him, and with a rope that is used as a public swing in the square strung him up.

After the negro was hanged the mob quietly dispersed, and at a late hour to-night the body was still hanging. According to a telephone message received here the whole town was greatly exercised over the affair and the lynching was witnessed by hundreds of men, women and children.

* * *

Negro Begged Piteously.

Witherspoon is said to have begged piteously for his life, protesting that he had not done anything to be hung for and that it was wicked for them to hang him for robbing a man. He said that he had not intended to harm a single hair on either Mrs. Hess or her child's head, but the leaders of the mob were deaf to his pleadings and with short ceremony placed the loop around his neck, threw the other end across the top of the swing and fifty willing hands caught the loose end and yanked the negro several feet in the air. It is believed that his neck was not broken and that his death was due to strangulation.

Witherspoon was sent to the penitentiary from Belmont about three years ago for an attempt to kill his wife with whom he had quarreled. His wife was at the time cooking for J. R. Hymearson, who lives about six miles from Belmont, and it is said that the negro went there and tried to cut her throat.

Hess is a well-known and wealthy citizen of Missouri, and is a member of the Missouri Legislature. The family is quite prominent.

TWO MORE DEAD.

MAKE FATALITIES IN PENNSYLVANIA WRECK TWENTY-TWO.

SIXTEEN ARE IDENTIFIED.

Samuel Shubert, the New York Theatrical Manager, Expires of His Injuries.

Harrisburg, Pa., May 12.—Two more victims of the wreck of the Cleveland and Cincinnati express, on the Pennsylvania railroad, at South Harrisburg yesterday morning, died to-day, bringing the total number of victims to twenty-two. Two others are in a critical condition. Sixteen of the dead have been identified. The bodies of the others are so horribly charred and burned that it is doubtful if they will ever be positively identified. Public services over the unidentified dead will be held to-morrow in Market Square Presbyterian church.

Samuel Shubert, the New York theatrical manager, died this morning at the Commonwealth Hotel. His body was taken to New York this afternoon in a special car furnished by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Funeral services will be held next Monday in New York.

Mr. Shubert's attorney, William Klein, and Abe Thalheimer, one of his managers, who were also injured in the wreck, returned to New York with the body.

Max Stettheimer, a New York manufacturer, died this afternoon at the Harrisburg Hospital. His body was taken to New York this evening.

Joseph Eberly, of New York, and Mrs. Anna Peters, of Cleveland, are at the hospital, and are not expected to live. All the other injured in the hospital are expected to recover.

Three of the charred bodies at the temporary morgue were identified today as Thomas Lewis, Charles Bisinni and Miss Robinson.

Coroner Krause, with his jury, to-day again visited the scene of the wreck and interviewed several of the injured and the friends of the dead. The inquest will not be held until after the railroad company has completed its inquiry into the cause of the disaster.

INDICTMENTS GOOD.

MISSISSIPPI WHITECAPPERS MUST ANSWER TO CHARGE.

Federal Judge Declares They Have Forgotten That All Men Are Equal Before the Law.

Jackson, Miss., May 12.—Judge Niles, of the Federal Court, spent the entire day to-day in hearing arguments on the demurrers submitted by the attorneys for the alleged whitecappers of Franklin county to the indictments against them, and late this afternoon continued the cases until the next term of court.

The indictments were demurred to on the grounds that they did not state any specific crime, that they did not charge that the homesteader interfered with was competent to make a homestead entri. All these points were overruled, the Judge holding that the indictments were valid.

Judge Niles, in granting a continuance to the accused, delivered himself of a powerful denunciation of whitecapping. In speaking of the whitecappers, he said among other things:

"They have forgotten that all men are equal before the law, and by this I do not mean social equality. God never intended social equality, and there is no law that can make all men socially equal. It never was and never can be."

He advised the Franklin county citizens to go home and become good citizens. There were some four to five hundred citizens of the county in the city as witnesses before the court.

DAMAGE IN BOURBON

Will Be Heavy As Result of the Downpour.

Paris, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—This section was visited this morning by the heaviest downpour of rain in years. Houston and Stoner creeks were transformed in a few hours into rivers of turbid water, full of debris of all kinds. The streets were overflowed, the sewers choked and gardens and farm lands adjacent to the city limits deluged. Traffic on the Paris and Lexington electric line was considerably delayed. Tobacco beds in several sections of the county were ruined, and great damage done to corn lands. The downpour was so heavy that it appeared to be falling in great waves.

PANIC

At Snyder When a Dark Cloud Appeared.

A HEAVY FALL OF RAIN.

GRAVES DUG FOR CYCLONE VICTIMS MUST BE BAILED OUT.

THREE DISTINCT FUNNELS

To the Deadly Twister When It First Formed, Says Wolf Hunter Abernathy.

APPEAL FOR OUTSIDE HELP.

Snyder, Okla., May 12.—Snyder to-night is still paralyzed. Early this morning a cloud of cyclonic hue passed over the devastated village, following the course of the former one of Wednesday. This cloud threw the stricken people in a panic, but nothing except a deluge accompanied the passing of the cloud.

Snyder is located in a basin formed by the foothills of the Wichita mountains. The drainage is exceedingly poor, and water is standing in large pools all over the town. Excessive rains have made the country roads almost impassable, and as a consequence the relief parties sent to the country districts have not yet fully reported the results of their investigation.

The Relief Committee is thoroughly organized and is working under an admirable system.

The population of Snyder, prior to the tornado, is estimated to have been something over 1,000 people. The condition of every family stricken is known personally to the members of the Relief Committee.

* * *

Bad Hospital Arrangements.

The hospital arrangements are fearful, but they are the best that can be done. A rather high wind prevailed just prior to the heavy precipitation to-day. During this windstorm it was feared that one of the buildings being used as a hospital would blow down and the attendants started to move the twenty patients confined in the building. While some of those injured were being conveyed on stretchers to various places where a cot could be squeezed in the rain began falling furiously, and as a result the wounded people, many dangerously, were drenched with the rain. The wind subsided and the injured were returned to the building from which they were taken. This building had a portion of the roof blown away, and all sorts of devices, including portions of tin roofs, comforts and the like, were placed over the injured to keep the water that leaked through the roof off them. The cries, groans and moans of the eight or ten seriously injured inmates were agonizing.

All the graves dug yesterday afternoon and last night for the interment of the victims of the tornado are filled with water, and this water is being bailed out before the bodies can be buried. The interment of the bodies is one of the most pressing needs of the hour.

Abernathy Describes Cyclone.

J. R. Abernathy, the famous wolf hunter, of Frederick, who accompanied President Roosevelt on his wolf hunt, is here assisting in the relief work. Abernathy saw the tornado when it first formed.

"At first there were three funnels," says Abernathy, "and they first licked down to the earth about thirty miles southwest from Snyder. They traveled in a northeasterly direction from the first, at a slow speed, but the whirling noise of the cyclonic movement could be heard where it then was, about seven miles away. I was then on a high promontory of the Wichita mountains and saw these funnels until they neared Snyder. The three funnels swept everything clean. The Ralston homestead was the only one in their path. Several orchards were destroyed, not a tree remaining. The center funnel did the heaviest damage. The funnel south of the main funnel merged with the center funnel as the north fork of the Red river was crossed. As soon as these two funnels merged the two funnels remaining appeared to gain in velocity, and moved in a due northeasterly direction at a rapid rate. About three or four miles due southwest of Vernon the two remaining funnels joined, and as soon as the one big funnel had the field to itself it fairly shot forward, and it was this funnel that passed over Snyder. When there were three funnels the forward movement was exceedingly slow. I have ridden over the path of the storm. I counted fifty-eight head of stock killed by wind. I did not see a single dead coyote or dog, but dead birds were scattered all along the path of the tornado."

* * *

Twenty-eight Unburied Bodies.

The Oklahoma Funeral Directors' Association was in session at Oklahoma City at the time of the disaster. It adjourned immediately, and eighteen members of the association came here to assist in burying the dead. Early to-night twenty-eight bodies were still in the morgue waiting to be interred. Just as rapidly as the prepared graves can be emptied of water a burial is observed.

AN APPEAL FOR AID

From the Outside World Is Issued By Relief Committee.

Snyder, Okla., May 12.—A relief committee, headed by E. Dowden, chairman, has been formed and the following appeal for outside aid has been issued and handed to the Associated Press representative, with a request that it be given publicity:

To the people of the United States: This place was almost totally obliterated by a cyclone on the evening of May 10. The people here are dividing their all, but have not enough to relieve the pressing necessity. Neighboring towns are strenuously supplying us with hospital supplies and food. Fully 300 families have been ruined by the storm; 1,500 people are more or less dependent on the good will of the generously inclined to tide them over the present distress. Money is urgently needed. Property loss, including crops, stock, homes and other property, will reach over half a million dollars, with a portion of the stricken district yet to be heard from. Almost continuous rains since the cyclone have rendered many of the roads almost impassable. The stricken people have helped the less fortunate to the extent of $500 in cash, besides dividing food, provisions and clothing with those who lost their all.

In view of these circumstances, we ask assistance from the American people.

E. DOWDEN, Chairman.
B. C. BURNETT, Secretary.
G. J. HELENA, Treasurer.

GREAT DAMAGE IN BATH.

For Ten Hours the Storm Raged In All Its Fury.

Owingsville, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—During a ten-hour electric and rain storm, which raged over this section last night, lightning struck an outhouse on Milt Davis' farm, near here. Mrs. Davis, who was trying to get small chickens under shelter, was knocked insensible by the shock, and is believed to be fatally injured. S. D. Thompson's and S. P. Atchison's stores in town were set on fire by lightning running on telephone wires. Lightning struck A. N. Denton's residence and demolished the veranda. Many telephone poles over the country were struck and shattered. Every long-distance telephone, with one exception, is out of commission.

At Flemingsburg lightning struck a barn belonging to Fant's estate, destroying it, with five horses and other property. The loss is about $4,000. The tower on the courthouse was struck, but no damage was done. Every stream in the country is out of its banks, and Licking river is in the towns of Salt Lick and Wyoming, and a flood is feared. Ash Creek rushed down in a flood and overflowed Thomas Horseman's store near town.

Tobacco plants, corn crops and gardens in many sections are ruined, causing almost inestimable loss. Much damage is reported on Licking Valley Railway in this county. The Licking river is still rising to-night and all mountain rivers are reported rising rapidly. Reports to-night state that thousands of logs are running loose in Licking river and five hundred thousand are expected to be caught at Farmers and Salt Lick.

REQUISITION FOR TROOPS

To Go To Snyder With Rations For Cyclone Sufferers.

Lawton, O. T., May 12.—Col. Kingsbury, Commandant of the Eighth Cavalry, located at Fort Sill, to-day made a requisition upon the War Department for orders to send troops to Snyder with rations for the tornado sufferers.

The Engineering Corps of the Oklahoma National Guard started to-day for Snyder with seventy-five tents to be used as temporary homes for the destitute.

A heavy rain and wind storm prevailed to-day in southwestern Oklahoma, assuming the proportions of a cloudburst near Lawton. The streets of Lawton were flooded and water ran into many houses, entering, among other places, the temporary hospital, where several injured brought here from Snyder were being quartered.

Twenty Houses Blown Down.

Marlow, I. T., May 12.—A heavy wind storm struck this town to-day and nearly twenty houses were blown down, including a cotton gin. Three or four persons were injured, though none seriously.

BOWEN'S CASE

WILL BE TAKEN UP BY THE PRESIDENT NEXT WEEK.

INQUIRY A PERSONAL ONE.

Both Loomis and Bowen Will Be Given An Opportunity To Be Heard.

Washington, May 12.—Several matters of importance were considered informally at to-day's meeting of the Cabinet. All members were present except Secretary Hay, who is in Europe, and Secretary Wilson, who is on an official trip through the Southwest. Much of the time of the meeting was taken up by the President in discussing the details of his Western trip.

The case involving Assistant Secretary of State Loomis and Herbert W. Bowen, American Minister at Caracas, will be taken up by the President early next week. This announcement was made by Secretary Taft to-night after a two hours' conference with the President at the White House about this and other matters.

President Roosevelt will conduct the inquiry into the matter personally, and both Mr. Loomis and Mr. Bowen will be given whatever opportunity they may want to submit their respective sides of the case.

Secretary Morton brought to the Cabinet's attention the subject of the disposition of the remains of John Paul Jones. The President directed Secretary Morton to send a naval vessel to France to bring the remains of the first Admiral of the American navy to the United States. It is thought now the remains will be deposited in the new crypt at the Annapolis Naval Academy.

Other members of the Cabinet had routine matter to bring to President Roosevelt's attention, but he made engagements to discuss them at a later time.

Drowned While Seining.

Monticello, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Lee Dickerson, aged twenty years, was drowned here to-day while seining. The body was recovered and will be sent to his home at Springfield, O.

LOSING OUT.

Teamsters Unable To Prevent Deliveries.

ABOUT 2,000 WAGONS AT WORK

BUT 4,000 POLICE AND DEPUTIES ARE GUARDING THEM.

RIOTING ON THE DECLINE.

Only Two Nonunion Drivers Came To Grief Yesterday At Hands of Strikers.

AN EMPLOYERS' BLACKLIST.

Chicago, May 12.—The Employers' Teaming Association operated 1,900 wagons to-day and made deliveries in all parts of the city. Two nonunion drivers were assaulted and beaten, one of them so severely he will die. Beyond these cases there was no interference with the wagons worth mentioning. It required, however, a force of 4,000 policemen and Deputy Sheriffs to afford security for the wagons and to guard freight houses and stores throughout the day. It is announced to-night by the Employers' Association and the express companies that they will increase the scope of their operations day by day, and in less than a week they expect to be doing business as though there had never been a strike. White men are being brought into the city from surrounding States at the rate of 250 a day to take the places of the strikers. The negroes employed at first are being sent home as rapidly as they can be replaced. The white men engaged as teamsters are all men of character, and none is accepted without personal references.

Declined To Answer.

Leonard Mulligan, president of the Delivery Wagon Drivers' Union, and Robert J. Thorne, of Montgomery Ward & Co., were the chief witnesses to-day at the hearing before Master in Chancery Sherman relative to the Federal injunction. Both witnesses were alike in one respect, which was that they refused to answer questions when they considered a response might involve them in further complications. Mulligan declined to say whether or not he had issued passes to certain drivers permitting them to go through the streets, and Thorne declined to say whether or not arming employes who went out to deliver was anarchy or semi-anarchy.

When asked by the attorneys of the defendants whether or not his men were armed with firearms, Mr. Thorne replied that he did not know it of his own knowledge.

This statement caused much excitement among the attorneys for the defendants and they asked him to repeat his answer. He did so, and added the information that he had given instructions to the men who hired the new drivers that they should not carry firearms. A long wrangle between the witness and the attorneys for both sides over what constituted anarchy or semi-anarchy closed the day's session. It will be resumed on Monday morning.

* * *

A Striker's Funeral.

The funeral of George Pierce, a member of the Department Store Drivers' Union, who was shot by George T. Waldron, a special Deputy Sheriff, is to be held Sunday.

President Shea, of the Teamsters' Union, issued an order to-day to every union teamster in Chicago to attend the funeral. A parade in which it is asserted thousands of members of labor organizations will accompany the body is planned. Members of the Department Store Drivers' Union were wearing to-day a button having this inscription inside a deep black border: "We mourn the loss of a murdered brother."

A Coroner's jury to-day exonerated Deputy Sheriff Waldron. The jury's verdict was that Waldron shot Pierce in the discharge of duty. Witnesses were produced who testified that Pierce had struck a nonunion teamster and had made a motion as if to draw a revolver against Deputy Sheriff Waldron.

* * *

Employers' Black List.

It was stated authoritatively to-day that early next week the Employers' Association would make up a "black list" of all teamsters who have gone out on strike. These men, 4,300 in all, will be notified that they can come back to work any time during the week, but that if they have not returned by the end of next week they will never be reinstated under any circumstances. The black list programme is said to be more complete and definite than that which was followed during the A. R. U. strike in 1894. It was stated by the Employers' Association to-day that already 2,400 positions had been filled and that they were rapidly filling the others. It was asserted by the employers that only 275 colored men were now holding positions for which they had been imported. This was denied by the strikers, who say that 1,400 have been imported. The "black list" programme is said to provide for the placing of the colored men on the coal wagons only, while all imported white labor will be used on the general truck wagons. The "black list" will not be sent out by the association as such, but the notification of the employers of each firm will be sent by the individual firm.

* * *

School Children Strike.

Spread of sympathetic strikes among public school children received a new impetus to-day. Pupils of the Carter H. Harrison school, at Twenty-third street and Wentworth avenue, went on a strike when wagons of the Peabody Coal Company arrived at the building to deliver coal. The Peabody Company is a member of the Employers' Association and has been active in delivering coal with nonunion teamsters to firms antagonized by the strikers. Police were still on guard to-day at the Hendricks public school, where a strike similar to that at the Carter Harrison school had not entirely subsided.

John C. Harding, chairman of a committee appointed by the Chicago Federation of Labor to investigate the reported contribution of $50,000 by Chicago banks to the employers' strike fund, stated to-day that twelve banks denied having contributed. He declined to give out any further result of his inquiry.

BIG STRIKE IN NEW YORK.

Thousands of Rockmen and Excavators Expected To Go Out.

New York, May 12.—Officials of the Rockmen and Excavators Union say New York will have a strike of 26,000 men on its hands before the middle of next week. Of these 1,800 men are to strike to-day and on Monday 500 more men will be called out.

Recognition of the union and higher wages are the questions for adjustment.

APOPLEXY

CAUSES DEATH OF F. T. GUNTHER, OF OWENSBORO.

ONE OF THE CITY'S BEST MEN.

Had Been Ill Only a Day and the End Was Unexpected.

Owensboro, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Frank T. Gunther, vice president of the National Deposit Bank and one of the best-known and most popular men of Owensboro, died of apoplexy at 8 o'clock to-night at his home on Frederica street after an illness of one day. Mr. Gunther was stricken while on the street and immediately removed to his home. His condition was serious from the first. This morning he suffered another attack, but was resting easy at 6 o'clock. His death came unexpectedly.

Mr. Gunther was born in Bavaria, Germany, April 1, 1836. He came to the United States in 1846 and settled in Cincinnati. In March, 1856, he came to Owensboro. He started in business on a small scale, and by frugality and business enterprise he had soon established himself in a growing grocery firm. His rise in the business world was rapid. He became connected with other business enterprises and soon organized the F. T. Gunther grocery firm and continued at the head of the business for many years. About two years ago he retired from business, having amassed a considerable fortune. Mr. Gunther had been a stockholder in the National Deposit Bank for many years. Recently he made the race for representative to the Legislature on the Democratic ticket and was nominated by a handsome majority. Only a few weeks ago he was elected president of the Owensboro Business Men's Association. He was a Knights Templar and an Elk. He was married in 1859 to Miss Sophia Stubenrauch, of Louisville, and is survived by his widow and three children. The arrangements for the funeral have not been made. Mr. Gunther carried $60,000 life insurance.

FAVORS REGULATION

RAILROAD PRESIDENT BELIEVES COMMISSION SHOULD FIX RATES.

THE MINIMUM AND MAXIMUM.

Stickney Gives All "Officialdom" a Roast For Violating the Anti-Pass Law.

Washington, May 12.—A. B. Stickney, president of the Chicago Great-western railroad, has filed with the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce a statement in favor of giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to fix rates. He says that the commission would be the most satisfactory arbiter possible.

Speaking of rebates, he says that "since the injunctions the traffic directors have stopped paying rebates on grain shipments, but in lieu thereof, however, paid elevator fees, which is another way of giving rebates. A Government commission would be untrammeled by competition or a desire to secure tonnage for any particular line and could frame an equitable schedule."

Mr. Stickney thought that the commission should be allowed to fix minimum as well as maximum rates or discrimination could not be proved. Mr. Stickney criticised the free pass system.

"As an individual rule of action the law against free passes," he said, "was ignored by the Congressman who passed it and by the President who approved it, and subsequent Congressmen and Presidents, with rare exceptions, have ignored its provisions.

"Traveling they present the evidence of their misdemeanor before the eyes of the public in a way which indicates no regard for the law. The Governors of States, many of the Judges—in short, all officialdom, from the highest to the lowest—the higher clergy, college professors, editors, merchants, bankers, lawyers, present the evidence of their misdemeanor in the same manner.

Discussing rebates, Mr. Stickney said: "The traffic directors have made secret contracts with the traffic directors of large shippers at rates below the scheduled rates, and have thus secured the tonnage in advance they 'publish' a schedule containing the contract rates. Such schedules are called 'midnight schedules,' and have all the effects of secret rebates. The small dealers are driven out of the market, or the small dealers who have made contracts are saddled with losses which the large dealer pockets as profits, and the railway company secures a large tonnage of competitive traffic. These legal midnight schedules can only be prevented by conferring upon a Government commission the sole power to make such schedules."

DIGNIFIED

And Artistic Was Ball At Sherry's,

SO MR. HYDE DECLARES.

FILES COMPLAINT FOR REMOVAL OF ALEXANDER.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

Against Equitable's President and Gage E. Tarbell To Seize Control of the Society.

SAYS HE HAS BEEN SLANDERED.

New York, May 12.—James W. Alexander, president of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, was served to-day with the summons and complaint in the suit brought against him by James H. Hyde, William H. McIntyre, Annie F. Hyde and Mary B. Ripley in which the plaintiffs desire the removal of Mr. Alexander from his position as trustee of the Hyde stock, and demand an accounting.

This latest move in the Equitable troubles followed close on the heels of generally circulated reports that Mr. Hyde and Mr. Alexander were arranging a truce, reports admittedly largely based on the delay in filing the suit to remove Mr. Alexander from the trusteeship.

The complaint reviews the history of the establishment of the deed of trust, and declares it to have been the fixed purpose of Henry B. Hyde that the control of the stock and the responsibility for the management of the society should remain with his descendants as long as the law would permit.

Charges Alexander With Conspiracy.

The complaint then charges that the defendant has made no effort to induce James H. Hyde upon attaining his thirtieth birthday, and upon the termination of the trust, to make a new settlement of the stock and property, for any purpose, but instead "has for many months past been secretly engaged in organizing and carrying on a conspiracy, the purpose of which was to take the power of controlling the management of said society away from the stock without the consent of its holders, and to confer this power ostensibly upon the policyholders, but in a form in which he expects to be able to control the management through proxies secured by agents of the society from policyholders."

* * *

Tarbell Also Accused.

The defendant is charged with inaugurating "said conspiracy by joining with himself one Gage E. Tarbell, second vice president of the society," and it is alleged that all the "overt acts in said conspiracy were committed with the aid and connivance of said Tarbell."

After reviewing all the ground covered by Mr. Hyde in his public letters and all other features of the controversy the complaint charges President Alexander with "a willful design to prostitute his trust so as to seize for himself the control of the property."

Mr. Alexander is further charged with circulating numerous scandalous stories about Mr. Hyde's management of the society and his private conduct.

* * *

Denies Story of "Can-Can" At Sherry's.

Mr. Hyde denies all these stories, and gspecifically names the charge that he had given a masked ball at Sherry's, charging the cost to the Equitable; that there were "improper and scandalous occurrences, such as dancing a can-can on the dining table;" that he had engaged in certain financial operations alone or with others without telling Alexander, and had thereby hurt the Equitable; that he was connected with the purchase, sale, promotion and underwriting of securities of the United States Shipbuilding Company, or that the Equitable had become involved in such transactions by reason of the connection of Mr. Hyde therewith.

* * *

Ball Dignified and Artistic.

Mr. Hyde declares that "said ball was in all respects a dignified and artistic entertainment;" that the story of the "can-can" was part of the conspiracy to injure him, and that these "defamatory statements" were timed to appear before the petition of the president and certain other officers of the Equitable for his removal.

Mr. Hyde says that Mr. Alexander has been an equal sharer with him of all profits and losses in the financial transactions.

The complaint declares that "the said defamatory and false charges have had the effect of seriously impairing public confidence in Mr. Hyde, and in the society and its management, and have affected its prosperity," and that the defendant "greatly damaged said trust estate, and has at no time accounted for said damage or for his administration of said trust.

"Wherefore, plaintiffs pray for judgment of this court removing the defendant from his office as trustee and requiring him to account for the injury done to said trust estate by him as such trustee, and for such other and further relief as the court shall deem just."

DESTRUCTIVE IN WOODFORD.

Storm In the County One of the Worst In Years.

Versailles, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—A very severe storm of rain, wind and lightning visited this county this morning and wrought much damage. The rainfall was one of the heaviest ever known here, inundating lowlands and badly washing crops. Many fields of corn suffered serious injury.

Lightning struck the stock barn on James H. Edward's farm on the Big Sink turnpike, near Versailles, which burned to the ground with its contents of corn, hay and implements. One horse perished. The blacksmith shop of J. C. Roberts at Fort Garrett was struck by lightning and Mr. Roberts was severely stunned by the shock. A barn on George W. Searcy's farm was partially demolished by wind, the falling timbers killing a mule and crippling a valuable horse.

The Helm dwelling, just outside of Versailles on the Nicholasville turnpike, was unroofed by the wind.

PLANS FOR NEW LIBRARY BUILDING ARE APPROVED.

Trustees Go Over the Drawings With Architect Tachau.

The plans for the new free public library building submitted by Pilcher & Tachou, architects, of New York, were practically approved by the Board of Trustees last night, and Mr. Tachau, who was present, explained the drawings in detail. The principal changes were in specifications, and it took the board three hours to get through this part of the work.

Mr. Tachau will leave for New York to-day, but will return when the bids are opened, which he thought would be in about six weeks. The trustees have not yet fixed a date.

The board authorized the Library Committee to appoint two assistants in the circulating department when needed and employ an extra janitor.

The lease on the building for the colored free public library at Tenth and Chestnut streets was ratified and the trustees adjourned after a session of three hours and twenty minutes.

Railway Rates Hearing Will Close Soon.

COMMITTEE'S MIND MADE UP.

NOW SITTING TO INFLUENCE PUBLIC OPINION.

GEN. LOMAX TO GET A JOB.

Washington, May 12.—[Special.]—Members of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate are responsible for the statement that an effort is to be made to close the railway rate hearings on the 22d instant. No report on the bill will be prepared until fall by the committee. It will meet again about a week before the extra session, which is expected on October 16, and formulate its measure and its recommendations. The country will have no time to discuss the specific Senate Committee measure before it is taken up in Congress.

It is understood here that the Senate Committee has already made up its mind, and these hearings are continued only to influence public opinion, so that the action of the Senate against railway rate legislation of any radical character may be justified.

Regulation Affecting Packages of Tobacco.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue holds that the present law and regulations require that all smoking tobacco shall be put up in packages containing 1, 1 2-3, 2, 2½, 3, 3 1-3, 4, 8 and 16 ounces, and in no other manner, and that each such package shall be properly labeled and stamped before removal from the factory. Such statutory packages cannot legally be subdivided into parcels of tobacco inclosed in envelopes or other wrappers to be distributed gratuitously as samples, nor can the tobacco be taken from such statutory packages after removal from the factory and be repacked in envelopes or other inclosures and then be sold or given away.

Gen. Lomax To Get Appointment.

Secretary Taft will probably appoint Maj. Gen. Lindsay Lunsford Lomax, of Virginia, to the vacant position on the Gettysburg National Park Commission created by the death of Maj. W. M. Robbins, of North Carolina.

Gen. Lomax is an ex-Confederate soldier, and has for some years past been employed in the war records office, this city. He served with distinction in the Army of Northern Virginia, and surrendered with Gen. Joseph E. Johnston in North Carolina.

Secretary Taft said this morning that Gen. Lomax would probably get the place unless the President had already promised it to some other ex-Confederate. The Secretary did not think this likely.

The Gettysburg Commission consists of three members, one of whom is to be an ex-Confederate. The position pays $10 a day, and there are practically no duties in connection with it.

Gen. Lomax's appointment has been urged by the two Virginia Senators, Senator Culberson, of Texas, and others.

The North Carolina Senators want the place for one of their constituents and have asked the Secretary to hold up the case until they see him.

Manufacturer Opposes Rate Regulation.

Mr. C. D. Mitchell, of Chattanooga, Tenn., president of the Chattanooga Plow Company, representing also the Chattanooga Manufacturers' Association, consisting of about 100 manufacturers, with an investment of some $30,000,000, appeared before the Senate Committee in opposition to any legislation tending to vest the rate-making power in the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission. He said that in the opinion of the men whom he represented the present conditions best served the State of Tennessee and that they did not wish the Government to assume the office of mediator between them and the railroads. "A rate-making commission," said Mr. Mitchell, "would know too little of conditions in different localities, would be too inaccessible and finally could not regulate rates with the necessary rapidity. At present we get all the reasonable demands that we make of the railroads."

Attorney General Considers the McKnight Case.

Attorney General Moody carried to the Cabinet meeting to-day the papers of J. M. McKnight, of Louisville, for whom a pardon has been asked of the President. The Attorney General has carefully reviewed the case and the President will act in accordance with the recommendations of his adviser. In advance of the President's action on the case the Attorney General declines to give out his recommendation, but the understanding has been that it is unfavorable.

Former Congressman Shaffroth, of Colorado, who created a sensation in the last Congress by resigning his seat because he had reached the conclusion that he was not honestly elected, is in Washington to-day.

Mr. Shaffroth says the action of the Republicans in unseating Gov. Adams has made the State safely Democratic. He says the party will renominate Adams next year and re-elect him by 50,000 majority.

A Yellow Fever Panic.

The flight from the isthmus of Panama on account of yellow fever seems to have partaken of the nature of a panic, though the officials here see no occasion for serious alarm. The steamer Alliance which is due in New York within a few days is said to be crowded with refugees, mostly employes of the commission. Refugees who came yesterday tell stories of gross mismanagement and complain bitterly that conditions under which they expected to work have been misrepresented.

Departments in Washington are more or less the victims of fake newspaper stories, but the Pension Office just at present is getting the worst of it. Some time ago a story was written to the effect that all veterans of the Civil War were to be given, upon application, fur-lined overcoats. Several hundred veterans have sent their applications to the commissioner for his approval.

Gathering Statistics of Tobacco Trade.

Commissioner of Corporations Garfield announced to-day that considerable misapprehension seems to exist as to the "tobacco trust investigation" being conducted by the Department of Commerce and Labor. The Commissioner says alleged unlawful acts of the trust are not being investigated, that is a matter entirely in the hands of the Department of Justice. The Department of Commerce and Labor is simply gathering statistics on the tobacco trade in the same manner that other industries are being looked into.

DR. EATON IS NOMINATED.

Kansas City, Mo., May 12.—The Southern Baptist Convention, with 1,000 delegates made up of the leading educators of the South, met here to-day in its fiftieth annual gathering. After the addresses of welcome, which included one speech by Judge John L. Peak, former United States Minister to Switzerland, E. W. Stephens, of Columbia, Mo., first vice president of the convention, took charge of the session.

The most important business of the first session was the election of officers for the coming year. It resulted as follows: President, E. W. Stephens, President of the Missouri General Association. Dr. T. T. Eaton was nominated, but withdrew his name. Vice Presidents, T. H. Elliott, Virginia; C. A. Smith, South Carolina; Joshua Levering, Baltimore; J. C. Stolcup, South McAlester, I. T. Secretaries, Dr. Lansing Burrows, Georgia, and Dr. O. F. Gregory, Maryland, both re-elected. Treasurer, George W. Norton, Louisville, re-elected. Auditor, William P. Harvey, Louisville, re-elected.

At the first session abstracts of Representatives of the Foreign Missionary Board, the Home Missionary Board and the Sunday School Board were read, and a commitee was named to prepare a programme for the ensuing sessions.

A resolution was adopted leaving the place of holding the next convention to a committee of five, which will report to President Stephens not later than next January.

While the convention was in progress at the Calvary Baptist church, many of the women attended the second day's meeting of the Woman's Missionary Union, which is being held at the Central Presbyterian church.

The meeting was opened with devotional exercises, including a Bible lesson, read by Mrs. W. C. Golden, of Tennessee. Mrs. S. E. Woody, of Kentucky, spoke on the work of establishing a hospital in connection with the Baptist mission at Yank Chow, China. She stated that $3,000 would be needed to equip the hospital and a collection was taken which resulted in the subscription of $1,410 for this purpose.

Miss A. W. Armstrong, of Maryland, corresponding secretary of the union, read a statement made by the board of managers for the Margaret Home for Children, located at Greenville, S. C. The discussion which followed the report involved plans for the equipment and support of the institution.

The election of officers of the Baptist Young People's Union resulted in the selection of Dr. L. O. Lawson, of Tuscaloosa, Ala., as president; Rev. H. W. Virgin, Nevada, Mo., first vice president; M. B. Neif, Alabama, second vice president, and W. W. Gaines, of Georgia, secretary.

The Southern Baptist Educational Conference elected the following officers: President, Dr. R. Thale, president of the Southwestern Baptist University, Jackson, Miss.; vice president, Dr. J. P. Green, president William Jewell College, Liberty, Mo.; F. W. Boatwright, president Richmond College, Richmond, Va.; Dr. E. M. Poleat, president Furman University, Greenville, S. C.

Dr. W. H. Harrison, president of Bethel College, Russellville, Ky., was elected secretary.

BREATHITT

Must Come Up In Its Assessment.

IS GIVEN A WEEK'S TIME.

VALUATION AS REPORTED FAR SHORT OF LAST YEAR.

LOUISVILLE CASES AFFIRMED.

Frankfort, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—The State Board of Equalization to-day, after hearing Judge James Hargis and other witnesses from Breathitt county, passed the county for final action for a week to give the County Court time in which to list and certify certain omitted property to the State Auditor. The total assessed value of the entire county as reported to the State Board is $252,613 short of the equalized value for last year. The State Board, on preliminary action, gave a raise of 30 per cent. on farm land and personalty and 15 per cent. on town lots. Judge Hargis stated to the board that it was but just that the county should pay as much taxes as it did last year, and said that if given a week's time its valuation would be brought up. Accompanying him as witnesses before the board were Magistrate Breck Combs, County Attorney J. H. Blanton and Leonidas Redwine.

The board passed finally on the assessment of property in the county of Boyd, heard yesterday, giving its farm land and personalty and town lots a raise of 5 per cent. The total assessed value of the entire county was $370,547 short of the equalized value for last year, and the raise brings it up. The board accepted the assessment of Knott county as made and equalized in the county.

The candidates for the nomination are Conn Linn, of Calloway, and Felix K. Grasty, of Trigg. Former Senator Newton W. Utley, of Lyon, is a receptive candidate. The district was represented in the last Senate by Senator J. W. Gilbert, of Calloway, lately deceased.

Louisville Cases Affirmed.

The Appellate Court to-day, Judge Paynter writing, affirmed a judgment of the Jefferson Common Pleas Court, second division, in a case of the Louisville Gas Company against Mrs. Katherine Page. The action was by the appellee for damages for injuries sustained. She fell over a gas box located by the company at the intersection of Twenty-fifth and Bank streets in the city of Louisville, sustaining permanent injuries. The jury in the court below gave judgment for $2,000, and the court here says that amount is not excessive, considering the character of the injuries sustained by the plaintiff.

In an opinion by Judge O'Rear the court upheld another judgment of the Jefferson Court, same division, in a case of J. W. Reccius & Brother against the Columbia Finance and Trust Company. The action was one for forcible detainer, growing out of the occupancy of a storeroom on Fourth street, in Louisville, by the appellants. The lower court decided for the appellee company, and the judgment is affirmed.

CATCHES NEGROES STEALING AND USES HIS PISTOL.

Patrolman Frank Portman had an encounter with two negro coal thieves at the intersection of the Illinois Central and Southern railroads in South Louisville last night. As a result of the affray George Thomas, one of the negroes, is at the City Hospital, wounded in the leg, and George Tyler, his partner, is in jail, charged with breaking into cars and taking property from a common carrier. While the ball broke the bone in Thomas' leg the wound is not considered dangerous.

Numerous complaints have been made to the police department by the railroad companies about their cars being broken into and goods taken in that locality. Complaints about coal being taken have also been made. About 8 o'clock last night Night Patrolman Portman says he caught the negroes, Thomas and Tyler, in the act of stealing coal. He had suspected them before of breaking into cars and taking merchandise. When he came upon the negroes he told them to consider themselves under arrest. At this juncture both negroes showed fight. Tyler picked up a lump of coal and threw it at the officer, while Thomas jerked out his knife and made a desperate plunge at him. Patrolman Portman jumped back just in time to save himself, although a long slit was made in his new coat by the knife. No sooner did he jump back than he fired at Thomas, the shot taking effect in his leg. Both negroes then surrendered.

MAY RESULT FATALLY.

Shirley Ellis Accidentally Shot By His Cousin At Eminence.

Eminence, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Shirley Ellis, a youth of about sixteen years, was accidentally and probably fatally wounded this afternoon by his cousin, Ellis Crabb, a young man of twenty-two. Crabb is a clerk in the grocery of R. W. Moody and Ellis occasionally assisted in the store. Today they were engaged in oiling some pistols, when the weapon in Crabb's hand was discharged, the bullet entering Ellis' shoulder blade and ranging toward the spinal column.

Several physicians were summoned, and when they arrived they found both of Ellis' lower limbs paralyzed. After the discovery was made that the spinal cord was affected no attempt was made to probe for the bullet. The injured youth was taken to the home of his father, James Ellis, as soon as he could be moved and is now being carefully watched by physicians. His life hangs in the balance and probable forty-eight hours will elapse before the outcome can be told with any degree of certainty. Crabb is almost prostrate as a result of the accident.

MISS LAWRENCE WRITES NOTABLE MUSIC.

Miss Julia Lawrence has composed a sacred song which is exciting much favorable comment by competent musical critics. It is entitled "Consolation," from Bryant's well-known poem, the composer having herself set the words of that piece to the music. It will be sung from the manuscript notes at the Fourth-avenue Presbyterian church to-morrow at the 11 o'clock service by the soloist, Mrs. Newton Crawford. It will also be sung at the Broadway Baptist church on the following Sunday by Mrs. Simon Sapinsky. NEAL READY

To Call Meeting of Democratic Committee

TO CONSIDER THE CONTESTS.

ASKS ATTORNEY TO BRING MATTER OFFICIALLY BEFORE HIM.

ANSWER TO MR. SELLIGMAN.

Chairman M. W. Neal, of the Democratic City and County Executive Committee, has written Joseph Selligman, one of the attorneys for Pres Ray, J. J. Tierney and John Carney, who were defeated for nominations in the Democratic primary April 25, that he is ready to call a meeting of the committee to consider their contest as soon as the matter is officially brought before him. Mr. Neal's letter is in response to a letter from Mr. Selligman, notifying him that notice of contest had been filed with Committeeman John Keane and requesting that he name a date for the hearing of evidence.

Chairman Neal's letter is as follows:

Headquarters of Democratic City and County Committee, Louisville, May 13, 1905.—Mr. Joseph Selligman, City—Dear Sir: Your letter under date of May 8 was not addressed to my office, and consequently was delayed several days in its delivery.

I note that you say you have delivered petitions to Mr. John Keane of contests for your clients, John J. Tierney and others. If you have done so, Mr. Keane has never brought the matter to my attention, and I have had no information authorizing me to call a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee.

Inasmuch as you say you have delivered petitions to Mr. Keane, I would suggest that you see him or direct your correspondence to him, and request him to bring the matter before the committee.

Had you delivered the petitions either to the chairman or secretary of the committee, the matter would have had prompt attention. If you will have the petitions of your clients delivered to me, so that I can have something upon which to base official action, I will take pleasure in calling a meeting of the committee and lay the matter before it. Yours, etc. M. W. NEAL, Chairman.

USES PISTOL WHEN NEGROES ATTACK HIM.

Clarence Cline, a newsboy, is in jail for shooting at a gang of negro boys who attacked him with sticks and rocks last night, as he was passing up Jefferson at Eighth street. The shots had the effect of scattering the negroes, although they missed their mark, and at the same time of attracting members of the police force. Cline was placed under arrest by Sergeant Doran. The charge against him is shooting at without wounding. When asked at the jail why he carried a pistol, young Cline said that he sold papers late and it was a nightly occurrence for negroes about Eighth and Jefferson streets to assault him with rocks and missiles. He said he carried the pistol to protect himself.

At His Home In Madison County Passes Peacefully To the Life Beyond

Death of Maj. John D. Harris, Former State Senator, Wealthy Farmer and Type of the Old School.

THE LATE JOHN D. HARRIS.

Richmond, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—Maj. John D. Harris, one of the most prominent men in this county and widely known throughout the State, died at his home near town last night about midnight. Maj. Harris had been in ill health for some time and his death was not unexpected. Since the death of his wife two years ago he had steadily declined and he met his end with the composure of a man whose duty has been done and who fears not to meet his Creator.

Maj. Harris was born in December, 1829, and enjoyed a long and illustrious career. He gave his attention in early life to farming and amassed a considerable fortune, owning at the time of his death a handsome estate of several thousand acres of Bluegrass land. Some twenty years ago he went in for politics and in 1885 was elected State Senator from this district. Four years later, in 1889, he ran his memorable race for Governor against Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner and was defeated. In his young manhood he was united in marriage to Miss Nancy Jane White, daughter of Valentine White, a wealthy resident of this county. He is survived by two children—Mrs. Cassius M. Clay, of Bourbon county, and Mrs. Samuel H. Stone, of Louisville. Mrs. Stone's husband is the well known ex-Auditor of State.

Maj. Harris was an elder in the Christian church and a man of strong religious tendencies. He was generous and liberal with his means, public-spirited and progressive, of the strictest honor and integrity. The entire community mourns his loss. His remains will be interred to-morrow afternoon in the Richmond cemetery, and Richmond Commandery, No. 19, Knights Templar, will have charge of the services.

WARM GREETING FOR CONGRESSIONAL COMMITTEE.

Greenup, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—A large crowd were assembled on the river bank at 3 o'clock this afternoon to meet the Queen City on her down-river trip carrying the Congressional Committee. The old campaign cannon was brought out and several shots were fired. Congressman J. B. Bennett went to Huntington last night and boarded the steamer and will go as far as Cincinnati. The boat did not stop here.

The stage will be sufficient for barges only, though it is possible a few light boats will be sent south. There are about ten million tons of coal in the harbor altogether. Steamboats are preparing to-night to get away, and the crews are in readiness. Of the shipment which is to go out the River Coal Combine will have 200 barges, the Jutte Company 25, the United Coal 18, the Budds 15, and the Clyde Company 10. FOUND DEAD

In a Railroad Coach In Kansas.

A SON OF RICHARD CROKER.

PUT ON TRAIN BY NEGRO, WHO SPRANG OFF.

DEATH DUE TO SOME DRUG.

Kansas City, May 12.—Herbert V. Croker, a son of Richard Croker, the New York political leader, was found dead on a south-bound Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway train, between Kansas City and Newton, Kan., to-day. He had died during the night, evidently from the effects of some drug administered at Kansas City, where he took the train last night for Bliss, Okla.

The first news of the death of young Croker was received in Kansas City at 4 o'clock this afternoon, when the local police were requested to hunt for a negro who is said to have placed Croker on the train at Kansas City.

* * *

Found Dead In a Car Seat.

According to a telephone message from Newton, Croker was found dead in a car seat just before the train reached Newton early to-day. The body was taken from the train at Newton. His identity did not become known until a message was received from Richard Croker at New York several hours later asking the authorities to hold the remains and stating that he would leave immediately for Newton.

The first clew to Croker's identity was a letter found in the dead man's pocket addressed to him by Zach Mulhall, formerly of Oklahoma, who is now holding a wild west show in New York City, to Joseph Shiller, manager of the famous "101" ranch at Bliss, Okla. Inquiry by telephone elicited the information that Croker was not known at the Bliss ranch. Evidently he was on the way to the ranch for an outing.

Following a message of inquiry sent to New York, the Coroner took charge of the body and impaneled a jury. An inquest was begun this evening.

* * *

Was Placed On Train By Negro.

According to stories of passengers and the conductor on the train upon which Croker died, the young New Yorker was placed on the train at Kansas City shortly after 10 o'clock last night by a negro. Croker appeared to be under the influence of some drug. The negro was seen to hand him a sum of money and a railroad ticket just before the train started, when he jumped off and disappeared. When the conductor came around to collect Croker's fare, the latter was asleep, and he did not disturb the passenger. Croker was left to himself all night until nearly 5 o'clock this morning, when the conductor made another attempt to collect his ticket. He was unable to arouse Croker, and upon examination found that he was dead.

* * *

Coroner Was Notified.

The Coroner at Newton was notified by telegraph of the fact, and when the train reached that city the body was removed to an undertaking establishment. It was several hours before the young man's identity was established.

As far as can be learned, Croker arrived in Kansas City early on Thursday, and spent the afternoon at the Elm Ridge race track. He is known to have been in the company of several patrons of the race track before he boarded the train for the South.

CHICAGO RECEIVES OFFER TO BUILD STREET RAILWAY.

Company Proposes To Run the Line Till Legality of "Mueller" Certificates Is Determined.

Chicago, May 12.—The city of Chicago to-day through Mayor Dunne received a definite offer for either purchase or lease of the street car tracks and franchise on the streets which Federal Judge Grosscup recently decided had passed from the control of the Union Traction Company. John J. Cummings, of the McGuire-Cummings Company, of this city, made a definite bid for a contract with the city either to buy the rails and wires or to lay new ones and operate street cars till there shall be a court decision as to the legality of the certificates issued under the so-called "Mueller" municipal ownership law.

Mr. Cummings' idea is to merely build and operate the road till the city wishes to purchase it from him with "Mueller" law certificates. He believes the latter to be legal and valid. Mayor Dunne's municipal ownership friends think this offer will prove the desired club to hold over the Chicago City Railway and Union Traction Company to bring them to a speedy settlement with the city.

PRINCETON'S ALUMNI TO MEET IN KANSAS CITY.

Notable Gathering of Educators and Other Well-Known Men Begins To-day.

Kansas City, May 12.—Delegates to the convention of the Western Association of Princeton Clubs, which meets here to-morrow, and which takes in all alumni associations of Princeton, west of Pittsburg, will bring together a notable gathering of educators, including delegates from Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, Chicago, St. Louis and other cities.

Among them will be Cyrus McCormick, of Chicago, and Mayor Rolla Wells, of St. Louis.

POCAHONTAS DESCENDANTS MAY VISIT EXPOSITION.

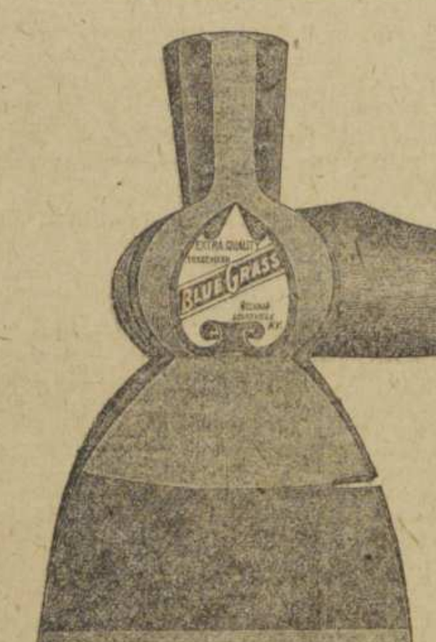

Hyden, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—In view of the fact that there are scores of descendants in the mountain counties of Rolfe and Pocahontas, a request was made some time ago that the Jamestown Exposition Company run a free excursion, bearing all such descendants as might go, to be present at the opening of the exposition. The question had been under discussion for a long while, and in response to the request a letter has been received from the exposition management saying that the matter would be taken under consideration.

Editor James M. Leath, of Thousandsticks, published here, is specially interested in behalf of the descendants and he believes the excursion will be run.

WELCOME LOGGING TIDE IN MOUNTAIN STREAMS.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—The heavy rains of the past three days has caused a big rise in Kentucky, Licking and Red rivers, and much damage is reported in the lowlands. Another tide is on in the mountains, and thousands of logs are running. Mills at Jackson, Clay City, Ford, Salt Lick and Farmers are catching logs rapidly. Rivermen say many rafts will come out, insuring a steady run of mills the entire year. Red river and Licking are higher than in years.

"Blue Grass" edge tools stay sharp longer.

"BLUE GRASS" hatchets are made in all patterns, sizes and weights, in silver bronzed finish or full polished.

More Work—Less Labor

THE desire to accomplish the most work with the least labor is no tribute to laziness. The aim of every intelligent mechanic is to possess labor-saving tools. Short cuts lengthen life. A hatchet that holds its edge—one that stays sharp—means to the mechanic less labor—better results.

Every trip to the grindstone is time lost—every "chop" with a dull hatchet is labor wasted. Result:

More labor—less work.

To the time-valuing, labor-saving mechanic, the "Blue Grass" Hatchet appeals most. Compared with others, there is less "grind" and more edge-holding quality. The quality could not be improved, even at a considerable advance in price.

The "Blue Grass" trade mark signifies the limit of good quality.

The "Blue Grass" Hatchet represents the highest development yet reached in the world of mechanics' tools. The same is true of other tools branded "Blue Grass"—hammers, hand saws, files, rasps, auger bits, ship augers, braces, drawing knives, brick trowels, plasterers' trowels, plumbs and levels—in fact, every tool laying claim to a place in the carpenter's kit. A tool chest equipped with "Blue Grass" Tools is an index of the mechanic's good judgment.

All other things being equal, the employer places the highest value on the man using the best tools.

"Blue Grass" tools give you the advantage.

TWELVE NEW WITNESSES

To Be Called Before the "Beef Trust" Grand Jury.

Chicago, May 12.—Twelve new witnesses were to-day subpoenaed to appear before the Federal grand jury investigating the beef industries. All of the persons for whom writs were issued are commission firm employes at the stock yards here. It is believed that an attempt is to be made to learn the relations existing between commission men and packers.

SECRET CODE,

WITNESS SAYS, WAS USED BY ARMOUR LINES.

SHIPPERS HAD TO LAUGH

When Stenographer Read the Cipher Words For Interestate Commerce Commission.

Chicago, May 12.—Sensational testimony as to an alleged secret code used by the Armour car lines in making rebates was given to-day before the Interstate Commerce Commission here. The testimony was given by H. Streichmans, formerly employed by Armour & Co., as stenographer. Witness read from a book some of the code words and their meaning as follows:

"Laughsome—Rebate. Launch—Better arrange rebate there. Launching—Can make rebate. Laura—Handle rebate matters very carefully. Lava—Pay rebates from cash on hand. Laveallo—Rebate must be confidential. Wood Path—Interstate Commerce Commission." Here there was a ripple of laughter among the shippers present. The Interstate Commerce Commissioners smiled. Mr. Streichmans continued: "Woodprint—Avoid service of summons from Interstate Commerce Commission."

The laughter grew more audible. "Footnote—Meet Interstate Commerce Commission. Imprinted—Judson C. Clements, of Georgia. Imprintings—J. C. Yeomans. Imprisoned—Charles A. Prouty. Improbit—J. W. Fifer. Improbity—A. R. Moseley."

When the code words standing for the names of the Interstate Commerce Commissioners were read laughter and handclapping among the shippers caused Chairman Clements to rap for order.

Questioned regarding prices paid by various railroads for icing cars, Mr. Streichmans replied: "The Northwestern billed ice at $1 a ton. That furnished by the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul was billed at $2.50, with a rebate of $1 being granted on a counter claim. In the case of the Erie it was $1.25. This gave a large profit to the Armour lines."

Showing what he claimed to be discrimination among shippers, Streichmans declared that former Lieut. Gov. Alden Anderson, of California, paid 55 per cent. of the tariff rate on his shipments.

"Among those who received more than a 50 per cent. rebate," said the witness, "were Frank H. Buck, of San Francisco; the Earl Fruit Company, the Porter Bros. Company, the Producers' Fruit Company and others. Those who paid and received less than a 50 per cent, rebate were Stephens & Humphreys, S. R. Roper, Schnadel Bros., George D. Kellogg and others." He said the net cost of ice to the Armour car line on the New York Central was $2 a ton, on the West Shore roads $2.50 a ton, on the Baltimore and Ohio $2.50 a ton, on the Pennsylvania lines $2 and $2.50 a ton. Streichmans declared that the profits to the Armour lines on the icings ran as high as $500 to $600 per car. "The profits per car on shipments from California to New York," said the witness, "were on an average of $86.50."

Bigelow. The assessment is based on the report of Bank Examiner C. H. Bosworth. The amount of the assessment will reach $1,000,000.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON FOR MAY 14.

JESUS PRAYS FOR HIS FOLLOWERS—John xvii., 15-26.

By the Rev. J. E. Gilbert, D. D., Secretary of American Society of Religious Education.

CONNECTION. — Our last lesson (John xv., 1-12) was a part of the farewell discourse of Jesus to His disciples. It was delivered in the upper room at Jerusalem after the institution of the supper, in the earlier part of the evening on which He was betrayed. That sermon should be read entire, beginning with chapter fourteen and ending with chapter sixteen, nearly the same in length as the sermon on the mount (Matt. v., vi., vii.), which was at the ordination of the twelve. The latter part of this discourse was very tender, in which He made reference to the troubles that would befall His followers. As might have been expected His solicitude for them soon took the form of supplication to the Father in their behalf. After His teaching, therefore, came His prayer, recorded in the seventeenth chapter, the closing half of which we are now to study.

PROTECTION (Verses 15-16).—A godly man in an evil world is always in peril. Jesus recognized this fact and felt that the men whom He had called into His service would be greatly exposed after His departure. Their danger would be increased by the circumstance that they no longer belonged to the world—they had been separated from it and assigned to heavenly pursuits. (Matt. iv., 19.) As a consequence all would oppose them who lacked sympathy with the great business committed to them. This had been the fate of all who attempted to win men from lives of worldliness. (Matt. v., 12.) What shall be the dominant desire of the loving Master for those whom He has enlisted in such a perilous undertaking? Shall they be removed from the world, becoming hermits and so escaping the malicious intent? Shall they be translated to their eternal reward? It were far better that they should remain and be protected against evil, and for that Jesus prayed.

SANCTIFICATION (Verses 17-19.) Happy is the man to whom God gives power against evil, a power to keep him in the right way. There is another great need in order to be steadfast, an interior work called sanctification or cleansing. (I. Thess., v. 23.) If there is evil in a man it is vastly worse than any evil on the outside, as as enemy within a fort may more easily assail the garrison than any enemy beyonds the walls. But sanctification means more than purifying—it is the consecration which must precede the cleansing. Jesus prayed that the men whom he had called might set themselves apart to God and be delivered from sin, and He asked that this might be done, not by any direct and forceful operation of the spirit alone, but by that more gradual and effective method that uses the truth, which is the sword of the spirit. (Eph. vi., 17.) And He declared that for their sakes that is as an example and incentive, He had so consecrated Himself to the service of men.

COMMISSION (Verse 18.) Now comes a sentence which is not a petition, but an explanation, designed to give force to the preceding utterances, to show that what had been asked was important. Jesus declared that He had sent these apostles into the world, the commission being afterward delivered in a more formal manner. (Matt. xxviii., 19.) They had not gone at their own pleasure and for their own profit. If they had they might meet alone the hazard of the enterprise. But as they went as the representatives of Jesus they were very dear to Him, entitled to His care, needing protection and every possible preparation. It was because of their relation to Jesus that He prayed for them. Moreover, they went just as the Master Himself came, the latter at the Father's direction, the disciples at the direction of Jesus. They went to fulfill the mission (John iii., 16) which was in the heart of God when He sent the Son.

UNITY (Verses 20-21).—The thought of our Lord then swept on beyond the lifetime of the twelve. They would be in service but a few years. The longest lived passed away before the century closed. But other ministers, won by the words of the apostles, would appear to take up their work and carry it into all lands. For these later servants Jesus prayed as for the first, desiring their protection and sanctification. Nay, more—He would have the post apostolic men like the apostles in spirit and in usefulness. He would have the whole body of the ministry (what some are now pleased to call the clergy), all alike, bound together in a beautiful unity in Christ. This spiritual unity is expressed in a mystic way—the Father in Christ, Christ in the Father. By this unity Jesus expected and had a right to expect that the world would believe He had been sent. How could any one doubt in the presence of such a stupendous spiritual condition displayed through the centuries. (Acts i., 8.)

PERFECTION (Verses 22-23).—The desire for the unity of believers, especially of ministers, did not spring alone from a conviction of its power over the world, great as that must be. It would bring to believers themselves an incalculable honor and blessing, lifting them to a spiritual state of rare excellence. That state was called by the Master "glory," something which belonged to Him because of His union with the Father, something which he had bestowed in promise at least upon all who found union among themselves centered in God. This would be perfection or completeness in the church, the end sought in and through the gospel. It is not the purpose of Christianity merely to make individuals pure and beautiful and strong, but to unite such individuals. (Eph. ii., 22). The grand end sought is society, called the kingdom of Heaven, whereof God is the head, and men as subjects are members one of another in love. (I. Cor. xii., 12).

DISCLOSURE (Verse 24).—There is another power to transform human nature beside the truth and the Holy Spirit—it is the vision of the Christ. Paul refers to this (II. Cor. iii., 18) when he says that men by beholding the glory of the Lord are changed into the same image. This vision is imperfect in this life. When He shall appear we shall see Him as He is and be like Him. (I. John iii., 2.) Jesus knew that the men about Him did not know Him. They had that very night disputed concerning the honorable places near Him. (Matt. xx., 26.) Of all this they must be cured and they could be cured only as they knew Him. That knowledge would gradually increase, as it does with all Christians, during their work in the ministry in the years following. But Jesus would make to them a disclosure of Himself even greater than was possible in the flesh, and so he prayed that beyond the grave this little company might be near Him to behold His glory, a reward for their humble service, a method of their progress.

KNOWLEDGE (Verses 25 and 26).—The blight of ignorance of divine things is frequently presented in the Scriptures. (Rom. x., 3.) The world, those who live in the realm of the sensuous, have no knowledge of God, chiefly because they do not care to retain Him in their thoughts. (Rom. i., 28.) It was ignorance that led to the rejection and crucifixion of Jesus. (Acts iii., 17.) To bring knowledge to men was therefore a necessary part in the plan of salvation and elevation for the race, one part also in the plan which led to the advent of Christ and the appointment of His ministers. All this is stated in order. Jesus knew God. He declared the name and character of God to His disciples, who knew that as He came from God He had a message which they might receive as truthful. His object in making this declaration concerning God was that the love of God toward the Son might be extended toward them, that receiving this wonderful message of love a spiritual union might be effected of which He had already spoken.

CONCLUSION.—The main thoughts in this lesson may be easily gathered and briefly stated. First. Men are protected against the evil of the world by the power of God. He keeps them in the midst of temptation and trial. Second. Nevertheless, the evil that is in the heart of man must be removed, and that is best accomplished through the truth which is gained slowly by personal effort. Third. The keeping and cleansing of a believer is to be sought because he is appointed to a service in the world to continue the work which Christ began. Fourth. Men are bound together in beautiful unity when kept and purified and enlisted in the cause of Christ. Fifth. By this unity there may be formed an ideal society in the world, which will be the end of the divine purpose and plan. Sixth. As truth is an instrument of sanctification the revelation of Christ, Who incarnates the truth, is necessary. Seventh. That full disclosure, impossible here, will be made in His presence in the life to come.

BOOKS AND THEIR WRITERS.

"BYGONES WORTH REMEMBERING."

By GEORGE JACOB HOLYOAKE.

MISS GILDER.

I regret to say that the name of George Jacob Holyoake was unknown to me until this week when I made his acquaintance through two volumes of his "Bygones Worth Remembering," which Messrs. E. P. Dutton & Company are about to publish it. It seems that Mr. Holyoake, who was at time of the writing of this book in his eighty-eighth year, and who is still living, has been a friend or an acquaintance of most of the interesting men and women of his day. He has always been an agitator and his more intimate friends have been agitators. His best known book was called "Sixty Years of an Agitator's Life;" so he apparently regards the name agitator as no reproach. Mr. Holyoake has suffered for his views. He was tried and condemned for atheism and confined in Gloucester prison. Now, in his old age, he reviews the past for his own entertainment and that of his friends. In America, Wendell Phillips, Lloyd Garrison, James Russell Lowell, and other men engaged in the anti-slavery crusade were his friends.

In England two of his most intimate friends were George Henry Lewes and George Eliot. The former included him in the first public list of writers and contributed to The Leader. The friendship of this man and this woman he valued above all others, for, he says, "when I found a vacant place at the head of their graves, which lie side by side, I bought it, that my ashes should repose there, should I die in England."

Mr. Holyoake speaks strongly and with feeling in regard to the slanders that were circulated about George Eliot and Lewes. He says:

> I know of no instance of purity and generosity greater than that displayed by George Eliot in her relations with Mr. Lewes. Edgar Allan Poe was subject to graver defamation, widely believed for years, which was afterward shown to be entirely devoid of truth. George Eliot's personal reputation will hereafter be seen to be just and luminous.
>
> For myself, I never could see what conventional opinion had to do with a personal union founded in affection, by which nobody was wronged, nobody distressed, and in which protection was accorded and generous provision made for the present and future interest of every one concerned. Conventional opinion, not even in its ethical aspects, could establish higher relations than existed in their case. There are thousands of marriages tolerated conventionally and ecclesiastically approved, in every way less estimable and less honorable than the distinguished union, upon which society without justification affected to frown.

Miss Martineau On Other Famous Writers.

Another distinguished woman with whom Mr. Holyoake seems to have been on terms of intimacy, was Harriet Martineau, "the deaf girl of Norwich." In 1852-3 Hariret Martineau invited Mr. Holyoake to visit her at Ambleside, saying, "I should like a good, long conversation with you on the Abolitionists and American slavery, and also on the intolerable iniquities of the Leader." They drove around the country together, visiting Wordsworth's house and Brantwood, the place that Ruskin afterwards bought, but which was then the residence of W. J. Linton, the American engraver. Miss Martineau, he says, had an instinct for domesticity. "I never knew a more womanly woman. Her life was an answer to those who think that active interest in public affairs is incompatible with household affection."

Mr. Holyoake's opinion of Harriet Martineau is of the highest. He has met few men who had her intellect, her power of reasoning, and

> She had the unusual capacity, which the gods only are said to give—that of seeing herself as others saw her. She saw her own life and intellectual power in its strength and in its limitation, as though she stood away from them and looked at them; she saw them, as it were, palpable and apart from herself. Of imagination, which sheds sunshine over style, she had little. Her pictures were etchings rather tahn paintings. Her strength lay in directness of expression and practical thought. She saw social facts and their influences, their nature and sequences, with a vividness no other writer of her day did.

Miss Martineau lived twenty-two years after physicians said she might die at any moment of heart disease.

Had she not been a woman of courage she would have died, as was suggested to her. She understood that she must accept new conditions of life. She had a bed made in a railway carriage, and went down with her maids to Ambleside, and never left her house except to take air and get the relief which the smoking of a cigarette gave her, as she sat on summer evenings just outside the open windows of her sitting-room. She might have given herself greater liberty, for she did not die of heart ailment after all.

Of course Mazzini was one of Mr. Holyoake's friends, and he says of him that his knowledge not only of English but of English people was so extraordinary that it was hard to believe him to be a foreigner. Mr. Holypake thinks it a great pity that Madame Venturi, who was in constant communication with Mazzini during the many years he was in London, had not Boswellized him. Nevertheless, we are indebted to her for the best biography of him that appeared in her time. Mr. Holyoake, however, gives a few of his sayings which show the quality of his table-talk:

> "Falsehood is the art of cowards. Credulity without examination is the practice of idiots."
>
> "Any order of things established through violence, even though in itself superior to the old, is still a tyranny."
>
> "Blind distrust, like blind confidence, is death to all great enterprises."
>
> "In morals, thought and action should be inseparable. Thought without action is selfishness; action without thought is rashness."
>
> "The curse of Cain is upon him who does not regard himself as the guardian of his brother."
>
> "Education is the bread of the soul."
>
> "Art does not imitate, it interprets."

London was apparently no safer place for Mazzini than Rome. His life was never safe there. Mr. Holyoake says that he has been asked by his host to walk home with him at night from a London suburban villa where he dined, because a Royalist assassin was known to be in London waiting to kill him.

Gladstone and Mr. Holyoake.

While Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Holyoake were not always in sympathy in public matters they were still excellent friends. In speaking of Gladstone he mentions the "meteoric intensity" of his eyes; but he says notwithstanding this intensity he lacked quick recognition, so that he would pass by members of his party in the lobby of Parliament without accosting them, fearing to do so when he desired it, lest he should mistake their identity and set up party misconceptions.

> "Mr. Gladstone ignored persons because he did not see them. It should not have been left to Sir E. Hamilton to make this known after Mr. Gladstone's death. The fact should have been disclosed fifty years before."

On the first occasion of Mr. Holyoake's going to breakfast with Mr. Gladstone he was living in Harley street, in the house in which Sir Charles Lyell died.

> "As Mr. Gladstone entered the room he apologized for not greeting me earlier, as his servant had indistinctly given him my name. He asked me to sit next to him at breakfast. There were seven or eight guests. The only one I knew was Mr. Northbourne—probably present for consideration for me. One was the editor of the Jewish World, a journal opposed to Mr. Gladstone's anti-Turkish policy. Others were military officers and travelers of contemporary renown. It was a breakfast to remember—Mr. Gladstone displayed such a bright, unembarrassed vivacity. He told amusing anecdotes of the experience of the wife of the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, whose charm he said he could only describe by the use of the English rural term 'Buxom.' On making a time bargain with a cabman, he observed to her ladyship that 'he wished the engagement was for life.' Mr. Gladstone thought no English cabman would have said that. Another pleasantry was of one of Lord Lyttelton's sons, who was very tall and lank. He being in Birmingham and wishful to know the distance to a place he sought, asked a boy in the street who was passing, 'how far it was.' 'Oh, not far,' was the assuring but indefinite answer. 'But can you not give me some better idea of the distance?' Mr. Lyttelton inquired. 'Well, sir,' said the lad, looking up at the obelisk-like interrogator before him, 'if you was to fall down you would be half way there.'"

Of Gladstone's conversation, Mr. Holyoake says it was "like an oration in miniature. Its exactness, its modulation, its force of expression, its foreseeingness of all the issues of ideas, came at will. I never listened to conversation so easy, so natural, so precise, so full of color and truth, spoken with such spontaneity and force."

Spencer, Disraeli and Others.

When Mr. Holyoake first knew Herbert Spencer he had "a half-rustic look." He was ruddy, "and gave the impression of being a young country gentleman of the sporting farmer type, looking as unlike a philosopher as Thomas Henry Buckle looked like a historian, as he appeared to me on my first interview with him."

Writing of Disraeli, he described him as a "fossilized bygone to this generation; though in the political arena he was the most glittering performer of his day."

Germany and England, according to Mr. Holyoake, produced the greatest adventurers of the century—Ferdinand Lassalle and Benjamin Disraeli. "Both were Jews. Both had dark locks and faith in jewelry. Both were Sybarites in their pleasures; and personal ambition was the master passion of each. Both were consummate speakers. Both sought distinction in literature as a prelude to influence. Both professed devotion to the interests of the people by promulgating doctrines which would consolidate the power of the governing classes."

Mr. Holyoake has not much "use," as we say in America, for Disraeli, and he is not alone in his opinion when he sets him down as something of a mountebank. But any one who regards Disraeli only as a mountebank makes a huge mistake.

New Volume By New Author.

Those who love good books, regardless of the fame of their writers, will hear with much pleasure that there is a new volume by the lady who called herself "Michael Fairless" soon to be published. It is called "The Grey Brethren," and is made up of fragments in prose and verse. "The Road Mender," by this same author, is one of the most charming idlys ever written, and I am delighted to learn from the Messrs. Dutton, the publishers, that the book is gaining friends every day. It is not a novel. It is not fiction at all; but it is simply a charming bit of literature and life. This new volume is fragmentary, but it has much of the charm of "The Road Mender," particularly in the essay "By Rivers and Streams," for it is the outdoor quality of "The Road Mender" that makes it so unusual a book. It is not one of the "How to know" variety, but it is the voice of one who loves nature for nature's sake and who mellows in the sunlight.

JEANNETTE GILDER.

After the Divorce.

This is Sardinia's first contribution to the English world of romance, and it is one of fruitful promise. So illuminating is it in its pictures of life among a little known people that it arouses an interest both deep and keen. The question of divorce is not treated ehtically, except by inference, but the story shows a specific instance of its evils.

The novel, one of the most lifelike that has come to us from any tongue, portrays the sordid greed of a peasant class which is only less shocking than the well-known corruption of the rich, in that, instead of having wanton luxury for its object, it has the daily bread. It tells of the happy marriage of the beautiful Giovanna and the honest Costantino, a primitive, healthy youth who was devoted to his family and who never harmed a soul in his life. In spite of this reputation, he is accused of murdering a rich old man, and is sent to prison. In a sort of terror he tries to tell his story, but can only cry his innocence. Even his young wife believes him guilty, but she and her mother sell all they have in an unsuccessful attempt to get him off.

Then the years go by and Giovanna is persuaded into a second marriage. For the first time divorce is permitted by the laws of Sardinia and she obtains one in spite of her husband's letters in which he insists that he alone is her husband and that no law can alter this fact. She ignores him, is divorced and remarries for a home and food.

The real murderer is discovered and Costantino is set free. The description here of the blunt suffering and rebellion of the poor fellow is most striking and convincing. From first to last the reader's sympathy is enlisted for Costantino.

The book belongs to real art. In its careful conception and finish it reminds one of the Turgienev masterpieces. It has only one blot: A note from the publisher explains that the ending has been changed for the English edition. One regrets this as the ending is hasty, illogical and inartistic. Fortunately it in no way ruins the story, as it is perfectly evident to the reader in what way the author originally ended it, and the whole work is too finished for one blot to ruin.

AFTER THE DIVORCE. By Grazia Deledda. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

A Breezy Story.

"The Princess Elopes" is a pretty little comedy-novel, highly dramatic in its handling and possessing a theme of sufficient originality to pique the curiosity and keep its reader in that state of suspense deemed so necessary to the success of modern fiction. An attractive grand duchy somewhere under the shadow of the Carpathian Range but off the map of the world, furnishes a romantic background for the story of an incorrigible princess and her doings and her thwartings of a grumpy old grand duke with schemes that are not in accordance with her ideals.

The Princess Hildegarde is a charming, fresh-air heroine whom her uncle destines to be the wife of the red-nosed Prince of Doppelkinn, whom she despises. Her various attempts to keep herself single and retain her independence, her escapades remind one of a certain real princess in a certain real part of Europe. Many things happen fortuitously and otherwise. The poor princess is about to be entrapped when a certain blond giant steps over the frontier and the final bout against fate begins. The story is told by a young American Consul. As the reader will never rest until the last page is turned the end shall not be here related.

THE PRINCESS ELOPES. By Harold MacGrath. The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.

Billy Duane.

If there be any rule in heaven, earth or rhetoric that this book does not violate the reader has failed to find it. Here are the loose morals of the so-called smart set, the inconsequent acts of people possessed of a little learning, the short choppy sentences more fatiguing than even the over-long paragraphs, the "hysterical present" condemned by the scholars, the split infinitives abhorred by the purists, the anachronisms of the novice, the synchronisms of the unwary, the scamped chapters, the wobbly plot, and many other faults too numerous to mention.

And yet—in spite of the fact that the author has violated every convention and tradition, has put in everything she knows on every subject and has taken a whack at a few others, this book will be read from beginning to end. It has that intangible something that makes one read on. In spite of its absurdities, its impossibilities, the reader must find out in what corral the author is going to round up her cattle so that the book can end someway, somehow. And besides there is that redeeming touch of human feeling which gives a vital spark.

Here is a sample of paragraphing: The wife has heard from her uncle that her husband was glad to have her come home and she thus reflects:

He was.
Of course he was.
He loved her?
Certainly he did.

Naturally covering space like this makes a thick book and many chapters, but it gives nothing to literature or even to the manufacturers of the particular make of mechanical piano which is introduced into the quieted city of New Bremen after the impossible heroine has ordered a bonfire of all the instruments which depend upon human intelligence for their noise.

Some of the characters try to be funny and are simply pert, others try to be serious and are funny. Miss Mathews evidently has her own ideas on the color question. If her heroine Margie had associated more closely with her equals of another tint it is to be feared she would never have found that nobility, that power of self-effacement in Eva Elliott, that is not only unknown to the poor negro, but rare in any color.

BILLY DUANE. By Frances Aymar Mathews. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

The Commonwealth of Man.

With the 1894 Slocum lectures of the University of Michigan, this book includes a set of sermons inspired by what the author calls the socialistic fallacies of Edwin Markham's poem, "The Man With the Hoe." Dr. Holland believes in no earthly paradise, nor no Eden dreamed of by man in his prehistoric childhood. He avoids that pitfall of reformers who hope to redeem the world by lowering the heights to a level with the depths. He has a good word for those much-abused evils, capital, private property and distinctions in wages and honors. He seems an optimist who believes that things as they are are not so hopeless; that modern machinery is an advance on archaic laborious manual methods; that the increase in the world's wealth can be made an instrument of civilization, instead of being, as some contend, only a weapon of demoralization. The chapter, "The Red Cross," delivered to the Brotherhood of St. Andrew in Trinity church, Boston, is one of the most eloquent sermons ever written on sacrifice, endurance, the virtue of losing one's life to gain it. With perhaps only one of the sermons should one be tempted to take issue—that one named "The Sword of the Lord." Somewhat inconsistent seem in the mouth of a preacher such words as these: "The modern unbelief in the righteousness of war is but the bigotry of individualism." He goes farther than Hosea Biglow in believing that civilization does "git for'd upon the powder cart." He says that the world is Christianized by bayonets far more than by missionary boards. He is not quite logical about peace congresses. There is no reason why such institutions should put a barrier to civilization; that they should hinder the development of nations.

But on the whole the book is to be recommended especially as an antidote to the writings of "screeching reformers." It is far and away more logical than so much of the so-called ethical literature; it suggests a higher idealism as the goal for individuals and for nations.

THE COMMONWEALTH OF MAN. By Robert Afton Holland. G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York.

Little Burr.

Mr. Pidgin is evidently determined to make his case for Aaron Burr if it takes several books to do so. The present volume, though the last to appear, is properly the first in the trilogy of which "Blennerhassett" and "The Climax" have already been published, with "Little Burr," as he was called, for their hero.

The youth of Burr, the time when his character was being formed, and his career in the Revolutionary War now give his devotee a theme. Burr stands out in the narrative as brave, noble, almost blameless. The other side of the shield reveals the character of Alexander Hamilton as envious, jealous, revengeful, dishonest, thoroughly despicable. The political and social repudiation of Burr on that fatal field of Weehawken was, says the author, "the result of a conspiracy conceived in the most malignant spirit and carried out in the most infamous manner" against the man who had placed Jefferson in the presidential chair, against the Colonel, legislator, Senator, Vice President, whom the author further characterizes as the Warwick of America.

In the character of Billings is depicted that Richard of Denmark, husband of Hamilton's mother, who took so strange a means of revenging himself for Mrs. Hamilton's desertion of him. George Washington, Moll Pitcher, Theodosia Burr and other characters of the time give verisimilitude to the story, but the greatest of them is but of minor importance compared with the overwhelming interest the author strives to create around the character of Burr.

Additional Magazines For May.

The current number of the Confederate Veteran is one of the best issues that have appeared during the dozen years of successful life which have marked the career of that publication. Officially representing all Confederate organizations, it naturally becomes the medium by which the public is kept in touch with Confederate matter. The May number has a special mission, inasmuch as it contains all data of general and particular importance regarding the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, to be held in Louisville, Ky., June 14-16.

Some Recent Fiction.

THE MORALS OF MARCUS ORDEYNE. By William J. Locke. John Lane, New York.

The story of Marcus Ordeyne is vivid and interesting and he tells it himself in a natural, convincing way, every page relieved with a certain gentle humor. Sir Marcus is a bachelor, a retired scholar still young, with sober, quiet manners, a delicate sense of honor and a tender heart. By his own unconscious evidence he stands out clearly, one of those unobtrusive personalities who attract no attention, but who are loved for their real worth by a few intimates. Sir Marcus becomes guardian, by chance, of a very young girl remarkably ignorant of everything in the English-speaking world, for she has been reared in a Turkish harem. Her mother, the widow of an Englishman, had married a Turk, Hamdi Effendi, when Carlotta was a child, and the girl had grown up in the harem, her education consisting of a collection of questionable stories and some knowledge of English. The clashing ideas of Occident and Orient are very confusing to Carlotta, finding herself suddenly a member of Sir Marcus Ordeyne's establishment. That bare feet are highly indecent and bare shoulders eminently proper are among the things that puzzle her, also that she may be introduced to a man and not expected to marry him. There is something touching in Carlotta's primitive innocence, but there is another woman in Marcus Ordeyne's life who moves us to keener sympathy. Judith is subtler, more complex, she has suffered and still suffers and is one to whom the doors of the world are closed. Judith sounds the very depths, but she finds for herself the philosophy of life, "Beyond all the fires of love through which one passes there is the star of duty."

The story is interesting, unusual, the character drawing good, the style natural and pleasing.

THE HEART OF HOPE. By Norval Richardson. Dodd, Mead & Co., New York.

The Civil War has served as a setting for many novels, good, bad and indifferent, but it is not yet a wornout setting, and this latest addition to the war literature possesses both freshness and interest. It is first of all a love story between, of course, a Union soldier and a Southern girl, but it is in the scenes amid which the love story unfolds that one is most interested. Agatha Windom lives with her father just outside of Vicksburg, and throughout the story one hears the booming of guns and the screeching of shells which accompanied the siege of Vicksburg. The sewing girls at the Relief Society, the hiding of the silver, the quartering of the soldiers in the Wordsworth home, the "caterpillar" in which Aunt Charity and Agatha carried away the provisions, the hospital scenes, are all clear and realistic incidents, the cruelty and indignities of war are painted with skill and sympathy, yet entirely without bitterness. The plot, which is shadowed forth in the prologue, telling of the stealing of two little boys by a ruffian, is not at all new, but it serves to build a love story upon. The interest lies all in the telling, which is really well done.

A MAID OF SONORA. By Charles E. Hass. Broadway Publishing Co., New York.

The opening chapters of the book are rather confusing, the time wavering between past and present, until at last the father and mother of Felicita are left behind and her own story begins. The scene is in Mexico, and Felicita, after being stolen by Indians, its retaken by American soldiers, one of whom makes her his ward. After a college education Felicita goes back to her own people in Mexico to labor among them, and is finally restored to her father, her own love story ending happily.

PSYCHE. By Walter S. Cramp. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

Rome in the time of Tiberius affords the novelist a background for the tyranny and power of Sejanus, commander of the Praetorian Guards, and his attempt to make himself Emperor of Rome. The story deals with his various victims, Agrippina, the widow of Germanicus, and her two young sons; Gannon, a young Greek secretary, and his family, among the lesser known unfortunates. Gannon's sister, Psyche, a beautiful young dancer, and her lover, Gyges, who is a charioteer in the Roman circus, are among the few who finally escape the clutches of Sejanus and find leisure to be happy. The story moves well and is fairly interesting.

THE AMETHYST BOX. By Anna Katherine Green. The Bobbs-Merrill Co., Indianapolis.

The mystery of the amethyst box, which contained a drop of deadly poison and was the cause of a woman's death, is cleverly maintained until the last chapter. The book has been a favorite with the public through several seasons.

LADY PENELOPE. By Morley Roberts. D. C. Page & Co., Boston.

The purpose of "Lady Penelope" is simply to amuse, and it succeeds admirably. It is light, witty, and pleasantly exciting, for it presents a riddle that is not solved until the last chapter. The beautiful Lady Penelope Brading has eight suitors for her heart and hand, whom her aunt, the Duchess of Goring, styles collectively as "the horde." Penelope is unable to choose among them, but, being without humor and filled with enthusiasm for their reform, she sets each one a task distasteful but for his own good. Austin de Vere, who "wrote poetry and abhorred motors and bull dogs," is sent on excursions in lightning motor cars and is directed to get up a collection of bull dogs; the Marquis de Rivaulx, "anti-Semite to his manicured finger-tips," is set making speeches for Dreyfus, and so on all through "the horde." Penelope further makes a vow that she will marry one of the eight, but that the world shall never learn which one. She keeps her vow, through the assistance of a lightning motor which enables her to distance all pursuers, and thenceforward the antics of "the horde" are exceedingly suspicious of all the others, the real husband being bound to secrecy, and each keeps up his role with redoubled energy, since Penelope may not really be married after all. Bob, Penelope's young cousin, a "small boy" of fourteen, is excellently done. He is the first to discover who is Penelope's husband, but everybody else, including the reader, after deciding on each of the eight in turn, has at last to be told. The whole thing is delightfully humorous.

The love stories of the daughters of the family are interwoven with the tale of their various adventures.

MISS BILLY. By Edith K. Stokely and Marian K. Hurd. Lothrop Publishing Co., Boston.

ASKED FOR THEIR FREEDOM ON THE STRENGTH OF "DON QUIXOTE."

Convicts of Ocana Asked Spanish Government to Celebrate Cervantes' Tercentenary by Setting Them at Liberty, and Quoted the Romance In Support of Their Petition—Authorities' Ingenious Reply—German Novel, "Jorn Uhl," Brings a Record Sum To Its Author—Mrs. Humphry Ward Takes a Villa Near Florence—Fund Being Raised in England to Preserve Burial Place of Alfred the Great.

[Correspondence of the Courier-Journal.]

London, April 26.—From Spain comes the story of a quaint little literary discussion which the Spanish Government has been having with 900 convicts at Ocana. It has all been apropos of the coming celebration in Spain of the tercentenary of Cervantes, the author of "Don Quixote." The 900 convicts, who are inmates of the House of Detention at Ocana, evidently know their "Don Quixote" by heart, for they recently suggested to the Government that it would be an appropriate act of clemency to mark the tercentenary by giving them their freedom, and quoted a passage from Cervantes' masterpiece in support of their argument. This passage was that which relates how the Don himself delivered a number of galley slaves from custody because, as he remarked to Sancho Panza, "it seemed an act of cruelty to enslave those whom God and nature had made free, and he did not think it right that honorable men should be the executioners of their fellow-creatures."

But if the convicts showed themselves well up in their "Quixote," the authorities proved themselves no less familiar with the romance. They denied the ingenious request, and called the petitioners' attention to the sequel of the story, which relates that the convicts had no sooner got their liberty than they turned upon their benefactor, and to his great astonishment, robbed him of all his valuables.

I understand that from "Jorn Uhl," the novel which has made so great a sensation in Germany, and which has just been translated into English, its author Gustave Frenssen, has received $62,500, which is a record in the Fatherland. Over 180,000 copies of the romance have been sold, and Frenssen is at work on a new novel, which he expects to finish in the course of a year. Its scene, like that of "Jorn Uhl," is laid in its author's native Schleswig-Holstein, and the title will be "Aus Einer Kleinen Stodt."

After publishing "The Marriage of William Ashe," Mrs. Humphry Ward remained in England just long enough to see what the reviewers thought of her work, and to attend the rehearsals of her play "Agatha" which Beerbohm Tree produced at a matinee, and then left for Florence with her husband. The Wards have now taken a villa, called "La Fontenelle," at Careggi, close to the city of the Medicis and are planning to live there for several months.

Americans are to be afforded an opportunity to contribute to a fund now being raised for the preservation and excavation of the site of the ancient Hyde Abbey, where the bones of Alfred the Great were interred. The property has recently been acquired by the city of Winchester and a committee, which includes the Marquis of Winchester, has been formed to push forward a work which it is expected will bring to light many precious relics of the later Saxon period. The Abbey owed its foundation to Alfred. He purchased the site with the intention of erecting a monastery there, but death overtook him before he had time to carry out the work, and it was left to his son, Edward the Elder, to fulfill his wish. Shortly after the consecration of the church Alfred's remains, which had been given a temporary resting place at the old church of St. Swithin, were buried there. Soon afterward the body of his wife, Queen Aelswith, was interred there. His two sons were also buried there, and in subsequent years several members of the Saxon Royal House. But in 1109 the site of the Abbey was changed, and most of the royal bones were transferred to the new edifice. After that the old Abbey had a chequered career. It was finally destroyed by King Henry VIII. and over the old foundations the county authorities erected a jail in 1788. Now it is proposed to restore these foundations, in as perfect a way as possible.

PRIMITIVE TRAITS IN RELIGIOUS REVIVALS. By Frederick Morgan Davenport. The Macmillan Co., New York.

This interesting volume is an illustration of Harnack's proposition that religion has its secrets, but no mysteries. The author assumes the doctrine of mental and social evolution. He says that there is also a justified assumption that the typical religious revival is characterized by the dominance of emotion in mass and in control. He discriminates between spurious and genuine revivals, and says that in the latter there are primitive traits which need elimination or modification in the interest of religious and social progress. He does not advise eliminating spontaneous emotion, but controlling its exhibition. The work is full of curious history and enlightening parallels. It is a fine study of psychology.

AN AMERICAN GIRL IN MUNICH. By Mabel W. Daniels. Little, Brown & Co., Boston.

Musical people will be particularly interested in these impressions of a young American student in the old German city of Munich, but those who are not musical will find them delightfully entertaining. This young girl comes with her mother to study in Munich for a year, and her gossipy accounts of the pension of a German Baroness where they make their home, of Frau von Waldfel, to whom Europe represented various points where one might get good things to eat; of the ubiquitous German officer, of the ease with which a German maid is able to carry "three, four, yes, ten steins of beer" in one hand, are amusing and interesting. The great music teachers of Munich figure in the entire book, under their real names, and we learn that the pensions decline to receive more than one student, so that there shall not be incessant practicing. A performance of "Tristan and Isolde" at the Prince Regent Theater, where only Wagnerian productions are given, is described, and there is music, music and musicians on every page, with a little love story interwoven.

RUSSIA. By E. C. Phillips. Cassell & Co., London, Paris and New York.

This volume about the land of the Great White Czar is largely concerned with description of the principal Russian cities. A little history is presented and a view of the conditions of society and the lives of the peasants—not as black a view regarding the latter as we are accustomed to take. All the text is put into the mouths of two young Russian friends, one of whom has been absent from Russia during several years. The other proves quite an interesting guide, as he will be also to the young reader who wishes to learn something of contemporary and past events in Russia.

THE YELLOW WAR. By "O." McClure, Phillips & Co., New York, publishers.

The war between Russia and Japan has not been a war which could produce much literature that is accurate, as the war correspondents have not been allowed to get close to the scene of fighting, but "O," whoever he may be, has seen plenty of the bloody slaughter, which is termed a battle. He has gathered together into a book which he calls "The Yellow War," a number of short stories; they are called stories as a newspaper man would call any news item, for they are reports of incidents of the war, told in a business-like way and as if they were being written for a daily paper. They lose nothing of their strength by this mode of telling.

The author of the book is a war correspondent who is now in Manchuria representing a London paper, and has special facilities for getting through the lines into close touch with the real fight between the Powers of the East. The scenes described in the book are said to be real and are probably true, as a faker would have made things too vivid and thrilling.

The stories are all good. They hold the interest in a way that has not been equaled by any of the matter sent out from the war, and they give one a better idea of the actual conditions than anything yet published. Several personal narratives of officers in the Japanese and Russian armies are given.

A DIARY FROM DIXIE. By Mary Boykin Chesnut. D. Appleton & Co., New York.

As a representative woman of the South living in a strenuous and troubled time, Mrs. Chesnut embodies in her diary recollections and experiences that are eminently typical of the social and political conditions of Southern life during the war. Such a record of stirring events, written from day to day while each are still fresh and new, cannot fail to be vivid and forceful. Mrs. Chesnut was nearly forty years of age at the beginning of the war, and was well acquainted with previous conditions that had led up to it. Her husband was Senator from South Carolina, afterward an aide to Jefferson Davis and a Brigadier General in the Confederate army, and Mrs. Chesnut herself was in close touch with those men and women whose names stand out in the history of the Confederacy. The diary is written at Charleston, Montgomery, Columbia, Richmond and such other places as the fortunes of war happened to decree as her abiding place. Her style is sprightly and full of humor, and it is undoubtedly to this gift of a sense of humor that Mrs. Chesnut owes the cheerfulness with which she was able to bear the deprivations of war and to combat the despondency into which so many scenes of gloom and trial might have plunged her. The thousand and one little stories of various people and places lend to the volume a personal touch that is interesting and delightful, and as a picture of the times from the viewpoint of a cultured and highbred woman it is complete and valuable. The book is edited by Isabella D. Martin and Myra Lockett Avary and well illustrated.

Friday Evening, May 12.—The New York stock market showed further strength to-day and closed with good gains throughout the list, and market sentiment very bullish.

Money was easy, call loans ruling at 2 and 2½ per cent., with time funds available at 3¼ to 3½. Sterling exchange was steady.

July wheat was up ⅛c to ¼c on reports of cold, wet weather. Corn was off ⅛c on good weather in the corn belt, and oats showed a loss of ⅛c to ¼c.

The cotton market was off a shade from the highest point due to profit-taking, but it maintained a good undertone.

The Chicago cattle market was steady, also the hog market, while sheep and lambs were strong.

The Coming Naval Battle.

There is a general feeling of impatience, both in Europe and this country, in regard to the postponement of the long-expected sea fight between the Russian and Japanese fleets. From the time that Rojestvensky entered the straits of Malacca, now more than a month ago, there has been more or less expectation that each day might bring the news of an engagement, but as yet not a hostile shot has been fired and there is as much difficulty in arriving at any definite conclusion as to when and where the battle will take place as when it first seemed imminent. At first it was supposed that Admiral Togo would meet the Russian fleet on its arrival in the China seas and attack it before it had time to recuperate after its long journey from Madagascar and before it was reinforced by the squadron of Admiral Nebogatoff. But the result proved that if there had been any Japanese warships in that zone they had been merely scouts, while the Japanese fleet has been carefully concealed, though it is generally believed to have occupied a strategic position guarding the Formosan channel and the channels lying between that island and the Philippines.

In the meantime Rojestvensky has been availing himself of the French indisposition or inability to enforce strict neutrality, and has had almost as much benefit in the way of coal and supplies from Saigon and Kamranh Bay as if they were within Russian waters. He has tarried there long enough for Nebogatoff to effect a junction with him, and now it is stated that having, in consequence of Japanese protest, been warned by France to depart from her waters, the combined fleet a few days ago left for the open sea without indicating its destination. This is all that is indicated in regard to the movements of Rojestvensky, while as to Admiral Togo's whereabouts or the policy he has determined upon, there is absolutely nothing positively known. The inference is, however, rational, that having given no evidence of an aggressive policy, he has, from the beginning, determined to stand on the defensive and that, therefore, if there is to be a good naval battle it will be upon ground of his own choosing.

Upon this hypothesis it will devolve upon Admiral Rojestvensky to demonstrate the object of his long journey into Asiatic waters. Having left the friendly waters of France, with no harbor of rest or refuge for his fleet short of Vladivostok, once upon the broad ocean he cannot afford to halt and assume the defensive in expectation of an attack by Admiral Togo. There will be but one of two alternatives. He will either have to go in search of the Japanese fleet to attack it wherever he may find it or go to Vladivostok. Should he decide upon the latter course and take the other route, eastward of Japan, he may be able to make his way through the straits to the north of the islands and reach his destination without serious obstruction. Should he determine to pursue the other route and attempt to pass through the Korean Strait it is there that he may expect to find Admiral Togo and that the battle for naval supremacy in those waters may be fought. The indications for some time have tended to show that this has been the policy of the Japanese Admiral, to resist the passage of the Formosan Straits if challenged there, and, if not, to make the approach to the Korean Strait the scene of battle.

From the failure of Admiral Togo to assume the aggressive and attack the Russian fleet upon its entrance into the China seas and from his continued inactivity since its advent there, the inference has been that he felt incompetent to cope with such a force, especially when supplemented by Nebogatoff's squadron. This has been strengthened by an alleged opinion credited to Admiral Dewey to the effect that the Russians would win because of their superiority in battleships and heavy guns. But this statement has been denied, and the hero of Cavite credited with the avowal of his belief that the superiority in the personnel of the Japanese fleet would overbalance the Russian excess in ships or metal. The history of naval warfare, as well as that on land, shows plainly that victory does not always go to the heavy battalions and that especially on the sea the capacity of the commanding officer is a cheif factor in the result. Admiral Togo has demonstrated his skill and courage in action. Rojestvensky is as yet untried in action and his men have never been under fire. No superiority in weight of battleships or shells can counterbalance this disadvantage, and if the two fleets come together on the waters of Togo's choosing there is little question that this fact will be fully proven.

A Menace To Our Exports.

In the year 1903 the United States exported to Germany merchandise to the amount of $222,414,000, a larger quantity than was taken by Germany from any other country. No other nation sold to Germany so large an amount of goods, those of Russia, the next in rank, falling a trifle below two hundred millions. No other country except Great Britain took so large a share of our exports. Our imports from Germany in the same year were valued at $111,626,000, or about half the exports. Thus, according to the theory of those who insist on the balance of trade, our commerce with Germany is especially profitable, two-thirds of it being in exports. This commerce is now menaced by the new German tariff and the commercial treaties made with some of our competitors.

The Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor has just issued a bulletin, the object of which is apparently to show that the menace of the new situation is not so bad as it might be. It points out that of our exports in 1903 cotton represented $109,000,000, and that cotton entered Germany free and remains free under the new tariff. Several other commodities augment the exports that will remain free to more than half of the total. However, raw cotton is the principal item that will not be affected. It is not taxed because of the German policy of admitting such raw material free in order to enable manufacturers to compete with their rivals in foreign markets.

In spite of this showing it remains true that our exports to a value about equal to our imports will be affected by the higher German tariff and the concessions made to our competitors. The German mills must have our cotton, though even as to this they are trying to create new sources of supply. But the new tariff greatly increases the rates on breadstuffs and provisions, especially to those countries that have no commercial treaties, and so must pay the maximum rates. Corn imported from the United States is now paying ten cents a bushel. Under the new German tariff it will pay thirty-one cents, while from countries with commercial treaties it will pay but nineteen cents. Wheat, which is now taxed twenty-three cents a bushel, will be taxed forty-nine cents under the general tariff and thirty-six cents when coming from countries with commercial treaties. On other commodities which we have for export, with the exception of cotton and a few others, there are similar increases, and similar differentials, in favor of countries with commercial treaties.

It is useless to quibble about who will pay this increased tax. No matter how the price may be fixed in the German market, if we pay the higher rates, there will be a difference against us of twelve cents a bushel on corn and thirteen cents on wheat. If our competitors can supply the market at the lower rate, it will drive us out. If the price be fixed by our exports our rivals will share the protection to German grain to that extent, and their exports will be stimulated accordingly to our disadvantage.

At present we are getting the benefit of the "most favored nation" clause in our commerce with Germany. But we made a treaty with Cuba to admit her sugar at 20 per cent. less duty than the sugar from Germany. We held that the most favored nation clause did not apply to a reciprocity treaty where there was a bargain to give concessions in return for concessions received. The same principle, of course, applies to the commercial treaties that Germany has made. But it is expected that the existing arrangement with reference to the most favored nation will be formally denounced and ended before next March, when the new German tariff and commercial treaties become operative. Even if it be not, we seem to be estopped from objecting to the preferences given to other countries by reciprocity treaties.

It is pretty clear that this situation will put to a severe test the policy of the United States Senate to reject all treaties of reciprocity, to which the Cuban treaty is the only notable exception. It is well known how vigorous a resistance was made to the approval of that. If nothing be done to save our trade with Germany, McKinley's warning that we cannot go on forever selling largely to other countries while buying little or nothing of them will be impressively recalled to the minds of our exporters of breadstuffs and provisions.

The Haymarket Riot.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]
In view of the present disturbances in Chicago, will you please tell something about the origin and cause of the Haymarket riot in that city, together with any other facts of interest?—[F. P. R.

The notorious Haymarket riot was the outgrowth of a strike of 40,000 Chicago workmen on May 1, 1886. On May 3 the strikers attacked the workmen of the McCormick plant, who had not joined them in the strike. Policemen were called, and in the clash that followed half a dozen men were wounded. That night handbills, printed in English and German, were spread broadcast over Chicago, reading thus:

"Attention, Workmen! Great mass-meeting at 7:30 o'clock at Haymarket, Randolph street, between Desplaines and Halstead. Good speakers will be present to denounce the latest atrocious act of the police, the shooting of our fellow-workmen yesterday afternoon.
EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE."

Tuesday evening, May 4, came. By 8:30 o'clock a crowd of a thousand persons had assembled at the Haymarket Square. August Spies, eidtor of the Arbiter Zeitung, was the first speaker. Beginning with a rambling discussion of the labor question in general, he at last came to the subject of the Chicago troubles. Then he became inflammatory and vehement. "What means this display of gathering guns, cannon, bayonets, patrol wagons, clubs?" said Spies. "What means this calling out of the First regiment? Is it an entertainment for you? McCormick denies that he is responsible for the bloodshed yesterday. I say he lies. He is responsible for the death of our brothers."

"Put him in the lake!" "A rope is better!" "String him up!" These cries came from the crowd; to which Spies responded with: "Do not make useless threats, my friends, but when you are ready, act."

Then other speakers arose and harangued the gathering in much the same fiery strain. After this sort of speech and excitement had continued for a while two police captains at the station nearby, fearing a riot might result, led 170 patrolmen to the place. Raising his club to attract attention, Capt. Ward said: "In the name of the State of Illinois, I command this crowd to disperse."

Instantly there was a flight of sparks from an alley behind the speakers' wagon. A bomb fell with a roar in the midst of the police columns. There was an explosion. One policeman was killed instantly and others suffered wounds from which they died. Then a terrific scene occurred. Revolvers were drawn and a bloody battle was fought between the crowd and the policemen. Newspaper accounts differ, but it is pretty generally accepted that seven policemen were killed and sixty wounded, and a number of those participating in the meeting were killed and wounded.

A search for the bomb thrower was made, but he was never discovered. Eight agitators were indicted. Seven of them—Spies, Schwab, Fielden, Parsons, Fischer, Engel and Lingg—were found guilty of murder under Judge Gary's charge to the jury directing the return of such a verdict if the defendants were parties to a conspiracy, "even though the date of the culmination of that conspiracy had not been fixed." Neebe, the eighth prisoner, was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment. Lingg committed suicide. The sentences of Schwab and Fielden were commuted to life imprisonment, and Spies, Parsons, Fischer and Engel were hanged. On June 26, 1893, Gov. Altgeld pardoned the three men in prison on the theory that the bomb was thrown as an act of personal revenge against a police captain and that it had not been shown that the bomb thrower was instigated by the convicted men.

Race Prejudice In the North.

The severe criticism to which the South has long been subjected on account of its peculiar views upon the race question is finding a very marked evidence of reversal of judgment in the North. Theoretically, that enlightened portion of the Union takes the very high ground that there should be no discrimination on any score, but whenever a practical issue arises, as much if not more prejudice and bitterness is developed in that section than in the South. Mobs form just as rapidly to lynch a negro upon provocation in Ohio as in Georgia, while there is less tolerance for the negro as a competitor in the field of labor in nearly every Northern State than in any Southern one. In the latter all the trades are open to negroes equally with the whites, while in the North they are excluded from the trades and from the trades unions. It was in Illinois that the Republican Governor Tanner, in violation of the Constitution, prohibited, under threat of attack with the State militia, negro coal miners from the South from being employed to take the place of strikers, and in Chicago now there is slumbering vengeance for the negro strike-breakers from St. Louis.

But the latest manifestation of racial prejudice has taken place in San Francisco, where the School Board has decided to provide separate schools for whites and Asiatics. The principal occasion of this outbreak of feeling, which has been allayed for some years since it was so virulent against the Chinese, is the apprehension that the exclusion act may be terminated. As to the Japanese who are, under Federal law, free to immigrate to this country, the Californians do not like the inclination developing for their entering that State and becoming citizens. Hence, not being able to inhibit it directly they take this means of discouraging their coming. It is lucky for the country that the question of immigration is a national and not a State matter, or the restrictions would be so based upon prejudice as not to be limited solely as to race, but according to the vagaries of the popular element as to creed and other considerations. As it is now the only means of exclusion is by such indirect methods as in California or the shotgun policy of Gov. Tanner.

A Bad Marksman.

"Be always ready with the pistol," was the dying advice of an Irish gentleman, "one of the olden time," to his son. By this he by no means meant that the young man was to constitute himself a walking arsenal and be ready to shoot at a moment's notice or even without notice. He simply meant that where his honor was involved he was to respond to the requirements of the "code" and should at all times, when the word was given be ready to discharge a dueling pistol without any tremor of the nerves. The code of honor, which must have life for a blow, has been well characterized by Tennyson as "Christless," but it had many points of superiority to the practice of carrying pistols at all times and firing without any notice at all.

Mr. Isaac Rhea, of Owensboro, although exhibiting an undue willingness to use a pistol appears to have developed a singular incapacity for hitting the mark. He was ready with the pistol in a sense but certainly not in the Irish sense, and equally not in what is understood in other States to be the Kentucky sense. It is true that according to the traditions the rifle, and not the pistol is the weapon with which the Kentuckian excels as a marksman. In earlier days the lad who failed to hit a squirrel in the eye was obliged to pass a bad quarter of an hour with his father when he returned from a hunt. It is true the squirrel rifle has fallen into a sort of desuetude, but still the Kentuckian has a reputation for superior accuracy with firearms.

That this reputation is often not at all justified was shown by the bad record made by Mr. Rhea. Holding his wife by the throat with one hand, presumably the left, he fired two shots at her with the other. At such a distance it was impossible for him to make a record for markmanship, but he made a really wonderful exhibition of the lack of it, for he missed entirely. Mr. Rhea intended this as an answer to a suit for divorce and alimony, but it was clearly bad on demurrer. The wife had only asked for one-fourth of his estate as alimony, but she should now file an amended petition and demand at least half.

The scandalous exhibition of bad markmanship made by Mr. Rhea should teach our friends in other States that the Kentuckian is not always as ready with the pistol as he is reputed to be away from home. We have our good marksmen, and we have our "bad men," but the great majority of Kentuckians do not carry pistols, and are not at all expert in the use of them. The record made by Mr. Rhea is exceptionally bad, but the idea that Kentuckians generally are "ready with the pistol" is entirely unfounded.

Henry Clews has prepared this table giving the estimated wealth of the millionaires of the United States:

"John D. Rockefeller, 500 million dollars.
"Andrew Carnegie, 115 million dollars given away, leaving 250 million dollars.
"William Waldorf Astor, chiefly in real estate, 200 million dollars.
"John Jacob Astor, 175 million dollars.
"Gould family, of which George J. Gould's personal fortune represents 35 million dollars—150 million dollars.
"Marshal Field, 100 million dollars.
"Blair estate, 100 million dollars.
"W. K. Vanderbilt, 80 million dollars.
"Russell Sage, 80 million dollars.
"D. O. Mills, 75 million dollars.
"William Rockefeller, 75 million dollars.
"J. Pierpont Morgan, 60 million dollars.
"James J. Hill, 60 million dollars.
"Henry H. Rogers, 50 million dollars.
"Henry Phipps, 45 million dollars.
"John D. Archibold, 40 million dollars.
"Henry M. Flagler, 40 million dollars.
"James B. Haggin, 40 million dollars.
"James Henry Smith, 35 million dollars.
"W. H. Tilford, 20 million dollars.
"James Stillman, 25 million dollars.
"George F. Baker, 15 million dollars.

It will be observed that Senator Clark, P. A. B. Widener, E. H. Harriman, James Hazen Hyde, John Claflin, Mrs. Hetty Green and certain others are not mentioned. These must be a poor bunch of mendicants!

President Walmsley, of the New England Cotton Manufacturers' Association, takes a very hopeful view of an industry which has recently complained of the most serious depression. In an address the other day he declared that "the suggestion that New England's great staple industry is on the wane, on the decline, is worse than absurd; it is a reflection on common sense." But he admits that there have been two years of adversity, and he also concedes that the New England mills are not so well equipped to keep up with competitors as they should be. In plain words, they need new and improved machinery, but are threatened with labor wars if they put it in. Mr. Walmsley says that new machinery and new devices are absolutely essential and must be put in at all hazards. It seems pretty clear that this is indispensable to the prosperity of the cotton mills of New England.

A writer in the New York Times who speaks from actual test and experience declares that "the whole secret of burning coal smokelessly is to obtain complete combustion in the furnace and combustion chamber before any appreciable amount of the combustion gases meet the chilling water surfaces of boilers or other surfaces to be heated." In this view of the case—and a sensible view it seems—the smoke nuisance may be abated by properly constructing furnaces. The economy of it ought to commend itself, to say nothing of other less selfish considerations.

SET FREE.

Nat Patterson Released On Jerome's Motion.

WILL NOT RETURN TO STAGE.

RECORDER GOFF LECTURES FORMER SHOW GIRL.

CHEERED BY THE CROWD.

New York, May 12.—Nan Patterson was discharged from custody this forenoon. District Attorney Jerome appeared before Recorder Goff, in the Court of General Sessions, and recommended the release of Miss Patterson on her own recognizance. He indorsed the indictment against her in substance to the effect that he did not believe at this time and in this county another trial of Miss Patterson would result in anything but a disagreement. The order was accordingly issued at once.

* * *

Two Thousand Persons Cheered Her.

Miss Patterson left the Criminal Court building by the police entrance, on Franklin street, where 2,000 persons cheered her as she appeared. In company with her father and lawyers, A. Levy and O'Reilly, she entered a carriage and was driven to her lawyers' offices.

In his address to the Recorder, Mr. Jerome declared that this had been a serious miscarriage of justice. He said many of the newspapers had labored to create sympathy for the girl and that this case had "caused one more step in this county toward trial by newspapers, rather than trial by jury." He approved all his assistant, Mr. Rand, had done, or said in conducting the case and added:

* * *

Three Points Jury Agreed On.

"The people for whom I care approve our action. From the sane part of the community we have received nothing but fairness. I have information that admits of no doubt that there was unanimity in the jury room on three points—first, Morgan Smith bought the pistol; second, Nan Patterson took the pistol in the cab with her; third, Caesar Young did not commit suicide. I ask that the prisoner be discharged on her own recognizance."

* * *

Recorder Lectured Her.

Miss Patterson when she came into court was smiling gayly, but as Recorder Goff began to address her the tears came into her eyes and before he concluded she was weeping. The Recorder spoke with a kindly note in his voice that seemed to affect her very much. He said:

"The District Attorney has seen fit to recommend your discharge. I fully coincide with him, and believe that the interests of justice will be fully subserved by granting this motion.

"There have been two trials and in each of them the jury failed to agree. These two trials must have been terrible ordeals to you.

"There is nothing I can add in this case that has not already been said, but let me entreat you in all your future life to remember the terrible experience through which you have just passed and to permit every action of your life hereafter to be guided by that experience. I feel sure that you will do so; that you will remember your ordeal."

* * *

Jerome Criticises Newspapers.

In the course of his address to the Recorder, District Attorney Jerome criticised the newspapers for their statements about the expense of the case, declaring that they had made "gross misrepresentations of the cost of the trials," and that the accounts of "enormous expenditures flaunted before the public" were erroneous. He said that his own auditors had made an estimate of the cost of the case which did not exceed $8,000. In his defense of Mr. Rand, the District Attorney declared that the attacks upon his chief of staff, as he termed Mr. Rand, were "willful and mendacious," and that, though made by his "professional brethren," he considered them unjust in the extreme. He said he upheld Mr. Rand in everything that he did during the trials and considered his conduct of the case an exhibition of bravery on his part.

* * *

Will Not Return To Stage.

Miss Patterson declared she would not return to the stage. Her one idea, she said, was to get home as quickly as possible and take a long rest.

J. Morgan Smith and his wife, Mrs. Julia Smith, Nan Patterson's sister, were also discharged from custody by Judge Foster in the Court of General Sessions to-day. Both had been held on a charge of conspiracy in connection with the Patterson case.

* * *

Smith Re-Arrested.

As soon as he was discharged Smith was rearrested on an attachment for failing to obey a subpoena issued by the grand jury, and was committed to the Tombs prison for examination on Tuesday next.

Counsel for Smith said he would make application before the Supreme Court for a writ of habeas corpus to free him.

District Attorney Jerome replied that he would do what he could to aid in Smith's release, and Judge Cowing, upon signing the order for commitment of Smith, said he was also agreeable, and if he had erred in any way the Supreme Court would adjust the matter. Judge Cowing then fined Smith $250 for contempt of court in failing to obey the subpoena served on him.

* * *

Nan Sent Money To Pay Smith's Fine.

Miss Patterson received a check for several hundred dollars this afternoon, and at once sent $250 down town to pay J. Morgan Smith's fine. The remainder of the amount called for by the check was turned over to Lawyer Limburger, Smith's counsel, in part payment of his fee. Miss Patterson expected that Smith would be released immediately upon payment of the fine. The name of the sender of the check was not revealed.

"ON DIT."

Saturday, May 13.

On the morning after he was elected president of the Commercial Club this week, Victor H. Engelhard received in the mail a letter, bearing a peculiarly-written address, which attracted his attention. Upon opening it, he found that his official troubles had already begun, for the letter ran something like this:

"Dear Sir: I have the greatest invention of the age. It will make it possible for every home to have its own electric light plant and heating system. It will ruin the coal trust, the light trust, the oil trust and plumbing trust. I have spent several hundred dollars and several years in working it out, and I am now prepared to say that it is fully developed and a complete success.

"All I need is a little money to push it. My motto is 'ads that push and pull the business.' Knowing that your policy is one of progress and knowing the influence of your grand club, I am writing to you to ask your assistance. The club will not lose anything by it, either.

"Now here is my plan. I have some classical music that I want to sell for twenty-five cents a copy, and in that way get the necessary money. I want the Commercial Club to help me sell this music. Feeling sure that you will aid me in disposing of the music, I am, etc."

Lawrence B. Finn, of Franklin, Ky., was at The Old Inn last night.

A bell boy at one of the hotels was giving a lengthy explanation of why he had not answered a certain bell. When he had finished, a guest who was standing at the desk, said:

"That reminds me of an old story I once read. Napoleon had entered a German city on one of his triumphant marches, and the city authorities had failed to fire any salute in his honor. The failure displeased the Emperor, who had been received in magnificent fashion in all of the other towns, and he summoned the Chief Executive of the place to appear before him and give excuses. The official came in great fear and bowed before Napoleon, saying:

"'Your royal highness, we have one hundred reasons why we did not fire a salute in your honor. The first is that we had no cannon; the second, that we had no powder; the third, that we had no balls; the fourth—'

"'That will do,' said the Emperor, 'you may leave off the other ninety-seven.'"

Walter Fletcher Smith, of Havana, Cuba, was in Louisville yesterday.

* * *

"You wouldn't think that by just stepping on that plate people's shoes would wear away so much of the iron," said the observing conductor of an East Chestnut street car the other night as he called attention to the iron plate in the doorway of the car.

"You see there is more than an inch gone there. The car is an old one; was first use on Fourth avenue, then on Bank street, and then put on this run. The platform has been renewed several times, but you would expect that to get worn away. When it comes to iron it is different. I suppose the mud on the soles of people's feet does most of the work."

Judge J. Fletcher Dempsey, of Hopkins county, former Railroad Commissioner, is in the city to remain several days in attendance at the races. Accompanied by his wife, who is now at her home at Dawson Springs, Judge Dempsey will leave next week for California and the West. He will be gone about twelve months, and will visit many points of interest.

The meeting in Louisville will be held in November and the local milliners will see to it that the delegates have a good time during the three days they remain in Louisville.

MORE SHOWERS LIKELY TO FALL THIS AFTERNOON.

No Danger From Cyclone Or Tornado, But Rain Is Expected—Heavy Fall Yesterday.

Cyclonic conditions do not prevail around Louisville and the fear which has been expressed by many persons that the storm which swept over Oklahoma and the Indian Territory would come as far as Kentucky, is said by the Weather Bureau to be groundless. It is explained that the storms which destroyed several towns there were purely of a local nature.

The rainfall yesterday was almost half an inch, all of which fell in a few hours. The rain began before daylight and lasted until after 9 o'clock, when the sun came out and the heat began to get in its work. The thermometer was not as high as on the day previous, but the dampness made the heat felt. It grew cooler about dark and last night was comfortable.

DRS. MUELLER AND RAMSAY ON LIFE OF SCHILLER.

Schiller's life, character and his influence over the literature of his own as well as subsequent periods, furnished the theme of an able and interesting address which was delivered last night by the Rev. Ignatius Mueller, of the B'rith Sholum temple. A large audience was present and careful attention was given. The Rev. W. H. Ramsay also spoke briefly on the great German poet, showing what he has done for German literature. The occasion was the anniversary of the death of Schiller, which was generally celebrated by all admirers of the writer.

The Rev. M. Mueller's address covered the history of the early life of Schiller, after a preliminary sketch of the condition of literature in various countries at the time he was born. He showed that only Greece, France and England have really thought and written. Proceeding he then covered the influence which followed the work done by Schiller and how it had stimulated and built up German literature.

Music and the Drama.

It does strike one at first as being just a bit audacious to take Richard Brinsley Sheridan's "The School For Scandal" and transform it into a comic opera. And yet, when you think it over, you really take to the idea. Why not utilize this rare, rich old comedy to make a lot of the present-day offerings ashamed of themselves? Why not employ something genuinely good enough to outlast the years of wear and criticism, as the motif and basis for building a musical comedy of sanity and sequence—a musical comedy that is coherent and well balanced and develops a story convincing and easily grasped? That, in a word and as a query, describes "Lady Teazle," in which Lillian Russell was presented last evening at Macauley's.

To tell the truth, here is a combination novel and irresistible. Lillian Russell and comic opera go together—she got over that Weber & Fields habit some years ago—but to supply this Sheridan comedy as the vehicle is distinctly and thoroughly a fascinating innovation. Why didn't somebody think of it before? And yet, closely following is the thought that it must have been for the best, for maybe it might not have been as good under other and earlier conditions—certainly it could not have been better.

The period of history utilized offers just the material for a delightful play set to music. The costumes of the day were all silk and satin, lace and velvet, powdered wigs and high-heeled shoes. The people of the time reckoned only in the present—an ensemble of bright colors and romance, of coquetry and chivalry, of frills and furbelows. Such a chance is given for magnificent stage pictures, and there is no neglecting of opportunity. From a pictorial viewpoint "Lady Teazle" is a stage spectacle of glitter and splendor, where costumes and scenic environment have been supplied with a lavish hand and fashioned by artists of creative genius and deftest skill.

But of "Lady Teazle," the comic opera. The book of this musical version of "The School For Scandal" is by John Kendrick Bangs; the lyrics are by R. C. Penfield, and the score is the work of A. Baldwin Sloane. Consummate skill has been shown in the condensation of the original comedy to suit the requirements of the musical comedy, or comic opera, if it be so desired. Mr. Bangs has fortunately kept Sheridan constantly in mind in his work of trimming and adjusting, and he has evolved a clear, concise and sequential book. Mr. Penfield has provided lyrics so charming as to seem a necessary part rather than an embellishment to the production. And Mr. Sloane has supplied a score worthy of all else. His music is lifted above the tinkle and jingle of the average musical comedy. Several of the numbers are worthy of especial mention, notably "Charity," the recurrent motif of the score; "Wherefore and Why," "Auction," "In Dear Old Grandma's Days" and "Dear Old London Town."

And now, for a word or so about the piece de resistance of the entire production. Of course, it is Lillian Russell. In the development of the story, Lady Sneerwell says: "Never speak of ladies and age at the same time." The French have a saying that "a woman is as old as she looks." But what does all this matter? She makes one think of roses and sweet girl graduates, albeit matured, if not buxom proportions, and diplomas do not go together. It is Lillian Russell, surely in the bloom of youth, mistress of those same wiles and charms which were hers in the days of "Patience," of "The Princess Nicotine," "The Grand Duchess," "Erminie" and all the rest. Nature was gracious and generous to her, and well has she cherished the endowments.

But Miss Russell is not merely a woman of beauty. It must be confessed that the eye is busiest while she is on the stage, but the ear is rewarded as well. A character which fits her well has been provided, and she is gratifying and satisfying, vocally as well as in her dramatic work. Her most effective acting is in the quarrel scenes.

Miss Russell has a most admirable support; in fact, the splendid results of this production are due in a great measure to the excellent work of her associates. W. T. Carleton, who plays Sir Peter, adds strength and dignity to the ensemble. His is a splendid character portrayal, and it is really a constant regret that his splendid voice is not more frequently heard. Van Rensseler Wheeler is one of the best features of the performance, really sharing honors with the star. He has a good voice, works easily and naturally, and gives to his work earnestness, gracefulness and naturalness.

Carrie Reynolds, as Maria, is always in the picture, a delight every moment she is on the stage. Messrs. Taylor, Blake, Dansmure, Westford and Misses Saunders and Smythe are deserving of special mention.

The last, this is also one of the regular season's best offerings. "Lady Teazle" will be presented at Macauley's this evening.

There will be no matinee at Macauley's to-day. When the "Lady Teazle" Company arrived in this city, the manager was surprised to learn that the matinee had been advertised, and a sale of seats started. It appears that Miss Russell's contract specifies that she is not to play matinees, excepting in such places where the company is to remain a week. Through some mistake a matinee was contracted for at Macauley's, and ten days ago, when Miss Russell received the contract, she noticed the fact, and immediately apprised her managers of the error, and requested a cancellation of same before tickets could be put on sale. Her managers, the Messrs. Shubert, notified Mr. Macauley by mail, but the letter evidently went astray, as Mr. Macauley did not receive it. Miss Russell regrets the mistake, but says that she is unable to travel long distances as she has done this week, and sing two performances in a day.

HEADLESS BODY OF CHILD FOUND IN THE CANAL.

Bathers Make Discovery—No Evidence of Instrument Having Been Used.

The headless body of a well-developed male child was found floating in the basin of the canal at the foot of Twentieth street yesterday afternoon by Daniel Fitzgerald and some other boys who were in bathing. The body gave evidence of having been in the water for some time. It looked as if the head had been twisted off, as no signs of the use of a sharp instrument were evident.

As soon as the body was found Patrick Nelligan, Nineteenth and Portland avenue, was notified, and he in turn notified Coroner Kelly. Coroner Kelly had the body taken to the city morgue and ordered an inquest to be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Daniel Fitzgerald, who first discovered the body of the infant, is about thirteen years of age and the son of James Fitzgerald, who lives at 1848 High street.

Will Go To Creditors of E. D. Hendershot.

MEETING IN JEFFERSONVILLE

DEVELOPS THAT HIS FAILURE WAS ABOUT COMPLETE.

HOWARD'S CASE UP AGAIN.

A meeting of the creditors of Edward D. Hendershot was held with Albert Raab, of Indianapolis, referee in bankruptcy, at the office of Thomas J. Brock, in Jeffersonville, yesterday for the purpose of selecting a trustee in bankruptcy, Laurent A. Douglas, of Jeffersonville, being named. For the past eighteen months Hendershot has been conducting a gent's furnishing goods store in Jeffersonville, and in February, 1904, made a statement to a mercantile agency that his indebtedness consisted of an account of $41, which was not yet due. Several weeks ago a number of creditors filed suits in Jeffersonville against Hendershot to set aside a chattel mortgage executed to his father, Isaac C. Hendershot, October 13, 1904, and to restrain him from disposing of his stock.

An order restraining Hendershot was issued, and he then filed a plea in abatement to contempt proceedings on the ground he had no stock to dispose of, as it had been taken over by his father January 20, 1905, and he was acting only as agent for him. Following this came the filing of a petition in bankruptcy at New Albany and yesterday was the first meeting of the creditors, thirty-two of them being represented by Thomas J. Brock, Laurent A. Douglas and Lutz & Zollman, Jeffersonville law firms. At this meeting it was brought out that the failure was about as complete as it could well be, and it is not likely any of the creditors will get a cent, it is said.

The moregage made to Isaac C. Hendershot on October 13, 1904, was for a given consideration of $3,700, but it was contended this was not true. Yesterday, however, the case was put in another light by Dr. Hendershot producing checks amounting to the sum that he had advanced to his son, as follows: March 4, 1903, Louisville Trust Company, $1,500; August 20, 1903, Muncie National Bank, $500; December 1, 1903, Indianapolis National Bank, $1,000; January 2, 1904, Louisville Trust Company, $22.50; April 1, 1904, Louisville Trust Company, $200; June 23, 1904, Farmers' Bank of Mooresville, Ind., $400; October 13, 1904, the date of the mortgage, on an open account, $100, making in all $3,722.50. Outside of the mortgage the total amount of indebtedness represented at the meeting yesterday was $2,627.31.

Hendershot gave his assets as follows: Bicycle, $25; wearing apparel, $50; watch, $25; ring, $25; stud, $26; open accounts, $100; stock in the Bear Creek Mining Company, $25; total $275. There are two insurance policies for $1,000 each in the Prudential Life Insurance Company of America and the Equitable Life Insurance Company, neither of which are available at this time. He claims $600 exemptions, which is $325 more than his actual assets.

The creditors and their claims are as follows: Salmon & Cook, $148.50; Regent Shirt Company, $8.51; Gaford Manufacturing Company, $75.22; New Columbia Shirt Company, $158.25; Artistic Advertising Company, $17.64, all of New York; Kahn Tailoring Company, Indianapolis, $73.86; Howes & Patten, Boston, $105.25; Oshkosh Trunk Company, Oshkosh, Mich., $122.05; George P. Ide, Troy, N. Y., $135.95; E. A. Mallery & Sons, $237; the Mutual Hat Company, $15, all of Danbury, Conn.; the Acme Glove Company, Tiffin, O., $9.50; Rothchilds Bros. Hat Company, St. Louis, $157.75; Brodt & Shipman, DeKalb, Ill., $66; T. P. McCutcheon & Bro., Philadelphia, $110.42; Cincinnati Garter Company, $14; Isaac Strauss & Co., $61.30; A. & J. Plant Co., $40.20; A. & H. Wilberg, $47.25; Baum & Balz, $12, all of Cincinnati; Douker & Williams, $7.50; Wilson Bros. Shirt Company, $304.05; Fred Kaufman, $83; Carter & Holmes, two accounts, $37.50 and $58.50; McCurrach & Smith, $141.50, & Co., $53.15; Swann-Abram Hat Company, $106.44; J. M. Robinson, Norton Co., $53.15; Swann-Abram Hat Company, $54.35, all of Louisville.

HOWARD'S CASE UP AGAIN.

Attorney Argues Motion For Another Trial.

An argument was made yesterday by Frank M. Mayfield in the Clark Circuit Court at Jeffersonville on a motion for a new trial in the case of the State of Indiana against Charles Howard, who was fined $10 and was given from one to seven years in prison for obtaining money under false pretenses from Mrs. Bert Anderson by representing to her that he would appoint her an agent for a soap company. Howard, so it is claimed, worked the same scheme on a number of persons in Louisville, some of whom visited the Jeffersonville jail and identified him.

The argument yesterday was made on but one ground, it being claimed it was contrary to the law and the evidence for the jury to assess a fine of $10. Numerous authorities were cited in defense of the objection and to-day Prosecuting Attorney Charles K. Zollman will make his argument for the State. The verdict was prepared under instructions of Judge Montgomery, and was given to the jury along with another typewritten form to be used in case the defendant was found not guilty. After the verdict of guilty was found it became the duty of Judge Montgomery to affix the prison sentence, but so far this has not been done. The law, however, regulates what the punishment shall be under the indeterminate sentence act.

To Smoke Cigarettes He Will Test the Law.

INDIANA MAN'S INTENTION.

NEW ALBANY SCHOOL CENSUS IS 6,456.

INCREASE OF NINE SHOWN.

The anti-cigarette law, enacted by the Indiana Legislature at the recent session of that body, will be tested in the Supreme Court by William W. Lowry, a former resident of New Albany now practicing law in Indianapolis. Mr. Lowry a few days ago entered the Marion county courthouse smoking a cigarette and boasted to the deputy prosecutor that he not only smoked them but had 1,000 in his possession at home.

The matter was taken at once before the grand jury, then in session, and an indictment was returned without delay. Mr. Lowry gave bond for his appearance and the case will be tried in Indianapolis to-day. Should the decision be against him, and it is expected it will be, Mr. Lowry will at once take the case to the Supreme Court in order to test its constitutionality. Two men have been fined for violating the law in New Albany, one of whom is in the Floyd county jail serving out the remainder of a thirty-five days' term, while friends of the other paid the fine of $35 assessed against him in the city court two days after the trial and he was released. Since then no arrests have been made.

NINE MORE SCHOOL CHILDREN

In New Albany This Year, Total Being 6,456.

The work of taking the enumeration of the children of school age of New Albany was completed yesterday, the enumerators being R. F. Johnson and Justus Kraft. It shows a total of 6,456 children, white and colored, being a slight increase over the enumeration of last year, when the total was 6,447. The figures in detail are: White males, 2,872; white females, 2,816; colored males, 353; colored females, 415; total whites, 5,688; total colored, 768. According to the multiple in use generally, 3 6-10, the enumeration shows that New Albany now has a population of 23,241. Should the multiple 4 be used, as in the case in many Indiana cities, this enumeration will show the city's population to be 25,824.

In the enumeration considerable assistance was rendered by the children of the public schools. They were required between April 10 and April 30 to make a preliminary enumeration and report to their teachers on cards furnished for that purpose. These cards were turned over to the enumerators for verification and were found to be of great value. This system has been in effect in New Albany for three years, having been originated by Prof. C. A. Prosser, superintendent of the public schools.

TO RESUME ARGUMENT

On Demurrer To Motion To Quash Sutherlin Indictment.

The argument on the demurrer to the plea in abatement in the case against the Rev. U. G. Sutherlin will be resumed in the Floyd Circuit Court at New Albany to-day. A portion of the argument was made Thursday and postponement was had until to-day on account of Judge Utz being called to Corydon to try an important case in the Harrison County Court. Charles L. Jewett, of the council for the prosecution, will deliver the argument to-day and as numerous authorities have been cited it is probable that the case will be taken under advisement by Judge Utz.

Since the pea in abatement to quash the indictment was sprung by the attorneys for the defense, no end of speculation has been indulged in among the New Albany lawyers and the court officials of that city. It is declared by some that, should the court sustain the plea, this will render invalid the actions of James W. Dunbar as jury commissioner, and it is held there could be no trials by the jury selected by him during the present term, which will expire June 17. It is contended by some that should the petit jury be declared not a legal body, another jury might be selected.

NEW ALBANY NOTES.

New Albany subscribers not receiving the Courier-Journal regularly and promptly will please report to McQuiddy & Alberts, City Newsstand Building, 137 East Spring street. Cumberland 'phone 318 Y. Home 504 A.

—James E. Fielden, an old resident of the city, is critically ill at his home, 302 East Elm street.

—Mr. and Mrs. Udolpho Snead, of Louisville, have moved to their summer home, "Knob Edge," on the Silver Hills, north of the city.

—The Rev. William Schulz, minister of a church at Freelandsville, Ind., has been tried by a ministerial court and expelled on a charge of having gotten the best of members of his congregation in horse trades.

—In the Harrison Circuit Court during the last week the following decrees of divorce were granted: Ida B. from John A. Rochner, John W. from Bertha Timberlake, Ulysses S. from Ida B. Schaffer, Minnie from Herman Richert.

—The case of the State against Ella Graham, who was charged with petit larceny, was tried in Magistrate Fogle's court and taken under advisement until to-day. The evidence was of a conflicting nature, and the Magistrate was desirous of inquiring further into it.

—Benjamin Gledhill has been suffering for several weeks from blood-poisoning at his home, 911 West Main street, being affected in his right hand. He has submitted to a second operation for the removal of parts of the member, no satisfactory results having followed, and it is now feared that the entire hand will have to be amputated.

—George M. Moore, colored, a veteran of the Civil War, who served in Company E, One-hundred-and-nineteenth regiment, United States Colored Volunteers, died Thursday night at his home, 428 West Fourth street. He was sixty-three years old. The funeral will take place this afternoon and the burial will be in the National Soldiers' cemetery on Ekin avenue.

—At the June session of the Board of Commissioners of Harrison county it is probable the 2 per cent. tax voted the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company to aid in constructing an electric line from this city to Corydon will be levied against the property in Franklin and Harrison townships. Nearly two years ago the people of these townships voted in favor of the tax, which amounts to nearly $40,000.

—The distress whistles blown by the steamer Tell City as she approached the wharfboat yesterday about 5 o'clock caused considerable excitement along the river bank, many supposing the boat to be on fire. The steamer had been recently furnished with a fire-fighting apparatus and the whistles were blown to call the crew to fire quarters for the practice and also to give an exhibition to a number of passengers on the boat.

—Jacob Best, City Treasurer of New Albany, has notified persons holding city orders that they must be presented for payment on or before Saturday, May 20, as the interest will positively cease on that date. Mr. Best took up nearly $30,000 of city orders a few weeks ago, and he has the money on hand with which to pay all the outstanding indebtedness of the city, excepting that evidenced by bonds, none of which will be due for several years. The outstanding orders amount to $17,000.

—Judge Cook, in the Harrison Court at Corydon, has decided that under the provisions of the new law Town Clerks have been deprived of their judicial functions. A short time ago Todd Doll was arrested for fast driving through the streets at Corydon. He was fined by Town Clerk Reynolds and took an appeal to the Circuit Court on the ground that the Town Clerk had no right to impose a fine. Judge Cook sustained the contention as to the judicial functions of the Town Clerk, but entered a fine against Doll for fast driving.

—Yesterday the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company received four new open cars for summer use on the city line. They were taken to the barn and will be put into service in a few days. The company is having four cars which had been used on the Highland division reconstructed with new motors and new brakes, making them practically as good as new. It was hoped by the company that the cars on the Highland division would be in operation by June 1, but it is feared the improvement to the system will not be completed by that time.

—The Rev. Dr. James H. Ford, formerly pastor of Centenary Methodist church, this city, died of paralysis at his home, 1111 West New York street, Indianapolis, Wednesday night. He was stricken ten days ago, while preaching in one of the churches of Indianapolis, and never regained consciousness. Dr. Ford was born in Virginia, sixty-three years ago, and served during the Civil War in the Confederate army, reaching the grade of Captain before the close. He practiced law for several years, afterward entering the ministry. His wife and two daughters—Mrs. Albert Miller, of Rushville, Ind., and Miss Ruth Ford, of Indianapolis—are left.

—Miss Florence Whistler, for several years a teacher in the East Main-street school, has passed the required civil service examination and has been appointed a teacher in the school on the Winnebago Reservation, in Northern Wisconsin. She will not enter upon the duties of her new place until after the close of the present school year. Several teachers of the New Albany schools have been appointed to places on the Indian reservations. Miss Carrie Beers has a place among the Indians at Montana, and Miss Winifred Barlow is on a reservation in New Mexico, near the boundary line between the United States and old Mexico.

—Ollie Goodso, an employe of the J. T. Herron Company, contractors for the reconstruction of the Highland division of the Louisville and Southern Indiana Traction Company, met with a peculiar accident last evening. Goodso had completed his day's work, and was walking along the road on his way to the city. He observed an electric wire on the ground, and, without stopping to consider as to the danger, reached down to pick it up with his right hand. The wire was carrying a current of 550 volts at the time, and Goodso was tossed about like a plaything. His hold was broken, however, and he was taken to his room at the Anandale boarding-house, on Main street, between State and West First. Dr. George H. Cannon was called, and found the hand had been burned almost to a crisp, his injuries being of such a character that the member will probably be rendered useless for life.

SEIZED WITH HEMORRHAGES

While On His Annual Vacation Trip To the Western Country.

St. Louis, May 12.—[Special.]—The apparently lifeless form of William Moore, or Wilmore, a merchant of Nicholasville, Ky., was tenderly lifted through a window from the sleeping car of a Southern railway train to-day, and hurried to a private sanitarium. Moore left his home in excellent health yesterday, and accompanied by his wife, started for Denver on his annual vacation trip. Soon after leaving Louisville Moore suffered from hemorrhages. He almost bled to death before Browns, Ill., was reached. There Dr. Moter was called to the depot, and boarded the train. Dr. Moter came on to St. Louis with Moore and succeeded en route in stopping the hemorrhages. Even though Moore recovers, the journey to Colorado will not be continued.

THE LAXATIVE OF KNOWN QUALITY

There are two classes of remedies; those of known quality and which are permanently beneficial in effect, acting gently, in harmony with nature, when nature needs assistance; and another class, composed of preparations of unknown, uncertain and inferior character, acting temporarily, but injuriously, as a result of forcing the natural functions unnecessarily. One of the most exceptional of the remedies of known quality and excellence is the ever pleasant Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., which represents the active principles of plants, known to act most beneficially, in a pleasant syrup, in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to contribute their rich, yet delicate, fruity flavor. It is the remedy of all remedies to sweeten and refresh and cleanse the system gently and naturally, and to assist one in overcoming constipation and the many ills resulting therefrom. Its active principles and quality are known to physicians generally, and the remedy has therefore met with their approval, as well as with the favor of many millions of well informed persons who know of their own personal knowledge and from actual experience that it is a most excellent laxative remedy. We do not claim that it will cure all manner of ills, but recommend it for what it really represents, a laxative remedy of known quality and excellence, containing nothing of an objectionable or injurious character.

There are two classes of purchasers; those who are informed as to the quality of what they buy and the reasons for the excellence of articles of exceptional merit, and who do not lack courage to go elsewhere when a dealer offers an imitation of any well known article; but, unfortunately, there are some people who do not know, and who allow themselves to be imposed upon. They cannot expect its beneficial effects if they do not get the genuine remedy.

To the credit of the druggists of the United States be it said that nearly all of them value their reputation for professional integrity and the good will of their customers too highly to offer imitations of the manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., and in order to buy the genuine article and to get its beneficial effects, one has only to note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package. Price, 50c. per bottle. One size only.

NO DEFECT

In Hargis Indictment, Says Mr. Bronston.

WHAT THE TESTIMONY SHOWS

BELIEVES QUESTION OF ACCESSORY SHOULD HAVE BEEN PRESENTED.

HOPE IN COURT OF APPEALS.

Lexington, Ky., May 12.—[Special.]—In discussing the future plans of the Commonwealth regarding the indictments against the Hargises and Callahan, former Commonwealth's Attorney C. J. Bronston, who is assisting in the prosecution of the men, said to-day that, under the view of the law entertained by Judge Watts Parker in that he holds an accessory before the fact and a principal either in the first or second degree cannot be joined in the same indictment even in separate counts should the Commonwealth reform the indictment and make a separate indictment against James Hargis, charging him with being an accessory before the fact and making the necessary allegation that he was absent at the time of the killing, the Commonwealth would fail, because the undisputed testimony shows that he was not absent at the time of the killing, but present.

He further said that, should the Commonwealth charge, as Judge Parker admits it does in the present indictment, that he entered into a conspiracy with others and encouraged and induced Jett and Britton to kill Cockrill and was present at the time of the killing, aiding and abetting, the Commonwealth would then fail, unless it could satisfy the jury that he actually rendered some aid and assistance at the time of the killing, or encouraged Jett and Britton to act, by a knowledge or belief on their part that he was not present in his store-room in the ordinary course of business, but was there for the purpose of rendering them assistance in evading arrest and escaping detection and punishment. He said that under the reform indictment reaching accessory before the fact, the Commonwealth would be in no better attitude, because it could not prove that James Hargis was absent, and the same view of the law would apply, that if Hargis was present in the ordinary course of business, no conspiracy, no planning and encouraging, procuring and inciting, however clear, would make him guilty as principal in the second degree, unless the Commonwealth could show that he, in addition to his presence, not only entertained a purpose of rendering aid and assistance, but had also by some act or word of his, indicated to Jett and Britton that he was present and would render aid and assistance, should the same become necessary.

Mr. Bronston said his respect for Judge Parker, both as a man and a Judge, was such as to make him loath to speak upon a subject wherein his views were so essentially different from that of the learned Judge, both as to the law and the facts. Mr. Bronston said he had never believed that there was any defect in the indictment against the Breathitt county men which needed correction, and did not think the same could be corrected to conform with the views of Judge Parker and present fairly for the Commonwealth the case against Hargis. He said he was confident the appeal to the Court of Appeals will result in Judge Parker being required to present the question of accessory before the fact.

Barbers' Cases Passed.

By an agreement between the attorneys on either side the cases against Bernard Fotch and Ernest Kehune, proprietors of the Phoenix Hotel barber shop, and three of their workmen who were arrested for violating the Sabbath, were passed by Magistrate Farmer this morning until next Thursday. Thornton & Kerr appeared for the Barbers' Association, which is behind the prosecution of the men, and Attorney E. P. Farrell appeared for the accused. The former asked for a continuance and the latter agreed.

Must Change Fences.

At a meeting of the Fayette County Fiscal Court to-day an order was entered requiring all property owners of lands abutting on any of the turnpikes or dirt roads of the county to change their fences so as not to encroach on the right of way of any of the turnpikes of the county. The effect of this order will be far-reaching, as there is about 400 miles of road in this county, and it has been estimated that the cost to the property owners to conform with this order will be close to $10,000.

The matter came before the court on a motion made by the Central Kentucky Traction Company, asking that the line fences along the Versailles pike be moved back so as to allow the company room to build their lines without encroaching on the turnpike proper.

EXPERTS ON THE BOOKS.

FOR YEARS DANIEL PETRO WAS TRUSTED AT CAMBRIDGE CITY.

NOT UNDER BOND TWO YEARS.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 12.—[Special.]—Daniel Petro, for several years clerk and treasurer of Cambridge City and Democratic county chairman of Wayne county in the recent campaign, is missing and town trustees are going over his books. Though investigation has just begun a shortage of $3,500 has already been discovered, and it is believed that it will be many times that before work of overhauling his books is complete. There is no information as to his whereabouts or how he squandered the money. He was sober and industrious, and was implicitly trusted by every one. Though a Democrat, and the community is Republican, Petro was so popular that he succeeded in retaining the office and the direction of the finances of the town was wholly in his hands.

The defalcation and flight of Petro brought to the mind of the trustees that they had not demanded bond of him for two years, and the shortage for that time will be a complete loss.

IMMENSE PROJECT,

BUT CAN BE CARRIED OUT SUCCESSFULLY.

Theo. P. Shonts' View of the Feasibility of Completing the Isthmian Canal.

Chicago, May 12.—Theodore P. Shonts, President of the Panama Canal Commission, declared to-day that in the few weeks he had been actively at work on the affairs of the canal he had discovered that while the immensity of the project is likely to stagger even an enthusiastic supporter of it, the obstacles presented are by no means insuperable.

Mr. Shonts left to-day for Washington to resume his duties in connection with the canal. He goes to Panama to remain permanently about the end of June.

"I have found out that, while the building of the canal is a stupendous project, it is by no means one which cannot be conquered and put through to a successful finish. As a matter of fact, there are just four principal propositions and I enumerate them this way: Climatic conditions. The solution for this lies in sanitation. We will have the greatest sanitary experts in the world associated with us, and I am sure that we will overcome the climate.

"Labor—The solution for the difficulties involved in securing enough of the right kind of labor lies in fair treatment, fair wages and enforced sanitation.

"The engineering problem is not, perhaps, more difficult than others that have been put through successfully. Its immensity is the only staggering thing about it. The same organization and the same forces applies to this project than are used in less gigantic enterprises of the same kind, but on a similarly large scale will, in my opinion, make a successful job."

GAS TANK EXPLODES

IN PHILADELPHIA WITH TERRIBLE RESULTS.

Two Dead, Two Missing, Two Fatally Hurt and Nine Others Injured.

Philadelphia, May 12.—Two persons are dead, two missing, two fatally injured and nine others seriously hurt as the result of an explosion of a United Gas Improvements Company's tank at Point Breeze in the southern section of this city to-day.

The tank which exploded was No. 1, located in the yard of the company. The dead have not been identified. Five buildings of the plant were damaged. Four painters, who were at work on one of the buildings were blown off and two of them are missing. Thirty men at work in the vicinity of the tank were burned by the explosion, nine of them seriously. One man was carried 150 yards by the force of the explosion, and five others were carried 300 feet. Three of the latter were landed in a field adjoining a dwelling. Their clothing was on fire and the occupants of the house extinguished the flames.

W. T. Lane, superintendent of the company, said he could not imagine what caused the explosion.

BISHOP OF LEXINGTON TO PREACH FLOWER SERMON.

St. Louis, May 12.—Bishop Lewis Burton, D. D., of Lexington, Ky., is to preach the annual flower sermon Sunday morning at Christ Church Cathedral under the provisions of the legacy left by the late Henry Shaw. He comes of a family of clergymen, both his father and uncle having been distinguished in the Episcopal Church. He himself is the first bishop of Lexington, having been consecrated in 1896, soon after the diocese was created.

Why

Don't you give your heart the same chance you do the other organs?

Why? Because when any other organ is in trouble, it refuses to work, and you hasten to repair it.

The heart, the ever faithful servant, never refuses as long as it has power to move, but continues to do the best it can, getting weaker and weaker, until it is past repair, and then stops. It is just as sick as the other organs, but because it will work you let it.

However, it's not too late for a "change of heart," so remember

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Will give your heart strength and vitality to overcome Dizziness, Palpitation, Short Breath, Faint Spells, Pains in Heart and Side, and all other Heart aches and difficulties.

"My heart would ache and palpitate terribly, and at times I could hardly breathe. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure has restored me to perfect health, and I am very grateful."—

TWO GOOD THINGS ARE SUCCESSFUL.

Martin Doyle and Bluegrass Girl, Both At Good Odds, Reward Their Backers.

THREE FAVORITES WIN IN SUCCESSION.

Lexington Leader, Kerchival and Stroller Are Heavily Backed.

RACES RUN IN DEEP MUD.

CLARK HANDICAP WITH SPLENDID FIELD THE FEATURE FOR TO-DAY.

EVENT CONSIDERED OPEN.

ANOTHER large crowd attended the races at Churchill Downs yesterday, in spite of the fact that it was an off day and that rain fell during the forenoon, making the track very muddy. But in spite of this, the bookmakers and the talent split even on the day, three favorites winning.

Two very warm propositions were put over the plate by a select few who had splendid information. Both of these "good things" belong to Turney Bros., and both were heavily played. The first was Martin Doyle, in the fourth race, the feature of the day, and his price was hammered from 10 to 1 down to 4, and he simply won as his rider pleased. The other trick from the Turney stable captured the last race in handy fashion. This was Bluegrass Girl, a bay mare by Bermuda—Nannie D. She was quietly played by those who knew what they were about, and she won easily by two lengths.

The first three races were captured by favorites, The Lexington Leader, Kerchival and Stroller delivering the goods in easy fashion. Kerchival was heavily backed, and his victory did the bookmakers no good.

One of the features of the meeting is down for decision this afternoon, when the historic Clark Handicap will be run. Up to a few years ago this event was called the Clark Stakes, being named for the late M. Lewis Clark, who founded Churchill Downs and the Kentucky Derby. Since then it has been rechristened the Clark Handicap, for three-year-olds and upward, and ten high-class handicap animals are carded to start in the event. Ram's Horn, which ran second in the Derby, is named on the card, but is not likely to go to the post on account of the muddy condition of the track. With Ram's Horn out the race is considered very open one, and is likely to prove a splendid contest.

* * *

Favorite's Easy Victory.

The first race, for horses over two years old, at five furlongs, proved to be simply an exercise gallop for the favorite, Lexington Leader. He led all the way by from three to six lengths. The surprise of the contest was in Congress Hall, who, held at 20 to 1 in the books, landed the place from Varieties, who had been second choice. Hand Bill, who came from California with Dr. Leggo, received some support, but at no time in the race was he dangerous. Col. Jim Douglas, notwithstanding the local popularity invoked by his name, was at 75 to 1, but surprised even his admirers by failing to finish last.

The second race was a contest for three-year-old colts, over four and a half furlongs, Hyperion II. being a decided first choice at 4 to 5, notwithstanding the doubt of his ability to run in the mud. Kerchival, from the stable of R. C. Brien, was the hot tip, a representative of his stable going the rounds of the ring and leaving a hundred dollars in each book at odds of 3 to 1. This caused a drop in his price to 2½ to 2. The tip fully vindicated his owner's confidence. Breaking in front and going through the mud like a steam plow, Hyperion pressed him hard at the turn for home, but tired in the stretch and was content to finish an easy second. Romany Rye, from Rome Respess' stable, was third all the way.

The third race at a mile and a sixteenth for selling platers was simply a picnic for the old mudder, Stroller. He galloped with ears pricked in front from start to finish, the distance from his field varying from four to ten lengths, according to the wishes of his rider, Nicol. Florizel finished second after a fight through the stretch with the second choice, Ben Heywood. Stroller was held at 4 to 5.

Killing On Martin Doyle.

The gray horse, Silver Skin was considered by the wise people the "cinch" of the day, in the three-quarter dash for three-year-olds and over. His price was never better than 7 to 10, while Early Boy was held next in favor at from 3 to 6 to 1. Martin Doyle, from Turney Bros.' stable, on whom a "killing" had been made in his last start at Nashville, was posted 8 to 1 in the opening betting, on the strength of the absence of information on his ability to run in the mud. Even his trainer, Amos Turney, stated that he did not know whether he could run in the mud or not, although his sire, Capt. Sigsbee, could. Before the horses went to the post, however, money began to trickle into the ring on Martin Doyle, and when the bugle sounded he had been backed to 4. Whoever bet on him never had any occasion for uneasiness after the flag fell. After a long wait at the post, caused by Silver Skin's refusal to break unless he was in front of the field, they were sent away. Martin Doyle at once shot to the front and held a well-regulated lead of two lengths throughout, coming in without a speck of mud upon his jockey's shining jacket. Early Boy had no trouble in defeating Silver Skin for the place, the gray horse, although well away from the wire, having at no time been a dangerous competitor.

Skeptical Badly Beaten.

A big delegation of Tennesseeans and their friends seemed to think that the fifth race, a half mile, for maiden two-year-olds, had been already won by Skeptical, a [illegible] colt from the stable of E. S. Gardner. Skeptical was never better than 6 to 5. Lady Toddington, who had come from Lexington with a big reputation for speed, being the next choice at 2½ to 1. Vic Kinney, belonging to the well-known breeder, J. V. Shipp, was next in demand at from 5 to 8 to 1. Starter Dwyer was in rare luck in promptly sending this green and unwieldly field away without a single false break or delay. Lady Toddington showed her speed by quickly taking the lead, and at the end of the first quarter was sailing along in front, with Nondance four lengths behind and Tevis running in third place, the field by this time being well strung out. Down the stretch Lady Toddington maintained her lead to the wire, although Nondance during the home run had got much closer to the leader. Vic Kinney, who seemed to have been cut off on the first turn, came gamely through the last quarter and finished a fair third. Skeptical, none too well away, was never able to pass any part of the field, and finally died away next to last.

Bluegrass Girl Is Good.

The sixth race, a dash of one mile, brought out a varied collection of selling platers, among which, on form, there seemed little choice, but the personal popularity of and public confidence in Tom McDowell seemed to be the cause of Nominee, the Lexington turfman's entry, being made a redhot favorite at even money. Bluegrass Girl, of the Turney string, apparently really the class of the race, was backed from 4 to 1 to 7 to 2. Lou M., on the strength of mud ability and light weight, was third choice, while Merino, from the stable of W. A. Smith, was nibbled at on odds of 8 and 10. Tom Hayes' Saranola rushed to the front before the first turn was reached and set a merry clip down the back stretch, with Bluegrass Girl close behind and the rest of the field badly strung out. As soon as her rider, Austin, desired, Bluegrass Girl swept by Saranola and was evidently a winner when they turned for home. Lou M. came with a rush in the stretch and finished an easy second to the Girl, Russell A. securing third honors. Nominee was cut off on the first turn and was never afterward prominent.

The Clark Handicap To-day.

The feature of the card offered for this afternoon is the Clark Handicap at one and one-sixteenth miles, one of the most important events of the meeting. In years gone by it was a sort of second running of the Kentucky Derby and was named after the late Col. M. Lewis Clark. Later the Clark States, as it was then called, was changed to the Clark Handicap, a race for three-year-olds and upward.

In spite of the muddy track and the indications for more rain last night, a fine field is carded to start in this race. The entries include Ram's Horn and Phil Finch, the Williams entry; Six Shooter, Brancas, White Plume and other good ones. It is quite likely, however, that Ram's Horn will not start, as the colt showed his marked aversion to the mud in the Kentucky Derby, and after this race Capt. Jim Williams said the son of Brule would never run in the mud again as long as he owned him. Phil Finch, however, seems to have a chance in the muddy going, but Six Shooter, Coruscate, White Plume and others will be heavily played.

There are five other races for this afternoon besides the Clark Handicap, and one of these is a steeplechase event, a feature which is always popular with the public. The purse race at four furlongs for two-year-olds, seventeen entries and a corking fine contest, is sure to develop, while the last event of the day, a selling affair at a mile, is certain to furnish a fine betting proposition. CHAT OF THE COURSE.

William M. Fields, the Lexington breeder, who formerly owned Imported Wagner, came down Thursday night to see his Bluegrass Stake eligible, Butinski, work on the local track yesterday morning. Butinski is a three-year-old, and was considered the speed marvel of the Lexington track, and is in the stable of Dan O'Brien. Early yesterday morning, when the mud was softest and deepest, the colt was worked six furlongs in 1:21. His owner was much shocked at the slow time until he came over to the races in the afternoon and saw good horses beaten in 1:17½. He then decided to start Butinski in a six furlongs race Monday as a "prep" for the Bluegrass Stakes.

* * *

Just before the last race T. C. McDowell and W. H. Schulte met at the paddock.

"Look-a-here, Tom," said Mr. Schulte, "is that horse of yours a bear-catcher?" referring to Nominee, who was a hot favorite in the last race.

"If he is, I don't know it," was the reply. "He has never worked fast for me."

"Well, I'll just back my own, then," returned Flora Willoughby's owner, as he ambled toward the ring.

* * *

The fifth event on the card was something of a breeders' race. J. V. Shipp, W. F. Schulte, Turney Bros., Lon Jones, E. S. Gardner and R. A. Swigert started entries which they had themselves bred, while Col. Milton Young, of McGrathiana Stud, owns an interest in Vandance.

* * *

Old Faraday, Jr., who starts in the steeplechase to-day, is considered about the best jumper in the business. He has the extraordinary record of never having struck a hurdle during his long career. His weak point is lack of speed.

* * *

Starter Dwyer is a revelation to the little boys who have been riding in the West by his pleasant and kind manner with them. He is decided and firm, but he never uses a rough word at the post.

"Don't you cuss at all?" asked an old trainer, in amazement, after a group of turfmen had watched the start in the fifth race.

"No, I sometimes feel like it, but I never indulge myself," was the reply.

"Shades of Jack Chinn and Pettingill," laughed Amos Turney. "Why, at Latonia once I heard Pettingill for ten minutes turn on a torrent of profane language not a word of which I had ever heard before or since."

* * *

Secretary Horace Wilson, of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association, at Lexington, came down to see a little running yesterday. He was minus the mustache so well known in all of his pictures, and said that he fell down in New York and broke it off.

* * *

Judge George Denny, the Bluegrass politician, was a visitor yesterday. Judge Denny is a giant in stature, and when he strode into the ring he was annoyed all the time by short men in the crowd asking to tell them what the odds were.

RACING AT MEMPHIS.

Western Jockey Club Stewards Sanction Summer Meeting In South.

The stewards of the Western Jockey Club held their regular monthly meeting yesterday, and in a three-hour session granted permission to the new Memphis Jockey Club to conduct a summer race meeting from June 17 to July 8, inclusive, appointed George C. Perkins to represent the Western Jockey Club at the Latonia spring meeting, which begins on May 27, with authority to lift disqualifications arising from all causes except fraud and forfeits; granted scores of licenses to jockeys, trainers and valets, and revoked the licenses of trainers and jockeys who have participated at "unrecognized" meetings, says the Chicago Tribune.

The granting of dates to Memphis for a summer meeting and the "outlawing" of those who had participated on tracks under the control of the American Turf Association were anticipated, but the appointment of Steward Perkins to look after the club's interests at Latonia was unexpected, because the track is in the hands of supporters of the A. T. A., and its coming meeting will be held under the auspices of that organization.

Perkins was practically the owner of the course, but the courts in a recent law suit between Perkins and Col. Applegate decided in favor of the latter, and on Monday Applegate's backers, principally members of the A. T. A., paid Perkins $88,000 for 800 shares of stock, the controlling interest in the track. The power vested in Perkins to disqualify only for fraud and forfeits lifts the "outlaw" rule for that track, but as the meeting will be held under its jurisdiction it is difficult to understand what effect yesterday's revocations will have on the trainers and jockeys.

Some of the best known horsemen and jockeys in the West were placed on the "outlaw" list, and a meeting without them will be a cheap affair. Present indications point to a collapse of the Western Jockey Club, as it has only one race meeting outside of St. Louis in sight, that at Memphis.

The report that Washington Park would hold its regular meeting this year was regarded as a joke by local turf followers. Even if the State's attorney should make an exception of the South Side track in his fight against gambling, the "outlaw" rule would have to be lifted before it could conduct a successful meeting.

GREAT M'CHESNEY CREATES TROUBLE.

ST. LOUIS, May 12.—The great race horse, McChesney, alleged by his owners to be broken down, ran away to-day during secret exercise at 4 a. m., throwing the jockey, breaking down two fences and running into Sam Hildreth. It is believed the owners were getting him ready to make a big killing.

HIGH SCHOOL-MANUAL BASEBALL GAME.

Local Teams Meet To-day For the First of Series of Contests.

High School and Manual baseball teams will cross bats for their first game of the season this afternoon at High School Park. These annual baseball games between the two schools have always been hotly contested and interesting. Both games last year were won by High School by the score of 4 to 3. This year Manual seems to have a shade the best of it, but High School is never defeated until "time" is called.

Jack Sheridan, who has coached the High School team to victory the past two years, is with the team this year, and has been rounding them into shape. The way Manual has been defeating the crack college teams shows that they can play good ball. Stiltz will probably occupy the box for the Crimson and Thoben will twirl for the Purple and Old Gold. Play will be called promptly at 3 o'clock. The following is the line-up:

High School.	Positions.	Manual.
Cain	Catcher	Sprau
Thoben or Pinson	Pitcher	Stiltz
Booker	First base	Moss
Duffy	Second base	Appel
Shelly	Third base	Dougherty
Appel	Shortstop	Warder (capt.)

Arnold	Center field	Snyder
Roe	Right field	Boyd

SAYS MARVIN HART MAY FIGHT FITZ.

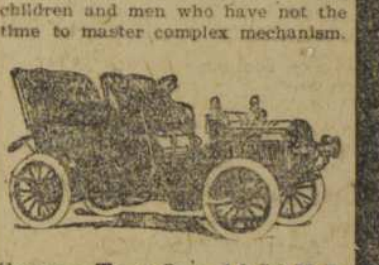

A SPECIAL from Philadelphia says: Marvin Hart, the heavyweight pugilist, left for his home in Louisville to-day. Before leaving he made the declaration that he had received an offer to fight Fitzsimmons on July 4 in the West. Until these negotiations are settled he will remain in Louisville.

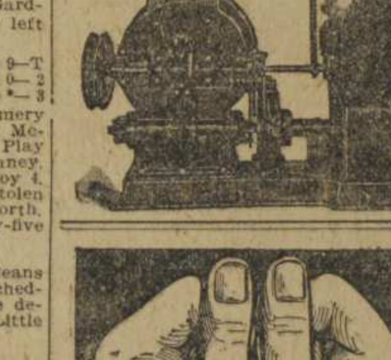

Hart was disappointed over his affair with Wille the other night, but thinks he can draw better in his next contest. Before leaving Hart said:

"I have received a good offer to fight Bob Fitzsimmons in the West on July 4, and have accepted. If Bob is satisfied to meet me for the money, and if I can beat him, it will put me in line for Jeffries. I am going direct home, and shall remain there until something definite is done.

"In the event of Fitzsimmons refusing the offer, the club has promised to try to secure Jack Root, and the same purse will be offered. If neither man takes the offer, I shall endeavor to get on a match with some good man in Philadelphia, and after that shall turn my attention to Jeffries, allowing the public to judge whether I am deserving of a match."

Cleveland 5, Washington 4.

Cleveland, May 12.—Cleveland won to-day's game from Washington and thus regained first place in a most peculiar manner. With one out in the ninth, Bay doubled, Flick's out advanced Bay to third. Then after a conference of Washington players, Jacobsen purposely passed Lajoie and Bradley. He then found himself unable to pitch strikes, and passed Turner over also, forcing Bay over the plate. With the exception of Stahl's home run over left-field fence, all of Washington's runs were secured on misjudged flies by the Cleveland outfielders. Hill's one-handed pick-up was a feature. NO TROUBLE FOR HOOSIER BOYS

To Take the Opening Game From Tebeau's Team.

THIRTEEN HITS OFF KENNA.

Feature of the Game the Splendid Stick Work of Thomas McCreery.

FIVE TIMES UP AND FIVE HITS.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 12.—[Special.]—Indianapolis experienced but little trouble this afternoon in defeating Louisville by a score of 8 to 1. Kenna was on the slab for the Colonels, and in three of the innings the Hoosiers bunched hits off him, and, coupled with a few errors, piled up a commanding lead. Cromley was assigned to the firing line by Manager Barrows, and he was very effective at critical times. The Colonels had a few chances to get into the run-getting, but when hits meant runs Cromley retired the side.

Both pitchers had the credit of striking out a side, Kenna retiring three Hoosiers on strikes in the sixth after two men singled, and Cromley retiring the Colonels in the eighth. Woodruff registered two of the six hits credited to Louisville. McCreery was the star of the game in batting, making five hits in five times at bat, three singles, a double and a home run. Carr also did well with the stick. Farrell played his first game at second for Indianapolis.

The Colonels had a chance in the second, but were retired without anything doing in the scoring line. In the last half of the second Swander walked and reached second on Kenna's wild throw to second on Roth's attempted sacrifice. Dickey bunted to Kenna, and the latter threw to third, but Swander was safe and the bases filled. Cromley doubled, and McCreery singled, giving the Hoosiers four. McCreery's home run in the fourth added one. In the seventh two singles were followed by Roth's triple. Dickey then bunted, carrying out a squeeze play, and Roth scored.

The only run registered by Louisville came in the third, when Kenna doubled and Kerwin singled. Hallman beat out a bunt, but Houser forced him at second, Kenna scoring. In the fourth Woodruff and Brashear singled, but the latter was caught napping at second. Dexter objected to the decision, and was ordered off the grounds by Umpire Kane.

Attorney Barker Explains.

The game scheduled for Indianapolis for Sunday, May 14, has been transferred to Louisville. Thomas A. Barker, the attorney for the Louisville Baseball Club, was asked whether this game would have any effect on the other games scheduled for Louisville season. In reply to the question, Mr. Barker stated that the schedule for Louisville would remain unchanged, as this game was transferred upon request of the Indianapolis Club, and in all respects will be considered as if played in Indianapolis.

"I would like to add," said Mr. Barker, "that the season books issued by the Louisville Athletic Association have been dated to correspond with the schedule, and as the game for May 14 is not scheduled at Louisville, the Indianapolis Club will have sole control of the gate.

"The holders of the season books will, therefore, confer a favor upon the Louisville Athletic Association by not presenting their season books on that date.

"Under the rules of the American Association the president of the 'home club' is vested with the authority to issue such books, and, as stated before, the Indianapolis club, being in the position of 'home club' (on account of transferred game), it would place the Louisville Baseball Club in the position of violating the rules."

London Wool Sales.

London, May 12.—A fine selection, consisting of 14,505 bales, was offered at the wool sales to-day. Competition was spirited. South Australian greasy combings were taken by Americans at 1s 3d. New Zealand crossbreds were in large supply, but they were readily taken by home and American buyers. Halfbreds and well-grown mediums were in sellers' favor. Cape of Good Hope and Natal greasy firm. UNABATED

Is Manufacturing Activity In Leading Lines.

NEW RECORD FOR PIG IRON

MAY BE ESTABLISHED BY MONTH'S PRODUCTION.

CROP CONDITIONS ARE GOOD.

New York, May 12.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade to-morrow will say:

Unsettled weather still retards retail trade and uneven distribution of moisture prevents crop prospects from attaining an ideal position, but the general result is much better than normal and far more satisfactory than at this time in 1904. Mercantile payments are fairly prompt, money is easy and abundant, while confidence in the future is the ruling sentiment.

The decline in Wall street to the lowest average for the sixty most active railway securities since last January has had no perceptible influence on business, and railway earnings continue to make favorable comparisons with last year's figures, the early returns for April showing a gain of 9.7 per cent.

Manufacturing Is Unabated.

Manufacturing activity is unabated, the leading industries reporting a minimum percentage of idle machinery, and pig iron production is expected to establish a new record of over 2,000,000 tons for the current month. Foreign commerce has again shown an increase at this port over the same week last year, imports gaining $2,106,066. For the first time in many weeks the comparison as to exports was unfavorable, but the decrease was only $275,353. Real estate transfers are very heavy in all parts of the country, and in addition to the large amount of building operations in progress the number of new permits indicate that much more structural work is contemplated. Little interruption from labor controversies is still cause for congratulation.

Structural Sheet In Demand.

A little irregularity is noticed in reports from the leading centers of the iron and steel industry, but it was not to be expected that production and consumption would continue to establish new high-water marks indefinitely. There is still great pressure for quick delivery of structural steel for bridges, buildings and cars, while practically all forms of railway equipment are in larger demand than supply.

After the stimulation of the special sales last week a decrease in activity for the dry goods market was to be expected. In the primary markets for cottons a few buyers still purchase for distant delivery, but as a rule operations are gain confined to current requirements. The advancing raw material strengthens woolens, in which duplicate business arrives more freely.

Textile Mills Well Engaged.

In all textile lines the mills are now well engaged. New England shoe shops are receiving additional fall orders, the prospect now being for as good a season as in 1903. While the hide market has lost none of its strength, it is less active, but there is a notable scarcity of country hides, which are especially firm.

Failures this week in the United States are 197 against 212 last week, 204 the preceding week and 236 the corresponding week last year. Failures in Canada number twenty-one against twenty-two last week and fifteen the preceding week and twenty-three last year.

WHOLESALE TRADE

Stimulated By Good Reports Regarding Winter Wheat.

New York, May 12.—Bradstreet's to-morrow will say:

Wholesale trade for fall deliveries has been stimulated by good public and private reports as to winter wheat, but heavy rains and continuously cool weather have interfered with retail trade, except in a few sections, and unquestionably retarded corn and cotton planting, which appears to be one to two weeks late. Spring wheat seeding, however, has been finished, and the increased acreage, helped by abundant moisture, has had a good start. The iron trade displays increased quiet in the cruder forms, with price concessions offered.

Buyers Inclined To Hold Off.

Buyers display a holding-off tendency. Finished trade reports are good because of large orders previously booked and owing to the receipt of additional good orders for rails and structural material. The building trades, as heretofore, offer an immense outlet for lumber, hardware and building materials generally. Railway tonnage in April fell somewhat behind March, but the gain in earnings over April, 1904, is fully 8.7 per cent., against a gain in March of 10.3 per cent. Trade on the Pacific coast is of a between-seasons character at wholesale. Reports from the South are mixed. Eastern trade centers report rather favorably. The improvement in the cotton goods manufacturing trade is more marked at New England points. The Eastern shoe and leather trades report increased sales at the higher prices ruling. The wool markets are very high, and at the West excitement reigns, with sales of wool on the sheep's back bringing prices 10 cents higher than the Eastern level.

Advance In Raw Materials.

The proportions of the advance in raw material are giving concern to the manufacturing trade.

Business failures for the week ending May 11 number 158, against 193 last week, 201 in the like week in 1904, 182 in 1903, 190 in 1902, and 192 in 1901.

In Canada failures for the week number 18, as against 29 last week, and 23 in this week a year ago.

Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending May 11 are 899,355 bushels, against 1,279,864 last week, 734,636 this week last year, 4,097,596 in 1903, and 5,172,634 in 1902. From July 1 to date the exports are 54,487,449 bushels, against 123,651,301 last year, 144,389,658 in 1903, and 219,814,270 in 1902. Corn exports for the week are 1,528,299 bushels, against 2,715,676 last week, 120,156 a year ago, 1,431,257 in 1903, and 82,795 in 1902. From July 1 to date the exports of corn are 71,507,386 bushels, against 49,579,106 in 1904, 58,377,829 in 1903, and 24,244,211 in 1902.

Hester's Weekly Cotton Statement.

New Orleans, May 12.—Secretary Hester's weekly New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement issued before the close of business to-day shows an increase in the movement into sight compared with the seven days ending this date last year in round figures of 114,000 bales, an increase over the same days year before last of 81,000 and an increase over the same time in 1902 of 88,000.

For the twelve days of May the totals show an increase over last year of 247,000 bales, an increase over the same period year before last of 184,000, and an increase over the same time in 1902 of 219,000.

For the 254 days of the season that have elapsed the aggregate is ahead of the 254 days of last year 2,287,000 bales, ahead of the same days year before last 1,701,000 and same time in 1902 by 1,993,000.

The amount brought into sight during the past week has been 164,377 bales, against 50,595 for the seven days ending this date last year, 83,483 year before last and 76,067 same time in 1902; and, for the twelve days of May it has been 320,821 bales, against 73,705 last year, 136,526 year before last and 101,355 same time in 1902.

The movement since September 1 shows receipts at all United States ports 8,843,756 bales, against 6,937,590 last year, 7,483,288 year before last and 7,307,107 same time in 1902. Overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac rivers to Northern mills and Canada 968,540 bales, against 887,627 last year, 1,026,855 year before last and 1,057,163 same time in 1902; interior stocks in excess of those held at the close of the commercial year 334,973 bales, against 154,410 last year, 43,045 year before last and 72,044 same time in 1902; Southern mills takings 1,708,000 bales, against 1,588,859 last year, 1,604,461 year before last and 1,426,022 same time in 1902.

These make the total movement for the 254 days of the season from September 1 to date 11,855,269 bales, against 9,568,486 last year, 10,154,649 year before last and 9,862,336 same time in 1902.

Foreign exports for the week have been 165,505 bales, against 40,303 last year, making the total thus far for the season 7,251,285, against 5,602,642 last year, an increase of 1,648,642.

Northern mills takings and Canada during the past seven days show an increase of 5,945 bales, as compared with the corresponding period last year, and their total taking since September 1 have increased 12,894. The total takings of American mills, North, South and Canada, thus far for the season have been 3,726,097 bales, against 3,634,134 last year. These include 1,986,222 by Northern spinners, against 1,973,328.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior centers have decreased during the week 69,404 bales, against a decrease during the corresponding period last season of 39,736 and are now 518,180 greater than at this date in 1904.

Including stocks left over at ports and interior towns from the last crop and the number of bales brought into sight thus far from the new crop, the supply to date is 12,017,236 bales, against 9,736,285 for the same period last year.

It must be remembered that the weekly, monthly and season's comparisons in Secretary Hester's reports are made up to corresponding dates last year, year before last and in 1902, and not to close of corresponding weeks. For instance May 12 this year compares with May 12 in the three previous years.

HESTER'S VISIBLE SUPPLY STATEMENT.

Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton made up from special cable and telegraphic advices compares the figures of this week with last week, last year and the year before. It shows a decrease for the week just closed of 13,381 bales, against a decrease of 151,347 last year and a decrease of 103,322 year before last.

The total visible is 4,064,443 bales, against 4,077,824 last week, 2,728,580 last year and 2,872,408 year before last. Of this the total of American cotton is 2,764,443 bales, against 2,823,824 last week, 1,643,580 last year and 1,733,403 year before last, and of all other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 1,300,000 against 1,254,000 last week, 1,085,000 last year and 1,139,000 year before last.

TAKING OF AMERICAN COTTON BY SPINNERS THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

Secretary Hester gives the taking of American cotton by spinners throughout the world as follows, in round numbers:

This week 224,000 bales, this year against 166,000 last year, 194,000 year before last.

Total since September 1, this year 9,538,000 bales, against 8,441,000 last year, and 9,200,000 the year before.

Of this Northern spinners and Canada took 1,986,000 bales this year, against 1,973,000 last year, and 1,988,000 the year before; Southern spinners 1,740,000 bales, against 1,601,000 last year, and 1,633,000 the year before; and foreign spinners 5,812,000 bales, against 4,867,000 last year, and 5,579,000 the year before.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MONETARY.

Friday Evening, May 12.—The outlook for to-morrow is for a fairly good New York bank statement, though it may not prove up to expectations on account of the payment of Government deposits to the United States Treasury, some payments having been made in advance of the call. The banks of New York now appear to be in a very strong position. Business with the local banks continues rather quiet, though a good demand is reported from Main street institutions. Rates are quoted at 5 and 6 per cent., and New York exchange rules at 25c premium.

The report of the Clearing-house to-day was as follows:

Day's clearing	$1,785,811
Balance	286,087

Coincident with the improvement in the New York market the local market showed decided vigor, and there was good trading both on the curb and the Stock Exchange, while orders were evidently in the market in goodly numbers. Sales on the exchange were mainly of small lots, but the increased animation in the bidding indicated the improvement. Rochester Railway and Light 5s sold at par and interest, Union National Bank stock brought 211, and a little lot of Louisville Heating common sold for 64, with other small lots offered at 67, the quotation for larger lots remaining at 70 asked. Louisville Bridge stock was stronger, 130 being bid and 132 asked, and there was more evidence that the ideas of buyers and sellers were approaching a parity on Tobacco Warehouse common. Home Telephone showed some strength, being advanced to 52½ bid, with 56 asked at the close. There was a good deal of spirited bidding for Louisville Traction common, which opened at 94¼ and advanced to 97, at which price a round lot sold. Louisville Traction preferred was also firm, closing at 125¼ bid on the report of 2,000 shares sold privately, which went into strong hands. Rochester Railway preferred warrants sold at 50c and 53c each. In the curb market St. Louis United Railways common opened at 31 to 31¼ and closed at 31 to 31½. The preferred closed at 80¼ bid and 80½ asked. The 4 per cent. bonds close dat 89¼ to 89¾. L. and N. collateral trust 4s were 98¼ bid and 98⅝ asked, the unified 4s 103⅝ to 104. New Orleans common, "when issued," 31½ bid, which is considerably higher, the preferred stock 77⅝ to 79 and the bonds 94 bid.

In the New York market Detroit United was very strong, opening at 84⅞ and selling as high as 87, possibly due to expectations of an increase in the dividend rate. Toledo was also higher, opening at 33½ and selling at 33⅞. San Francisco common sold at 41¼.

On July 1, it is said, it will be decided whether or not it is advisable to increase the dividend rate of the Detroit United. The action of the stock to-day, in advancing from 84⅞ to 87 in the New York market is probably in anticipation of favorable action.

Louisville Gas stock closed on the Stock Exchange to-day at 149¼ bid and 153 asked. Owing to a transposition of figures on the daily Stock Exchange sheet Gas stock was made to appear as 153 bid.

A telegram from Toledo to the Wall Street Journal says:

"E. W. Moore, of the Everett-Moore syndicate, is quoted as saying that the Toledo Railways and Light dividend will probably be increased to 3 per cent., and finally to 4 per cent. He says the present dividend rate will surely be maintained."

A big sale of Louisville Traction preferred stock, amounting to 2,000 shares, has been consummated privately, the object of the seller being to put the money into nondividend-paying securities. The price was a good one, but cannot be stated for publication.

It can be stated that there are many reasons for believing that Rochester Railway and Light common will pay a dividend in July. Information which is deemed reliable is to the effect that "it will undoubtedly do so." Of course, such a statement must be taken with "a grain of salt," for the Clarks do not take anybody into their confidence in regard to such matters, as, for example, in the case of East St. Louis and Suburban, which paid a dividend much sooner than certain people expected. It can be stated, however, that the Rochester Railway Company has declared a dividend of 1 per cent. on its common stock, all of which is practically owned by the Rochester Railway and Light Company. This dividend is payable June 1 to stock registered May 31. Naturally the question arises, what is the object in declaring this dividend? Thus far the revenues from other sources have been sufficient to pay the dividends on Rochester Railway and Light preferred and the interest on Rochester Railway and Light 5s. These revenues have been considerable, have steadily increased, and are presumably still more than ample to meet these charges. If expenditures out of earnings were necessary at this time on the various properties they would naturally be included under the head of operating expenses for the operating companies, and not credited in a dividend to the Rochester Railway and Light Company. For the first six months of its organization the Rochester Railway and Light Company showed an earning capacity on its stock of 4⅝ per cent. It is not unreasonable to believe that with the benefit of economies and the development of business that the company will earn for the full year 5 or 5½ per cent. on the stock. Five per cent. would be equivalent to $325,000. It takes $260,000 to pay 4 per cent. dividends, and the company could probably well afford to begin the fiscal year of 1905-6 by paying 1 per cent. quarterly. The property is developing a very large and increasing business. Columbus expects a dividend, the price of the stock gives color to that expectation, and all the indications point that way. Still, holders should not bank on it too confidently, for as stated, it's a good guess that only the Clarks themselves know what they are going to do. And then again the 1 per cent. dividend on old Rochester common would not be sufficient to pay 1 per cent. on Rochester Railway and Light common.

The Chicago Subway is regarded by mercantile interests in Chicago as a solution of future teamsters' strikes. The work of connecting the subway with the big mercantile houses is progressing, but has not advanced far enough to offset to any considerable extent the delay in shipping goods resulting from the teamsters' strike. The subway is devoting more attention to connections with the various railroad lines than it is to the extension of branches into the big business houses. Permanent officers and directors of the Chicago Subway will be elected within the next two weeks. The board will be made up of representative business and railroad men. Practically every road entering Chicago will be represented on the board.

It is stated that the Western Pacific is to be built as the Great Northern was built. There will be no big commissions paid to contracting corporations. The contractors will be hired to build the road by the officials of the road and will be paid for the work alone. Contracts will be let at as close a price as can be obtained. "There is to be no 'graft' in this project," says one of the directors. "It is not built to sell, nor is it built to injure any one. The object of its existence is the making of money, and it will be capitalized as close to cost as it can be.

"The payment of a controlling interest in the stock to the Denver lines is a 'quid pro quo' for the backing of those lines in the matter of interest pending the completion of the railroad."

The $45,000,000 raised by sale of 5 per cent. bonds should go far toward the initial construction expenses. It will not build and equip the entire line. It should, however, carry the project far enough to enable it to earn its fixed charges, $2,500,000 per annum, and so take the greater part of the burden from the two Denver roads. Equipment may be paid for under equipment trusts.

R. R. Govin, of the firm of H. B. Hollins & Co., of New York, is quoted as follows on the Chicago street railway situation. "The people who control the traction companies in Chicago will do all in their power to help Mayor Dunne to carry out his ante-election promises with respect to giving the people of Chicago an opportunity to vote on the operation by the city of those lines, the franchises for which have expired. If the people vote favorably on that proposition and the operation of the lines just referred to is a success, no doubt the city will be ready to purchase the lines, the franchises for which have not expired and which are now owned and operated by the various companies. In case the latter and the city authorities cannot agree upon a price for these properties and in case the city votes against the purchase and operation of them there is no reason why the companies should not continue to operate the lines which they own and control, and the city to operate the lines for which the franchises have expired, under some friendly agreement."

Mr. Govin explains that the franchises for the properties now owned and controlled by the various companies have fifty-seven years yet to run. With respect to the franchises of the City Passenger Railway Company, which Judge Grosscup recently ruled expired, Mr. Govin explained that it was contended by the company that the franchises did not expire until 1906, whereas the city maintained that it expired in 1904. Inasmuch as a three-fifths affirmative vote of the people is required before the city can operate any of the traction lines in Chicago, and as an election at which that question can come up for vote will not be held until next November, and as the city is not prepared to operate any lines at present, the company will continue to operate the city passenger lines for several months at least.

WEEKLY COTTON LETTER.

New York.—Since May 1 the cotton market has come more decidedly under the influence of the new crop, and as weather has been far from favorable prices have advanced from ½c to something over $3 per bale. On the advance there has been more cotton sold in the South, which was not for sale at lower prices, and spinners appear to be getting cotton rather freely on a basis of something over 7½ for contracts in New York. The market this week has at times been active, but without the presence of general speculation necessary to carry on the rise and endow operators with confidence to buy freely. This has been due to a turn in weather, bringing about necessary sunshine and conditions are now all that could be desired. As a result of the excessive rains a week or two ago the crop now requires plenty of sunshine to dry out the soil and enable planters to work the fields and get out the weeds. The feature of the week has been the persistent buying of July contracts in New York by well known New York speculators, who have recently become bulls on the cotton market. The buying has been attended with considerable manipulation and those conversant with operations in the New York market are convinced that to some extent at least, purchasers of July are being hedged with sales of October. If the bull movement has back of it conviction and high prices this must be based on the theory that the acreage is materially reduced, and that the outlook for the new crop is not such as to warrant hopes of another big yield. In this event cotton will be much more valuable in October than in July and suspicion is aroused by the selling of October on every advance. It looks very much as though a liberal effort was being made to run in shorts in July and after that is accomplished the rapidly increasing stock of cotton in New York will be turned over on July contracts and the outlook then would be somewhat different from what it is to-day. Believers in high prices would be better satisfied with buying of both July and October, or in other words a consistent bull operation, such as is now going on, is just as likely to turn into a selling movement on which the July long cotton is sold out on the market and the short October covered on a break. There is a growing distrust on the floor of the New York Exchange over the operation mentioned above, and this is gradually curtailing operations in July. We are firm believers in higher prices eventually, but under present conditions would buy cotton only on declines and would trade in the new crop months.—(Ware & Leland.

MARKET LETTERS.

New York.—With the possibility of a naval engagement between Russia and Japan at any minute, which might turn the tide of events abroad, this market has shown itself to have wonderful stability, and accumulation of certain stocks goes steadily on, hence it would seem that big bankers here were not afraid of the political situation in Europe, and that various mergers in the railway and industrial world would be put through this spring and summer regardless of possible unfavorable events. Much was made of the steel and iron situation reported yesterday. It was intimated that the tide had turned in this industry. Steels were sold heavily yesterday by the professionals on this, with the result that they had to buy back again to-day at materially higher prices. The steel industry is well in hand and a profitable business will ensue likely well into 1906, and possibly further. The steel corporation is sufficiently entrenched to-day to meet the next depression with ease, and the preferred dividend will not be menaced as a year ago. Railway returns continue to receive very favorable comment on the increases which are showing up heavy and will undoubtedly continue through all this year. After this sharp advance we prefer to buy on any recessions.—(Hutton & Co., to John L. Dunlap.

New York.—Northern Securities and Northern Pacific were bid up at the start, buying orders appearing in St. Paul, L. and N. and Southern Pacific, with Steels displaying strength in sympathy with London. Sentiment was bullish on Amalgamated Copper, inducing a good rise, but some irregularity developed through selling orders in Metropolitan, Illinois Central and Northern Pacific. A prospect of distinct easiness in money was a bullish factor, and was responsible for some increase in commission-house business. Good buying developed in the coalers, also Pennsylvania. Shorts covered in Missouri Pacific, with recoveries taking place in the Tractions. St. Paul led the advance, Smelters assuming the same attitude in the industrials, which were less under the influence of bearish pressure. There was noticeable accumulation in St. Paul. Union Pacific was well taken and a bullish feature was a 2-point rise in Wabash preferred. Sentiment was more bullish, the market reflecting good commission-house buying, with an increased desire shown to take on stocks of all descriptions. Bears were on the run, the closing was strong and the outlook is decidedly favorable for higher prices.—(Ware & Leland.

New York.—After the first hour's trading the market became somewhat irregular. Later the market showed a very fair amount of strength, helped by foreign buying and some developments of activity among market cliques and pools, which have recently been very little represented in the trading. Buying in St. Paul seem fairly good.—(Ex. Norton & Co., to J. J. B. Hilliard & Son.

New York.—The rise was continued further this afternoon, with the highest prices of the day in the last hour—the Grangers leading. The cliques, which we said were back of the rise, will probably try to carry prices higher. They have much at stake. They are loaded up with stocks. They are bidding prices up, and business judgment (from their standpoint) would warrant their carrying prices higher. Some of these men were caught heavily long of various commodities, such as wheat and coffee, at the time of the recent collapse in the several markets. We have serious doubts about their being able to get rid of many of their long holdings. It is quite likely they will continue to make the market active during a period of several weeks. So far as we have discovered, banking interests are not doing much in the market. We hear that a large bankers' pool distributed checks for its profits about May 1. The bank statement to-morrow should make a fair showing, but the statement will probably have slight feature.—(C. I. Hudson & Co., to John W. & D. S. Green.

New York.—The market at the close only showed slight changes from the high prices of the day, owing to profit-taking by the room traders. Sentiment is decidedly more cheerful and a further advance is looked for to-morrow.—(Kelley, Miller & Co., to Almstedt Bros.

New York.—To-day's stock market was the best since the March decline set in and reflected a considerably changed attitude on the part of a number of operators, including a strong Western group. This change is generally attributed to the excellent crop prospects. Short covering on a large scale was also a noteworthy feature of the day. So far as could be learned, the banking interest, while well disposed to the market, did not actively appear to participate in the movement to-day. The advance in the Lead and Smelting stocks was accompanied by revived rumors of a merger, while the buying of Copper was said to be for Standard Oil interests. The Hill and Harriman stocks were very strong, and the rise in them was said to be due to heavy inside buying as a result of the amicable settlement of all differences, but it is generally believed that the short interest contributed the best support to these stocks, and their strength was sympathetically communicated to the remainder of the list. A large short interest is believed to still exist, and it is generally expected that the bears who have overstayed their market, will have to climb for their stocks. A good bank statement is looked for to-morrow, which should help along the tendency toward improvement, but in view of the professional aspect of the trading recently, we believe the recovery will break the speculative realizing. We advise taking profits on the bulge and to wait for a reaction before buying again.—(A. O. Brown & Co., to Hunt, Bridgeford & Co.

New York.—The market closed strong, particularly Union Pacific and St. Paul. The fact that the old-time leaders were again brought forward and made active by advancing prices gave courage to other pools, and caused quite a lively improvement in sentiment. That something is still to come out of the old Northern Securities merger is very evident from the strength displayed by Northern Pacific and Great Northern preferred. Extravagant prices are still predicted for Northern Pacific, and notwithstanding its high price the stock has been very active. In the industrial department Smelters was higher, as was also Copper. The strength in this latter stock is due to aggressive buying on the theory that a financial statement will be issued at the annual meeting next month, with a possibility of an increase in the dividend. Another fact which contributes much to the strength is the old story now being whispered around that the long drawn-out litigation in Montana is in a fair way of settlement. The market on the whole shows quite a strength. Western leaders in the market are outspokenly bullish, liquidation has been quite complete and the large short interest is still outstanding. The market seems to be in good hands and acts as if it could be put higher.—(Goldsmith, Wolf & Lyons.

STOCK MARKET REVIEW.

New York, May 12.—Money on call easy at 2@2½ per cent.; closing bid 2½; offered at 2½; time money easy and dull; 60 and 90 days 3¼ per cent.; six months 3½; prime mercantile paper 3¾@4½. Sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.8670@4.8675 for demand and at $4.8400@4.8465 for 60-day bills; posted rates $4.85½ and $4.87½; commercial bills $4.84⅜@4.84½. Bar silver 57⅝c. Mexican dollars 44¼c. Government bonds weak. Railroad bonds firm.

Stocks made a considerable show of strength to-day and the demand expanded sufficiently to almost double the volume of transactions over that of several previous days. The dull, resisting power shown by the market this week gave notice that the liquidation had spent its force, but it was evident from the small recovery effected up to late yesterday that there must be a considerable outstanding short interest, which had refrained from covering in the expectation that there was to be a renewal of the liquidation.

The sharp flurry late yesterday in the Northern Securities group dominated the vulnerable position of this short interest and served to encourage a continuation of the campaign against it to-day. The movement started in a hesitating way, and there were several halts before it gained headway and spread to include pretty much the whole list. St. Paul was the leade of the advance, and the first response to its leadership was moderate, especially amongst the other Pacifics, which rose so strongly yesterday. The movement had to contend also with the sharp weakness of Consolidated and Brooklyn Union Gas, on account of reduction in their dividends induced by the legislation toward the enforcement of lower rates for gas. This announcement to-day explained yesterday's weakness in those stocks, which was attributed at the time to an alleged leak of information on the decision to be handed down by the United States Supreme Court on a pending franchise tax case.

The most effective influence toward the recovery in prices was the successful completion of the London settlement, to-day being pay day there, and forming a new point of departure for a new two weeks' period. The failures which had been feared did not develop, and London was a heavy buyer here for the new account. Some belated effect was felt also from yesterday's Government report on the promising condition of the winter wheat crop, and this was reflected in the special strength of a number of Southwestern railroad stocks.

There was a resumption of activity also by a number of old pools in various stocks, which have desisted lately from operations under the discouraging conditions in the market. A number of metal stocks which have been under the influence of merger rumors from time to time were conspicuous instances of this kind of activity. Another field of revived activity among the professionals was the circulation of rumors alleging the existence of plans to increase dividends on various stocks. The subsidiary Pennsylvania stocks and Reading were notably affected by this influence.

The preliminary estimates of the currency movements promised some decline in the cash reserves of the banks, owing to the week's large absorption by the subtreasury. It is supposed that there has been some surrender already of Government deposits by the banks in anticipation of the maturity on Monday of the call of the Secretary of the Treasury, and this influence has been felt also in the movement of currency from the interior on account of remittances made by interior banks to meet drafts on their New York correspondents for repayment of the Government deposits. Money, however, continues extremely easy. The buying and bidding up of stocks were regarded as in large part directed against the short interest, and the forced covering by this element was an important factor in the day's strength. Professional profit-taking clipped the day's gains, and the closing was dull and heavy.

FOREIGN FINANCIAL.

London, May 12.—There was less pressure for money in the market to-day, though the demand was fair for repayments to the Bank of England and for Stock Exchange requirements. Discounts were firm. Prices on the Stock Exchange were steady and trading was slightly more active, the settlement concluding with no further difficulties. Consols hardened on a small investment support. Americans were more cheerful in response to New York and received fair support throughout the morning at above parity. Union Pacific and United States Steel were strong. Southern Pacific was bought on favorable dividend rumors. In the afternoon trading was moderately active and at the close prices were firm, though a little below the best quotations of the day. Japanese improved during the early part of the day, but closed easier. Imperial Japanese Government 6s of 1904 were quoted at 100¾. Russians were weak. Other continentals were firm, in sympathy with Paris. Peruvians were the feature of foreigners, being supported on rumors of an arrangement of the national debt question. Closing: Consols for money 90¼; do for the account 90¼; Anaconda 5¾; Atchison (ex-div.) 84¾; do preferred 105; Baltimore and Ohio 111¼; Canadian Pacific 152⅞; Chesapeake and Ohio 50⅞; Chicago Great Western 21½; Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul 178; De Beers 17⅝; Denver and Rio Grande 30¼; do preferred 88⅛; Erie 43⅝; do first preferred 80⅝; do second preferred 69; Illinois Central 165½; Louisville and Nashville 149½; Missouri, Kansas and Texas 28; New York Central 147½; Norfolk and Western 80¾; do preferred 94; Ontario and Western 50⅞; Pennsylvania (ex-div.) 69¾; Rand Mines 10⅝; Reading 48¼; do first preferred 46½; do second preferred 43½; Southern Railway 31⅝; do preferred 98½; Southern Pacific 64⅞; Union Pacific 125¾; do preferred 100; United States Steel 32¼; do preferred (ex-div.) 101⅝; Wabash 19½; do preferred 42; Spanish fours 90¼. Bar silver steady at 26 9-16d per ounce. Money 2½@3 per cent. The rate of discount in the open market for both short and three months' bills 2¼@2 5-16 per cent. Bullion to the amount of £40,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to Malta.

Paris, May 12.—Prices on the Bourse to-day were firm throughout, owing to the improved condition of the market in New York and the increasing confidence in the adjustment of the Moroccan question. Russian Imperial 4s were quoted at 88.50 and Russian bonds of 1904 at 510. Three per cent. rentes 99f 27½c for the account. Exchange on London 25f 17½c for checks.

Berlin, May 12.—On the Bourse to-day the undertone improved, but business is quiet.

THE RECORD OF PRICES IN NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

Comparisons of Values and a Summary of Governing Conditions.

In 1902, the stock market reached a high-water mark which has not so far been passed. The thirty-nine stocks, to which reference has been made, reached, in 1902, an average high point of 102.98. From that level there was a long decline, which, starting in September, 1902, continued almost without intermission for one year, culminating in September, 1903, but reaching in 1904 a point practically as low as that reached in 1903. Speaking broadly, the market may be said to have turned upward in March of 1904.

The average low point reached by these thirty-nine stocks in 1904 was 64.22, being a decline of 38.66 points. The market then advanced almost without intermission—except the December storm—from May, 1904, to the beginning of April in this year. It recovered from the average low point of 64.22 to an average high point in 1905 of 98.66, being a gain of 34.44 from the lowest. The high point of 1905, however, was below that of 1902. The recent decline has been abnormally large and abnormally rapid. Practically within a month the market has fallen from a level represented by the high point of 98.66 to a low point of 84.70, being a drop of practically 14 points in about thirty days. At the level reached in the recent decline, prices are very little more than midway between the low point of 1904 and the high point of 1902. It is very important to determine, if possible, what the course of prices is likely to be from now on. Will they advance above the previous high-water mark of 1902, or will they tend toward the low-water mark of 1904?

Values in the long run tend to govern prices, provided that other factors, as for instance, the value of money, do not greatly change. With regard to values there can be but little question as to two things. The first is that values represented by stocks, such as those used in compilation of averages, are decidedly higher than they were in 1902, when top prices were touched. The earnings of railroad and industrial companies at the present time are in the aggregate materially larger than they were in 1902. The second thing is that the tendency of values is still distinctly upward. There is nothing in the situation to-day to warrant the belief that earnings of invested capital are not on the up-grade, and every reliable indication shows that they are. Therefore, we are justified in the statement that, measured by values, stocks are better worth the high prices of 1902 than they were nearly three years ago when those high prices were recorded.

It must be remembered that in this country time is on the side of prices. Natural growth and a capital account unwatered will make almost any railroad stock a large dividend payer if the railroad is in the United States. The mere fact that the country is three years older than it was when the last high prices were touched is a very powerful argument in favor of the belief that the last high point will be passed in the near future.

This is on the assumption that no great changes occur in the money market, and that no great disturbance to business is originated in Congress. As regards the money market, credit is considerably expanded, but considering the very large business that is being done, there is nothing serious in the figures. As regards disturbance of business by Congress, there is as yet no reason to apprehend any very dangerous developments. Such danger as there might be would lie in an attempt to screw down the safety valve. There will have to be legislation on the railroad question some time next fall or winter, but it is probable that the legislation will be on conservative lines, and that its effect will not be harmful. There is, however, an element of uncertainty in the matter that must be reckoned with. As we pointed out a month ago, popular sentiment is strongly running against the creed of the dollar—in lots of one million and upward. It is too early to determine what its effect will be.

Nevertheless, barring accidents and developments that cannot be clearly foreseen, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the tendency of security prices is upward, and that at some time in the not very far distant future the wave will pass the previous high-water mark. The crops are still to be made no doubt, and serious damage to the crops would undoubtedly give a setback to values; but taking the prospect as it stands, it is unquestionably very good.—(New York American.

THE BUCKEYE "EASY" RIDING CULTIVATOR

IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL

Riding Cultivator ever put on the market. Cut shows the six-shovel spring-trip machine. This and the four-shovel are very popular. These machines are simple, strong and the easiest operated. A small boy can manage one successfully. THE PRICE IS ALSO VERY REASONABLE. We carry a large stock of various styles of Buckeye Cultivators and can make quick shipments.

Let us hear from you when in the market for plows, implements, buggies or vehicles of any kind.

COTTON MARKETS.

New York, May 12.—The cotton market was considerably less active and fluctuated within narrower limits. In a general way the bulls seemed to have control of the situation and final figures showed a net gain. The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 4 points on covering for long account, promoted by steadier cables than looked for. Bulls were somewhat disappointed at finding no sign of the recommendations reported in Texas from private parties yesterday on the official weather map, and there was realizing at the advance, but the big market leaders were supporting the list more or less actively and before the upward tendency was checked prices showed a net gain of about 7 to 8 points. At this level some of the bulls seemed trying to reduce their lines and with the week and statistics bearish prices sold off to about even with last night only to rally again in the late trading on renewed bull support and covering, and closed steady at a net advance of 3 to 6 points. Sales futures estimated 150,000 bales. There were a few May notices out, but they were promptly stopped. Private advices continued to complain of new crop conditions, and interior holders were said to be asking higher prices.

Estimated receipts at the ports to-day 89,000 bales, against 40,450 last week and 3,178 last year; for the week 140,000 bales, against 172,738 last week and 25,718 last year; to-day's receipts at New Orleans 3,445 bales, against 1,457 last year, and at Houston 3,538, against 752 last year.

The local market for spot cotton was quiet but steady, with prices unchanged on the basis of 8.15c for middling uplands and 8.40c for middling gulf. Closed quiet and unchanged; sales 3,900 bales.

October opened at 7.66c, advanced to 7.75c and reacted to 7.67c. The market closed dull, net 1 point up to 1 point down.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, May 12.—Cold, wet weather in the Northwest created bullish sentiment in the wheat pit here to-day. At the close July wheat was up ⅛@⅜c. Corn is off ⅛c. Oats show a loss of ⅛@¼c. Provisions are a shade to 5c lower.

The strength in wheat developed after trading was well under way. Early in the session sentiment was about evenly divided. Brilliant weather throughout the West and Southwest about offset the effect of higher prices at Liverpool, due to decreased shipments from Argentina. July opened a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 84⅛@85c. After touching 85⅛c July eased off to 84⅝c, on selling by pit traders, who were influenced by the improved weather conditions in the West and Southwest. News from the Northwest, however, was decidedly bullish. A dispatch from Minneapolis stated that weather in that section was extremely unfavorable for the growth of the spring-sown crop. Cold rains retarding the development of the plant. Shorts covered freely as a result. In response July rallied to 85⅛@85¼c. A message from Kansas City intimating that receipts there would soon show a material increase started liberal profit-taking. With a temporary lessening of demand prices declined, July selling off to 84⅝c. A quick recovery followed on renewed buying by shorts. The market closed strong and nearly at the highest point of the day. Final quotations on July were at 85⅛c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 139,000 bushels. Exports for the week, according to Bradstreet's, were equal to 899,000 bushels. Primary receipts were 101,000 bushels, compared with 169,400 a year ago. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 90 cars, against 91 last week and 76 a year ago.

Owing to clear weather throughout the corn belt sentiment in the pit to-day was bearish. Increased shipments from Argentina furnished an additional incentive to sellers. A feature of trading was heavy selling by a prominent commission house. The market closed at almost the lowest point of the day. July opened unchanged at 47⅜c, sold off to 46⅞c and closed at 46⅞c. Local receipts were 44 cars, with 2 of contract grade.

Excellent weather was a weakening influence in the oats pit. The decline in corn also had considerable effect. Cash houses were the principal sellers. July opened a shade to ⅛c lower at 29⅜@29½c, sold off to 29⅛c and closed at 29¼@29⅜c. Local receipts were 83 cars.

Higher prices for live hogs held the provision market comparatively steady. The volume of business was light. July pork closed at a loss of 5c at $12.47½. Lard was off 2½c at $7.35. Ribs were a shade lower at $7.27½@7.30.

Estimated receipts for to-morrow: Wheat none; corn, 57 cars; oats 81 cars; hogs 11,000 head.

FIVE-STORY

ADDITION TO WEISSINGER-GAULBERT APARTMENT BUILDING.

Plans Being Prepared By Architect Kenneth McDonald—Will Have Sixteen Flats.

Plans are being prepared for a five-story addition to the Weissinger-Gaulbert Apartment building. The new structure will be built on the lot on the west side of the apartment house and will contain sixteen flats of six rooms each, one of which will be for servants.

There will be a large court in the center. The first floor front will be divided into offices for physicians and the rear will be used for storage. The four upper floors will be divided into flats. The building will be fire proof and will contain many new improvements which have suggested themselves since the main building was erected.

Kenneth McDonald is the architect. He says work will begin in about six weeks and that the flats will be ready for occupancy in little over a year. The cost is estimated at $70,000.

HEAVY IRON FALLS AND INJURES MEN.

Were At Work On Approach To Big Four Bridge.

John Swanager sustained a broken leg and Polly Scearce was badly bruised by a fall at the approach to the Big Four bridge at the foot of Wenzel street yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock. A large piece of iron, weighing a ton and a half, was being raised by tackle, which gave away just as the piece was being swung into place. Swanager, whose work it was to secure the piece as it was fitted, was struck by the end of the iron as it fell, and his leg broken. The piece fell to the ground, a distance of about twenty feet.

Polly Scearce, who lives in Jeffersonville and who was at work on a riveting scaffold, was thrown from his position by the jar, and, falling fifteen feet, lodged in the false work below. His scalp was cut open and he sustained numerous minor bruises. He went to his home across the river, but returned later in the afternoon. Swanager was taken to his home, 2614 Hemlock street, where his injuries, which are not serious, were dressed. The report was spread over the East End that three men had been killed at the works and a large crowd soon assembled to learn about the disaster.

HIGH TIDE COMING IN THE OHIO RIVER.

Water Rising Here At the Rate of Nearly Two-Tenths of An Inch An Hour.

The Ohio river is rising from headwaters to Evansville and a big river is expected here. The tide will not be high enough to do any damage, but it will afford good boating water for some time to come. Last night the river was rising here nearly two-tenths of an inch an hour. There was ten feet of water in the canal and seven feet eight inches on the falls.

During the past twenty-four hours the river has risen twelve feet at Cincinnati and eight feet at Madison. Heavy rains are reported up to Portsmouth, O. More rain is expected above and local showers are not unlikely here this afternoon.

The speed of the fastest locomotive is reduced to that of the slowest if only half-rations of fuel are allowed. And a big store may do little more business than a little one if only half-rations of publicity are provided.

UNDERTAKERS TO DISCUSS PLANS FOR CITY MORGUE.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Falls City Undertakers' Association, which will be held May 24 in Liederkranz Hall, Sixth and Walnut streets, the question of the city morgue will be up for consideration. It is probable that a definite plan will be broached and that the ball will be started rolling again. All the undertakers in the city are pulling together for a city morgue, which they say is sorely needed.

Sent Back To Nashville.

Clara Wingo and Edna Wilburn, the two young girls arrested Sunday by Lieut. Wickham in a room over Bronger's saloon, were sent to their homes in Nashville yesterday afternoon. Judge McCann refused to release them until they promised they would return home. Both girls claimed they were eighteen years of age, but a letter received from the mother of the Wilburn girl declared that they were but sixteen years of age. The girls were placed under the care of the conductor on the Louisville and Nashville train.

Bed Sent To Powers.

In accordance with a request from Caleb Powers, who is now in the Georgetown jail, his private bed used while he was confined in the Jefferson county jail, was shipped to him yesterday by Deputy Jailer Eugene Blanford. A desk and some other furniture owned by Powers were sent to the home of a friend in this city. Deputy Jailer Blanford does not think that Powers will ever be brought back to Louisville, but will be kept in the jail at Georgetown.

NO LIMIT

To Results of a Nine-foot River Stage.

A STIMULUS FOR INDUSTRY.

COMMERCE WOULD RAPIDLY DEVELOP BY CHEAP TRANSPORTATION.

COST WILL BE $50,000,000.

"The effects of a nine-foot stage of water all the year round from Pittsburg to Cairo upon transportation and all other lines of commercial development would be incalculable," said a member of the local committee, appointed to prepare for the entertainment of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of Congress next Monday.

"It would be an immense factor in this question of railroad rate legislation, and would in a great measure solve the question as far as the central part of the country is concerned. It will take $50,000,000 to make the necessary improvement, but that amount of money is small when the results are considered. It would revolutionize methods of business. It would make such powerful competitors for the railroads that rates would have to come down.

"It is known to everyone that the lowest railroad rates are obtainable where there is water competition. Take the rates from New York to the Southeast, which were the object of an attack made recently by the Chicago shippers. The rates from New York to Southeastern cities are much less than the rates from Chicago, though the distance from New York is greater. This state of affairs is entirely attributable to the water competition made possible by the Atlantic ocean. Railroads running south from New York have to meet the rates of the steamship lines, which operate at much less expense and naturally are able to get legtimate profits from lower tariffs.

"Another instance that is strikingly apparent is in the State of New York, where rates are affected by the Erie canal, running from the lakes to the Hudson. That canal keeps the prices of transportation in New York down to a minimum and is to a great extent responsible for the magnificent development of the State.

* * *

From Cairo To Pittsburg.

"Think what it would mean to all this country if we had a great canal extending from Cairo to Pittsburg, with nine feet of water all the year round. Below Cairo the water is always there, and we would then have an open waterway from Pittsburg to the Gulf of Mexico. It would make Louisville a seaport and would give the business industries of this city such a stimulus as they have never had before and never can get from any other source. When all these things are taken into consideration you can realize the importance of the trip of this committee. It is up to the people of the valley to show to these men, who have the power to vote the appropriation, that such action is necessary for the future greatness of the cities and welfare of the people of this enormous and immensely productive section of the United States."

The Rivers and Harbors Committee is on board the steamboat Queen City, and is due to arrive here Monday morning. From the time the boat left Pittsburg the Congressmen have been receiving receptions equal to ovations at every city along the banks of the river. The citizens have enthusiastically shown their interest in the great movement. Theodore E. Burton, chairman of the committee, is in charge of the party.

In a speech at Wheeling, W. Va., Congressman J. Adam Bede, a member of the committee, said:

"It is the case of the people against the Ohio river. We are the jury and are not allowed to express an opinion just now. But the United States may find the Ohio guilty of restraint of trade and sentence it to be dammed from Pittsburg to Cairo."

* * *

Army Engineers In Party.

The Board of Army Engineers, appointed to make an inspection of the river and report regarding the advisability of "canalizing" the river at a depth of nine feet, is composed of the following members:

Lieut. Col. Daniel F. Lockwood, stationed at Washington, president of the board; Lieut. Col. Ernest B. Ruffner, stationed at Cincinnati; Lieut. Col. Clinton B. Sears, stationed at New Orleans; Maj. George A. Zinn, stationed at Wheeling, and Maj. William L. Sibert, stationed at Pittsburg.

The party will arrive in Cincinnati this morning and will leave that city this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. All day Sunday will be spent floating down the river, stopping some time at the mouth of the Kentucky river. A landing will be made some time early Monday morning at Madison, Ind., and the local committee will meet the boat above Louisville Monday morning.

MAYOR APPROVES PLAN FOR RENUMBERING HOUSES.

The special committee in charge of the ordinance providing for the renumbering of houses held a conference with the Mayor yesterday. Messrs. Belknap, Moise and Smith explained the details to Mayor Grainger and he heartily approved the plan, which has been published in the Courier-Journal. City Engineer Breed was instructed to prepare a map showing street extensions recommended, and when it is completed Mayor Grainger will hold another conference with the committee. He is anxious that the work of renumbering begin at the earliest practicable moment.

POOLROOMS

In County Investigated By Grand Jury.

NO INDICTMENTS RETURNED.

VERDICT AGAINST CITY FOR $1,000 DAMAGES TO PROPERTY.

INJURED CUSTOMER LOSES.

The grand jury yesterday began an investigation of the poolrooms which are said to have been in operation in the county, near the Louisville Jockey Club track, and a number of witnesses were heard. Other witnesses have been summoned and the investigation will be continued to-day. Several raids have been made by the county policemen on the room at Seventh and P streets and the alleged operators arrested. Six men are to be tried next week in the County Court on the charge of operating a poolroom, their cases having been passed when presented before Judge Gregory last Friday.

The jury has finished investigation of the election cases and will take no further action in regard to the primary election investigation until after Judge Joseph Pryor has given a decision as to their right to open the ballot boxes.

Two indictments were returned yesterday by the grand jury. They were against E. C. Nye, charged with malicious shooting at without wounding, and Ezekiel Gray, grand larceny. The case against Isaac Newton McCarty, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, and the case against T. L. Patterson, charged with embezzlement, were dismissed.

Too Many Revenue Agents.

Two actions for unassessed personalty for the past five years are charged to have been filed against the Belmont Distillery Company, and a motion was made in the County Court yesterday to dismiss the one brought by A. J. Bizot. The motion was in the form of an answer and a plea in abatement, the defendant alleging that another action involving the same matter had previously been filed by George H. Alexander. Mr. Bizot filed suit for taxes, asking that the defendant's property be assessed at a valuation of $100,000 for each of the past five years. The company also alleges in its answer that it has always listed all its personalty during the years named. Judge Gregory took the question under advisement.

Loses Another Suit.

Caroline Weisser and other heirs of C. F. A. Weisser were given a judgment of $1,000 by a jury in Judge Gordon's court yesterday, the suit being against the city of Louisville, asking $1,800 for damage to property on Haldeman avenue resulting from a change in the grade of the street. The city claimed an agreement was made by Mr. Weisser before his death to waive all claims for damage if the grade was not lowered more than fourteen feet. After the testimony was all in the plaintiffs withdrew their prayer for $1,800 and asked for only $1,000. The jury gave them the full amount.

Suit Against Galt House.

The case of Ida May Chapman against the Galt House went to trial in Judge O'Doherty's court yesterday, but went over until this morning at 10 o'clock. The plaintiff was injured while employed by the hotel in the pantry department by having her arm caught in an electric dumb-waiter. She sued for $5,000. She charged that she was seriously and permanently injured and thrown out of employment.

Verdict For Defendant.

A jury in Judge Field's court yesterday returned a verdict for the defendant in the case of Joseph Westby against A. Button & Sons. The plaintiff fell into the elevator shaft in a store belonging to the defendants and alleged that it was a result of carelessness and negligence on the part of the defendant in not properly protecting their customers.

Short During Two Years.

Judge James P. Gregory yesterday gave judgment in favor of the Commonwealth against Gottlieb Lauffer for taxes due on a valuation of $2,000 for the year 1904 and $10,000 for the year 1905. The court found that Lauffer had not omitted any personal property from assessment during the years 1901, 1902 and 1903.

Increase Capital Stock.

Amended articles of incorporation were filed yesterday by H. W. Martin & Co., tobacco manufacturers, increasing their capital stock from $200,000 to $300,000. Of the new stock $75,000 is preferred and $25,000 common. The increase is to furnish funds for an increase in the company's plant.

Sam Cobb Convicted.

Sam Cobb, a negro charged with hitting Ed Buchanan, a negro, with a piece of brick, was found guilty of assault and battery and sent to the workhouse for thirty days. This was the only case tried in the Criminal Court yesterday, the session being the dullest for several weeks.

Appraisers Appointed.

Judge Gregory yesterday appointed appraisers of the estate of Emily M. Bartley, whose will was offered for probate on Wednesday. The following were named: Frank Munn, Houston Quin and W. L. Doolan.

Court Paragraphs.

—Maude Hudgins sued the Louisville Railway Company for $5,060 for injuries received by being knocked down by a car at Twenty-second street and Portland avenue. The plaintiff alleges that she alighted from one car and as she was crossing the track was struck by another car going in an opposite direction. The petition charges carelessness on the part of the motorman.

—T. C. Caummisaur & Sons sued Theobald & Bischoff on a note for $75.65.

—In the case of Sam Robertson against the Louisville and Eastern Railroad Company, which went to the jury yesterday, no verdict could be reached and the jury was discharged.

—Charles Eneu Johnson & Co. sued the Herald Publishing Company for $681.86 on an open account for paper furnished from March 2 to October 18, 1904. A credit of $12.94 is shown on the account.

—H. W. Hand sued the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association for $1,633. This is one of a number of similar suits which have been filed against the same company. It is alleged that discrimination was shown in making assessments for death benefits.
